3 Men, Boy Drowned, 4 Saved in Bay And Potomac

Wading Child Sinks In Deep Water; D. C. Excursionist Lost At Colonial Beach

Three men and a child were drowned and four other persons were rescued yesterday in boating and swimming accidents in nearby Virginia and Maryland waters.

The dead are:

S. Edward Wakeham, 28, of 1907 K street northwest.

Frank J. Darby, 35, of Baltimore.

Dorsey Waters, 48, of Baltimore.

Timothy Times, 9, of Staunton, Va.

An attempt on the part of Mrs. Margaret Fairley, 36, of Forest Glen, Md., to save the Times boy, almost ended fatally for her. Timothy and Mrs. Fairley's son, James, 9, had waded out into the water at Selby-on-the-Bay, near Beverly Beach, Chesapeake Bay.

Mother Dashes Into Water

The two children, according to police, unexpectedly stepped into deep water a few yards from the shore. Timothy, unable to swim, screamed for help and sank from sight.

The Fairley boy kept his head above water until swimmers from the shore reached him. Mrs. Fairley, attracted by Timothy's cries, ran into the water after him and had to be rescued. She was rushed to Emergency Hospital at Annapolis and treated for shock and immersion.

The West Annapolis Fire Department ambulance crew raced to the scene 15 miles away and gave the drowned boy artificial respiration for two hours without avail. Timothy's body was recovered by a launch from the Naval Academy Station Ship, Reina Mercedes.

Timothy, the son of Finley Times, manager of the Beverley Manor orchard near Staunton, was spending a two-week holiday with the Fairleys, his aunt and uncle. He was to have returned home today and went to the bay on a farewell picnic.

Restaurant Man Lost

Wakeham, assistant manager of a restaurant here, sank without an outcry in water five feet deep 100 feet from the shore at Colonial Beach, Va.

With his wife, Clara, he had taken a Washington excursion steamer to the beach and, accompanied by a friend, had swam out to the diving tower. On the swim back, the friend turned to discover that Wakeham had vanished. He called for help from among scores of nearby swimmers, who kept diving until the body was found. Police said Wakeham was probably a victim of cramps.

Waters and two friends, Lawrence Kapp and John Jamison, both of Baltimore, left Eastport, Md., early yesterday in a small boat on the Chesapeake Bay. At about 11 a. m., when they were a mile and a half off Thomas Lighthouse, the water became rough and suddenly flipped the 14-foot boat over.

Kapp and Jamison managed to grab life belts, but Waters was thrown clear of the boat without a belt. His friends said they last saw

Angry Husband Crashes Car to Die; Fails, Uses Gun

Manchester, N. H., July 16 (U.P.).—Failing to kill himself by racing his wife's new automobile down a steep hill and through a foot-thick cement wall, Eleondas Britton, 37, ran into the house and fatally wounded himself with a rifle today.

"I told you I'd get even for not letting me use your car," he said to his wife, Adrienne, who came to the door after hearing the crash. A moment later she heard a single shot. She found her husband on a closet floor, a bullet through his head.

A score of motorists were endangered as Britton's automobile roared at 80 miles an hour down the main highway that leads to the Hampton Beach resort.

Britton had placed two heavy boulders in the car's tonneau to hold it on the road. The automobile was demolished, but Britton apparently escaped injury.

The couple had four children.

Two colored men and a colored woman were arrested yesterday by Homicide Squad detectives investigating three fatal stabbings here Saturday night and early yesterday.

Great Falls Man Refutes Identification By Wife Who Recognized Feet Of Corpse as Those of Missing Husband

After seven persons, including his wife, had identified a body taken from the Potomac River last Wednesday as his, James Albert Leonhardt, 61, marched into the Seventh Precinct police station yesterday to prove he was not dead, much less murdered.

He explained absence from his Elkins Station home, near Great Falls, Va., since May 25, by saying he had gone to New York to visit the World's Fair and had returned to North Beach, Md. At Gallinger Hospital, where he was taken yesterday for observation, he declared he had not been feeling well and planned to stay in the hospital "a couple of days to rest up."

Mrs. Leonhardt Saturday went to Waldorf after reading a description of the body which led her to believe it was her husband's. With her were a cousin, a nephew and a neighbor, Mrs. William Winston. The day before her two sisters and a brother-in-law had made a similar tentative identification.

Mrs. Winston yesterday gave this account of the bizarre events which followed the first report of finding the body:

Urged by Mrs. Leonhardt, who is crippled, to see whether the dead man was her husband, her two sisters viewed the body, Friday. One of them was convinced it was that of her brother-in-law, one was not sure.

The day before a phone call had been made to Mrs. Winston's home—the nearest one with a telephone to the Leonhardt home . . . from a woman acquaintance of Leonhardt living in Washington. She said she had sent a taxi to North Beach to pick up the missing man and return him home. Mrs. Winston replied he had not appeared.

Friday the woman called again

House Backers Weakening in WPA Fight

May Follow Senate Group in Dropping Drive for Old Hours

By the Associated Press

Congressional advocates of restoring the prevailing wage on WPA projects virtually gave up hope yesterday.

Representative Sabath (Democrat), Illinois, who introduced an amendment to restore the old wage scale immediately after the current wave of strikes began, said he did not know whether he would press for action, in view of the decision Saturday of a group of Senators to drop their fight for amendment of the new relief act.

"I never try to do the impossible," Sabath told reporters.

The Illinois Representative said he still believed, however, that the new wage provision was wrong and would talk over the situation today with House members of a similar mind.

No Signs of Weakening

The Senate group, headed by Senator Murray (Democrat), Montana, abandoned efforts to revise the law because of the strikes which Murray said had proved "embarrassing."

President Roosevelt had condemned the walkouts as a "strike against the Government."

[From St. Paul, the International News Service reported David Lasser, president, had recommended that the Workers Alliance withdraw its active support of the strikes.—Editor's Note.]

From the Congress of Industrial Organizations, which has united with the American Federation of Labor in opposing the new wage regulations, came a threat, mean-

$1,000,000 D. C. School Program Set

Supply Bill Provides Funds; Checks Today For District Workers

New school construction totaling more than $1,000,000 will be launched in the near future under the District appropriation bill, in addition to a new armory, a new library, a new police precinct station and much highway work.

Also, all District employes not paid Saturday, who kept at their jobs "on faith" during two fundless weeks, will be paid today, Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, auditor, said.

Work on Revenue Bill

Congress meanwhile will resume work on the District revenue bill, to raise funds necessary to meet appropriations made Friday. The bill is scheduled for action in the Senate today, while House action probably will be deferred until tomorrow. Representative Nichols (Democrat), Oklahoma, who refused to sign the conference report, has indicated he will not oppose the measure on the floor.

Work will be expedited by school authorities to complete the following new and continued projects, funds for which were provided by the supply bill:

Ketcham School Addition

Eight-room addition to Montgomery School with an assembly hall and gymnasium, $229,000. Bids will be asked when plans are completed.

Completion of Thomas Jefferson Junior High School and Library, $500,000. Bids have been asked.

Synthetic Vitamin K Found; May Save Thousands Annually

By the Associated Press

New York, July 16.—In one of the greatest scientific feats ever recorded, four groups of chemists, working independently, reported simultaneously today the synthesis of vitamin K, the new vitamin that stops internal bleeding.

This means thousands of lives will be saved annually, for the synthesis makes the vitamin, which has been difficult to extract from natural substances, available in unlimited quantities.

Although hemophilia, the "royal curse" type of bleeding, is not much affected by the vitamin, it stops bleeding in a large number of less spectacular but far more numerous and more frequently fatal diseases.

The vitamin previously was extracted from alfalfa. The chemists made it from coal tar. To the great surprise of the scientific world, the artificial vitamin has four times the potency of natural vitamin K. Hardly ever is a synthetic chemical so much better than the natural one.

The "tip" which set four groups of scientists simultaneously on the trail of the synthesis came from tuberculosis germs.

Playgrounds To Reopen This Week

Those in Worst D. C. Traffic Areas Will Come First; to Use All Volunteers

Playgrounds in those sections of the city with the blackest record of child traffic casualties will be opened before the end of the week, it was forecast yesterday.

Administrator Lewis R. Barrett, of the nine-day-old District Playgrounds Commission, said he hoped eventually to open all school playgrounds suitably equipped and large enough to avoid congestion.

"But," he added, "we're going to start where the need is greatest."

The Southwest section and the downtown area, as well as the congested sections above Judiciary Square and below Florida avenue across the city, will be the first to receive extra open playgrounds, Barrett said, because child traffic injuries are most frequent there.

Besides the immediate problem of opening some of the 112 closed playgrounds, the commission is faced with the long-range question of a new organization of the entire recreation administration, the director said.

Barrett will meet with auditor Daniel J. Donovan today to discuss a possible shake-up of salaries and personnel under the District appropriation act, which provides $35,000 less for joint administration of the Community Center and District Playground Departments under the new commission than the two departments had separately.

Sub-Committee at Work

Whether the reduction will be met by cutting the staff or cutting salaries neither Donovan nor Barrett would say yesterday, nor was any statement made on a possible successor for Mrs. Elizabeth K. Peeples, former Community Center Department director, who was transferred Saturday to the E. V. Brown School as principal. Barrett said the appointment might be made at the next meeting of the commission, the time for which has not been set.

A sub-committee composed of Barrett, C. Melvin Sharpe, and Commissioner George A. Allen is working on plans to open up to 25 closed playgrounds as soon as possible, and will report to the full commission this week, Barrett said.

Selection of supervisors from among the WPA workers made available in an additional order last Wednesday will be part of their work, as well as organizing volunteer Boy Scouts and others that replied to Commissioner Hazen's appeal last week.

Police as Recruiting Agents

"We plan to use every available supervisor in this work," said Barrett yesterday.

According to Barrett's plans the "light duty" policemen whom Maj. Ernest W. Brown has offered to assign to playground duty will be more valuable as recruiting agents than supervisors. Admitting that the playground question is an important part of the problem of child traffic injuries, Barrett considers that it is no use opening playgrounds unless they are attractive to children and the children can be induced to use them.

The playground policemen, according to this plan, would take children playing in the streets to nearby playgrounds.

Girl, 5, Playing With Matches, Critically Burned

Joanne Bashelor, 5, of Capitol Heights, Md., was burned critically, and her father and mother, less seriously, after a box of matches exploded in the child's hand in the yard of their home, 814 Central avenue.

Members of her family, who said Joanne and several other children apparently were attempting to start a bonfire, saw her run screaming into the house, clothing ablaze. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bashelor, received burns on the hands when they attempted to beat out the flames before wrapping her in a tablecloth.

At Emergency Hospital, Joanne was treated for first, second and third-degree burns of the body, from shoulders to knees. Physicians said she was in a serious condition.

Holy Land Barred, 2,600 Exiles at Sea

Jerusalem, July 16, (AP).—The plight of 2,600 Jewish refugees on four Greek ships outside Palestine territorial waters has aroused inhabitants of Palestine, who are demanding that local authorities assist them to disembark despite the six-month immigration ban. The captain of one ship wirelessed he had attempted to land his passengers at every port in the Mediterranean.

Trust Inquiry Report Asks Freer Laws

Urges Liberalizing Sherman and Clayton Acts, Lifting of Patent Restrictions

The Government's monopoly committee, holding that "the survival of the system of private property itself depends upon the restimulation of economic activity," yesterday called for changes in the anti-trust and patent laws to promote freer business.

In a preliminary report, summarizing some of its months of activity to date, the committee recommended:

Modification of patent law procedure in the interest of speed and to spur initiative.

Prohibition on the use of patents for the establishment of trade restrictions.

Would Amend Clayton Act

Amending of the Clayton act to prohibit one corporation from acquiring the assets as well as the stock of a competing corporation.

Legislation to provide civil remedies for enforcement of the anti-trust laws.

Emphasizing that only a substantial portion of its preliminary work has been completed, the committee said it could offer no comprehensive recommendations but asked for quick action on its preliminary requests.

It pictured the Nation's economic problem as:

"People who are able and willing to work cannot find employment.

"People who are hungry cannot provide themselves with food.

"People who produce what the idle and the hungry need cannot sell it, and, indeed, can find a market for only a small portion of what they are capable of producing.

"Owners of money and owners of machines cannot put their property to sure and certain use.

"Man's Intelligence Mocked"

"The abundance of nature mocks the intelligence of men who seem incapable of distributing it among their own kind either equitably or profitably."

In its investigation of the concentration of economic power, the committee said it found virtually the sole civil remedy available to the Department of Justice in its anti-trust work is an action in equity to enjoin a violation or threatened violation of the law.

The department, it said, has been forced to resort to criminal proceedings, but "such procedure has not proved entirely satisfactory."

Civil damages, rather than criminal penalities are favored by the committee, Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, chairman, said.

"Indictment the Hardship"

The report said that because of the type of businessman usually involved, it had proved practically impossible for the department to obtain convictions, and as the fine did not seem to matter in most cases, it was the indictment which proved to be the real punishment.

"Finally, the indictment process is sometimes extremely unfair to persons who have been forced into a combination in restraint of trade by the necessity of survival in a com-

Coast Guard Reaches N.Y. With Seaplane Survivors

New York, July 16 (AP).—Completing a 270-mile rescue dash in less than 13 hours, the Coast Guard cutter George W. Campbell arrived at its Staten Island base today with five survivors of the sunken Coast Guard hydroplane V-164 which crashed at sea yesterday with the loss of three lives.

The plane sank with the bodies a few minutes after picking up a sick sailor from the ketch Atlantis, floating laboratory of the Oceanographic Institute of Woods Hole, Mass., 150 miles southeast of New York City.

Dr. Samuel Litsky, of Marine Hospital, said a preliminary examination showed only one of the men, Russell D. Hayes, a yeoman on the hydroplane, was injured seriously. He had a possible fracture of the spine.

'Beer Hall Putsch' Lands U. S. Fuehrer In Cell on Charge of Drunkenness From Chief Who Calls Him 'Just a Wise Guy'

By the United Press.

Webster, Mass., July 16.—"Der Fuehrer of America" was jailed for 40 minutes today while two "Storm Troopers" and a pro-Fascist Russian count pooled their resources for bail after a "beer hall putsch" failed.

Fritz Kuhn, German-American Bund leader, was confined to a six-by-eight foot cell in the town lockup for "being drunk, swearing and giving a policeman the Bronx cheer."

Kuhn, accompanied by Count Anastase A. Vonsiatsky, founder and president of the Russian National Revolutionary Fascisty Party, and two body guards, was released in $54 bail, which the four managed to raise in small bills and change.

"He was just another wise guy who thought this was a hick town and that he could stage one of them beer hall putsch things and be the dictator in it," Police Chief John C. Templeman said.

"They don't go swearing at police in this town—drunk or sober.

Union Serves Ultimatum on Armour & Co.

Votes to Call Strikes In 17 Plants if Firm Fails to Negotiate

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 16.—Representatives of the Packinghouse Workers Organizing Committee today voted to call a strike at 17 plants of Armour & Co. if the big packing firm declined to negotiate contracts with the C. I. O. union.

Delegates to the national policy convention of the P. W. O. C. adopted a resolution authorizing officers of the group and bargaining committees at the various Armour plants, where the C. I. O. claims a majority of the workers, to sponsor a walkout if they fail to arrange a conference on working agreements.

They also voted to request President Roosevelt to ask Armour & Co. to enter negotiations.

Threaten "Damnedest" Strike

The delegates likewise empowered P. W. O. C. officials to "declare strikes where necessary" in the plants of the other members of the "Big Four" packing concerns—Wilson, Swift, and Cudahy—if they "persist in the same attitude and fail to negotiate."

Van A. Bittner, chiarman of the P. W. O. C., declared the convention's action meant "either joint wage agreements or the damnedest strike you ever saw in this great industry."

Lewis Pledges C. I. O. Aid

Bittner told reporters that, if the C. I. O.'s threat and the appeal for Presidential intervention failed to bring about contract conferences, the only alternative was a strike. No deadline was fixed.

Strike action against independent packers also was authorized. Don Harris, national director of the P. W. O. C. announced formal notice of the convention's strike vote would be sent to Armour & Co. next Tuesday while a delegation of union officers planned to go to Washing-

Senegal Naval Base Will Guard Trade Routes to S. America

By the United Press.

Paris, July 16.—British and French general staffs, taking advantage of the temporary lull in European tension, have quietly arranged for two powerful new air and naval bases, it was learned tonight.

One will be at Dakar, Senegal, on the west coast of Africa, and the other at Tchesme, on the Aegean coast of Turkey, just west of Smyrna.

The staffs have completed coordination of their West African land, sea and air forces around Dakar—African point nearest the Americas—and plan to make it an "African Signapore." Dakar is to become the base for French and British naval and air forces patrolling the South Atlantic in case of war and convoying oil and food ships from the West Indies and South America.

Turkey Gives Consent

The two powers have concluded an agreement with Turkey to rush construction of a formidable naval and air base at the tiny fishing port of Tchesme, to become the main base in the Eastern Mediterranean for air and sea forces of the three powers.

Tchesme lies at the extremity of a mountainous peninsula which extends 50 miles into the sea from Smyrna. French technicians say that physically Tchesme compares in strategic and defense possibilities with Gibraltar. It lies between Italy's Dodecanese Islands and the Dardanelles.

Tyrol Germans Defy Italy To Drive Them From Homes

By Richard C. Hottelet
United Press Staff Correspondent.

Bolzano, Italy, July 16.—Publication after a week of wild rumor of the fact that Germany and Italy have agreed to "aid voluntary repatriation" of South Tyrol residents of German blood has produced a wave of intense suspicion throughout the province.

Scores of Germans throughout the South Tyrol told this reporter that any form of settlement of the minorities problem relying upon voluntary migration of the Germans here seems doomed to failure. The belief is widespread that compulsory measures will be applied "when the uselessness of waiting for the success of voluntary emigration" becomes apparent.

There is a widespread conviction here that this question now has emerged into the open after 20 years of virtual denial that it existed, and that it will be brought to a complete solution one way or another in the near future.

Many natives of German stock believe that a time limit will be set for their own departure after

Norris Urges Cash-Carry Neutrality as Curb on Axis

U. S. Has a 'Moral Right' to Oppose 'Barbarous' Nations, Nebraskan Asserts

By William V. Nesslv.

Fresh pleas for neutrality act revision came yesterday from two sources as Congressional leaders prepared to meet today with President Roosevelt in a conference that may bring early adjournment or prolong the session for additional weeks.

Senator Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, backed the President and Secretary of State Hull in calling for abolition of the mandatory arms embargo, and stated frankly he wanted thus to retard the "barbarous governments" of Germany, Italy and Japan.

The 78-year-old Midwesterner, who voted against United States entry into the World War two decades ago, said in a statement this country had a "moral and legal" right to act with that objective.

The Administration program likewise was indorsed by the Washington committee to revise the neutrality act, which is sponsoring a mass meeting at the Mayflower Hotel tonight to urge repeal of the arms embargo, principal point in the President's program, and "immediate legislation to prevent sending war materials to Japan."

Gillette Favors Embargo

Meanwhile, interest in the possibility of neutrality action centered in proposals for an embargo on supplies needed by Japan to carry on her warfare in China. The movement on Capitol Hill for legislation authorizing such an embargo was waiting on a reply from Secretary Hull to the Foreign Relations Committee's request for an opinion on whether the contemplated action would violate any of this country's treaties with Japan.

An important development in this phase of the neutrality issue came yesterday with announcement by Senator Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, that he favored enactment of the legislation. He said, however, that his decision on the stand he will take in regard to it is in abeyance pending Secretary Hull's reply.

Gillette cast the deciding vote in the Foreign Relations Committee when that group voted, 12 to 11, last week, not to consider neutrality legislation at this session.

Cites Varied Courses

Whether the President plans still to press for his neutrality program and his proposal for a vast lending program on self-liquidating projects, is expected to be revealed at today's conference. Should the neutrality fight be abandoned, the lending program, facing considerable opposition, would remain the chief bar to adjournment around the end of this month.

While Senator Gillette differentiated between the Administration neutrality proposals as aimed at nations with which the United States has friendly relations and the Japanese embargo plan, as directed at a "flagrant violator of treaties," Senator Norris classed

Congress Heads And President Confer Today

May Decide Agenda For Rest of Session; Lending Bill's Fate

By the Associated Press.

Congress leaders will talk over with President Roosevelt today the legislative schedule for the remainder of the session and perhaps receive some advice on whether to press for enactment of the Administration's $2,600,000,00 lending program, regarded by many as the key to adjournment.

Considerable opposition to the lending program has developed and there are reports that it may be sidetracked for the session. Some administration supporters said most of the program could be carried out, in any event, without new legislation.

In brief, the week's legislature program follows:

Senate: Votes at 3 p. m. today on bill to prevent block-booking of movie films; may take up Administration's $2,600,000,000 lending program later in week.

Alien Bill Nears House

House' Legislation to revise patent laws up today; to consider Tuesday or Wednesday bills to require fingerprinting and registration of aliens; votes expected Thursday on Hatch bill to restrict political activity by Federal employes and on resolution for Congressional investigation of National Labor Relations Board.

With most legislators agreed that neutrality is a dead issue at this session, only a final agreement on social security legislation and disposition of the lending program stand in the way of an early windup of the session.

The Senate Banking Committee is expected to report the lending legislation this week, but Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, a member, said he thought material modifications would be made.

Adams said he would object to provisions which would permit the returns from self-liquidating projects to be placed in a revolving fund for further lending.

Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, opposed a provision which would permit the RFC to purchase railway rolling stock and lease it to the carriers. He contended that direct loans to the railroads would be better.

Representative Wolcott (Republican), of Michigan, senior minority member of the House Banking Cimmittee, contended the legislation's chances improved the closer Congress came to adjournment.

Calls Program Subterfuge

"I believe the Democrats will vote for it just to get it out of the way," he said. "It's a hard measure for them to oppose."

Wolcott denounced the whole program as "a subterfuge" to let the Government borrow money for its own purposes outside the Federal debt limit.

He said House Minority Leader Martin (Republican), Massachusetts, probably would call a meeting of the Republicans for either Tuesday or Wednesday to decide upon a course of action. Martin already has voiced his opposition to the legislation.

Chairman Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, of the Senate inance committee said a joint Senate-House committee would meet this morning in an effort io tron out differences in the social security legislation, as approved by the two houses.

Harrison said the chief points of difference involved Senate amendments requiring that States contribute a minimum of $10 toward the payment made to each individual for old-age assistance, and the Senate-inserted provision that the Federal Government should contribute two-thirds of the payment up to $15.

The legislation generally increases old-age insurance payments and freezes payroll taxes for such benefits at their present level for the next three years.

Thomas Assails McNutt as Near-Fascist

Letter to President Warns on Partisan Policies, Ruthlessness

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 16.—Norman Thomas, the Socialist leader, made public today a copy of a letter to President Roosevelt which asserted that "the closest vigilance" would be necessary to prevent Paul McNutt, the new Federal Security Administrator, from "discrediting by partisanship the whole machinery set up by the security legislation.

"Attention has already been publicly called to Mr. McNutt's great skill and ruthlessness in organizing public employes in the State of Indiana into a political machine," Thomas wrote. "His Two Per Cent Club" is well known.

"What is not equally well known is the fact that from the State of Indiana I, and doubtless others, have heard specific complaints that Mr. McNutt, as Governor, used or permitted his political machine to use such pension legislation as Indiana then had entirely in the interest of himself and his political party. Is that now to be done on a grand scale in Washington?"

Thomas declared also that McNutt has used in Indiana a "doctrine of military law" which was "a far closer approach to Fascist contempt for individual rights than anything done by that great Democratic politician, Frank Hague, the boss of Jersey City."

Cotton Warehousemen Peril Rubber Barter With Britain

Fearing Loss of Profits on Storage of 1,000,000 Bales, Southerners Object to Provision for Grading at Seaboard Points

By the Associated Press

Fulfilment of the agreement between the United States and Great Britain for exchange of cotton and rubber for war reserves may be delayed indefinitely, if a proposal being considered in Congress is adopted, some Congressional leaders declared yesterday.

The agreement, signed in London June 23, provides for exchange of 600,000 bales of surplus American cotton for 175,000,000 pounds of British rubber.

The American Government cannot carry out its end of the bargain until Congress authorizes disposal of surplus cotton now held under loans made to growers. Legislation granting such authority, passed by the Senate, is pending before the House Banking and Currency Committee.

Warehousemen Blamed

That committee is considering an amendment which, Congressional leaders declare, would not permit the Government to meet terms of the barter agreement except at considerable extra expense.

Urged by warehousemen in the interior part of the cotton belt—where virtually all surplus cotton is stored—the amendment would require that cotton to be delivered to Great Britain be classified and graded where it now is located.

Administration spokesmen explain that the agreement requires such grading be done at Gulf of Mexico and Atlantic Coast seaports from which it is to be shipped. They say the British government would not accept grading done elsewhere.

Fear Loss of Revenue

It has been the Government's plan to move 1,000,000 bales of the loan cotton from interior warehouses to seaports, where 600,000 bales of the class and grade requested by Great Britain would be selected. The balance would be retained at the ports for possible disposal under other agreements that might be made.

Interior warehousemen were said to oppose this plan because it would deprive them of storage revenue now being received on the cotton. It has been costing the Government $45,000,000 a year for storage of loan stocks which now total 11,250,000 bales.

Congressional leaders said that if the House adopted the proposed amendment, there might be a deadlock with the Senate with the result that nothing would be done at this session.

Social Security Coverage Rises 435,004 in June

The Social Security Board reported yesterday 435,004 new social security account numbers were issued in June, bringing the total to 44,727,520.

An increase of nearly one-third over the number issued in May was attributed by the board in part to the appearance in the labor field of young men and women just leaving school and to requests from persons not previously covered by old-age insurance provisions of the program.

June applications outnumbered those of May in all States except New York, North Dakota, South Dakota, Arkansas and Nevada. There was a decrease also in Hawaii.

The number of accounts issued in June and the total for individual States to date include: Maryland, 4,409 and 632,386; West Virginia, 5,312 and 585,876; District of Columbia, 3,174 and 286,030.

Cowboy Convict Manhunt Spreads To Chicago Area

Chicago, July 16 (AP).—Search for Jack Russell, escaped convict wanted for one murder and two kidnapings, turned to western suburbs today after a woman motorist reported to police she saw the Oklahoma fugitive.

Russell, 39, a former cowboy, was reported seen near Marley, Ill., last night. Frank Mech, a State policeman, said he chased the fleeing convict several miles before his motorcycle ran out of gasoline.

State and Federal authorities are seeking Russell in the brutal slaying of Billy S. Hamilton, 23, of Arkansas City, Kan., whose body was found in a ditch near Ringwood, Ill., Friday.

Russell also is wanted for the kidnaping of Bud Egholm, 23, of Oklahoma City, Okla., in Kenosha, Wis., Friday night and the kidnaping of R. E. Brown, a McAlister, Okla., photographer, shortly after the convict fled from a prison guard Tuesday.

Widened and Improved Highways Spur Modernization of Arlington Business Houses

Construction work on the underpass under Key Bridge at Rosslyn for the continuation of George Washington Memorial highway is progressing rapidly. The project is scheduled for completion in December

Road Developments Providing Quick and Easy Access to Washington Followed by Wave of New Stores and Office Buildings

In order to carry the increasing traffic load in Arlington County, Wilson boulevard has been widened, Courthouse road and Washington boulevard improved and North Tenth street opened to connect with the Lee boulevard.

This provides easy access into Washington over the Memorial Bridge.

With road improvements, the business section through Clarendon extending from the American Legion Memorial Monument to North Highland street is fast responding to the modernistic trend of the day.

Following the construction of many new business houses and office buildings in the county, practically all of the small store buildings are being completely modernized and enlarged and many old landmarks are being razed to provide for new buildings.

Arlington County now can boast of a modern $123,271 central postoffice building erected by the Federal Government and a new telephone building constructed by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Virginia, with complete dial facilities, at a cost of $1,000,000.

In addition, the Rosslyn Gas Co. located in Clarendon, recently completed a new building, and the Virginia Public Service Co. has moved to much larger quarters in the building formerly used as the Clarendon postoffice.

3 Miners Slain In Harlan's Labor Strife

246 Men and Women Arrested After Battle With Guardsmen

By the Associated Press

Harlan, Ky., July 16.—Death of the second miner wounded in a "pitched battle" between union mine pickets and National Guardsmen, knifing of a nonunion miner and three fatal shootings, one attributed to current labor disorders, marked the week-end in Harlan's strifetorn soft coal field.

Daniel Noe, 39, died in a hospital today of a bullet wound in the abdomen. Dock Caldwell, a union miner, was the first fatality. Capt. John Hanbery, of the militia, wounded seriously in the firing, was reported improving.

John Collins, 32, who said he was a nonunion miner employed by the Draper Mining Co. at Draper, reported to National Guard headquarters late today that he was attacked by five men last night near his home and beaten and knifed.

Collins told the militia when the men came upon him one of them asked:

"Why haven't you joined the union?"

Collins said, "I told them I reckoned I didn't want to."

Then he said they started to beat him and one of the five stuck a knife in his side. He was reported not in a serious condition.

While authorities held three men for questioning in the gun deaths, Harlan looked hopefully today toward a "neutral" Knoxville, Tenn., hotel room where "peace" conferences between operators and the C. I. O. United Miners Workers were in progress.

Hearings are scheduled tomorrow for 246 men and women arrested after the skirmish last Wednesday between pickets and guardsmen.

Willie Fee, 36, one of the men Brig. Gen. Ellerbe Carter, militia commander, said signed warrants charging "banding and confederating" against 233 persons, was held without charges in the fatal shooting of Bill Roberts, 35, idle union miner, last night at nearby Stanfill.

Two Verda miners were held in the deaths of Frank Bryant, 30, miner, and Bradley Simpson, 25, truck driver, shot at Wallins Creek last night in what Carter described as "a drunken brawl" having "no connection" with the labor situation.

Woll Asks Subsidy Tariff Barrier on Japan and Russia

Mathew Woll, president of America's Wage Earners' Protective Conference, asked the Treasury Department yesterday to impose countervailing duties on imports from Japan and Russia similar to those applied to Germany and Italy.

Woll made public a letter to Secretary Morgenthau naming those four nations and asking the department collect "proper countervailing duties on the imports of subsidized products from all foreign countries during the past five years."

Countervailing duties are applied to increase the normal duty by an amount equal to the subsidy paid by a foreign government on any particular export.

Japan Embargo Held Barred By 1911 Treaty

Hull's Aides Believe U. S. War Supplies Ban Would Violate Pact

By the Associated Press.

Some State Department experts believe that Senator Pittman's proposal to embargo the shipment of certain raw materials to Japan would violate the 1911 treaty of commerce and navigation with that country.

This probably will be the nature of the Department's reply to a request of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for an opinion on whether the Pittman proposal would be in accordance with the treaty.

The experts point out that violation of one treaty does not authorize violation of another. Japan, they say, without the shadow of a doubt has violated the Nine-Power Treaty of 1922 under which nations guaranteed to respect the independence and territorial integrity of China.

Several Clauses Questioned

Taking the position that a wrong is not righted by another wrong, they contend that this does not give the United States the right to violate the treaty of 1911, which contains several articles that bear on the points raised by the Pittman bill.

One is article 4 which says: "There shall be between the territories of the two high contracting parties reciprocal freedom of commerce and navigation. The citizens or subjects of each of the contracting parties, equally with the citizens or subjects of the most-favored nation, shall have liberty freely to come with their ships and cargoes to all places, ports and rivers in the territories of the other which are or may be opened to foreign commerce, subject always to the laws of the country to which they thus come."

Article five, paragraph three, says: "Nor shall any prohibition be enforced by either country on the importation or exportation of any article from or to the territories of the other which shall not equally extend to the like article imported from or exported to any other country."

Senator Gillette Differs

In other words, if the United States is to abide by the terms of the 1911 treaty and also desires to embargo the shipment of raw materials to Japan it must also embargo shipment of the same materials to all nations.

Japan's violation of the Nine-Power Treaty, the experts say, might give the United States only the right to denounce the same treaty. However, this is something the State Department does not want to do.

Senator Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, yesterday disclosed that he had expressed the opinion in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee meeting that the United States could not be said to have violated the 1911 treaty by embargo action because of the terms of the subsequent Nine-Power Pact, signed in 1922.

Under this latter treaty, he pointed out, the other signatories agreed that none of them would enter into any other pacts which would in any way abrogate the principles set out in the Nine-Power Treaty, which pledged the nations to respect the territorial rights of China and not to restrain the rights or freedom of other nations there.

The two kept afloat and shortly were picked up by a Standard Oil tanker out of Baltimore. They later were transferred to the cruiser of Capt. C. G. Wilson, of Catonsville, who was carrying a fishing party. Wilson had noticed an icebox floating in the water and had been circling the area in belief that a boat had been overturned.

Darby, a Baltimore painter, was crabbing in a boat with Joseph Pirraci, 19, also of Baltimore, by the Severn River bridge. Darby, according to police, was pulling up the anchor when he either lost his balance or fainted and plunged into the water. The body was recovered in five feet of water a half hour later.

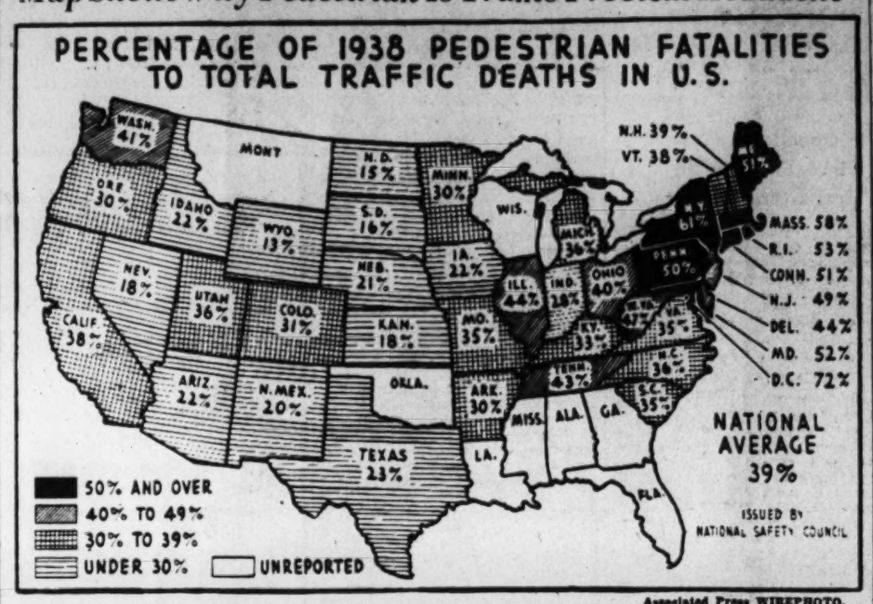
U.S. Dancer Absent From Nazi Show

Munich, July 16. (AP).—Petite Miriam Verne, smiling blue-eyed Pittsburgher, whose dancing captivated Fuehrer Hitler, let the Nazis down tonight.

She failed to arrive here for a scheduled performance in "Merry Widow," Franz Lehar's light opera which is part of the German art week program.

Arrangements had been made for her to fly from Italy at Hitler's request. Theater attendants said they had received no word from Miss Verne regarding her failure to appear. She had danced before Hitler several times.

Map Shows Why Pedestrian Is Traffic Problem Headache



Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

A glance at this map, says the National Safety Council, shows why the pedestrian is regarded as a major headache in America's traffic situation. Last year three of every five persons killed in traffic accidents in American cities were pedestrians, and in rural areas the ratio was 26 out of every 100. Figures on the map show percentage by States of pedestrian fatalities to the total traffic deaths. Wyoming was low, the District of Columbia high and told of the suspcions that the dead man might be Leonhardt, insisted he was alive and asked how she could prevent needless trips of the family to Waldorf.

While Mrs. Leonhardt, Mrs. Winston and the others were at Waldorf, Saturday, another phone call was made to the Winston home, answered by 18-year-old Marion Winston. After speaking with someone she did not know, the Winston girl recognized Leonhard's voice. He said he had been "very sick" but would return home soon.

Mrs. Leonhardt and Mrs. Winston yesterday tried vainly to discover how they had made the wrong identification.

Said Mrs. Winston, "That man down there must be Leonhardt's double. They say everyone has a double and that must be his."

She said Mrs. Leonhardt asked if there were a wart on a certain finger of the body. There was. Next, Mrs. Leonhardt asked if there was evidence on a leg of an old removal of a cyst. A small hole was discovered in the right spot. Finally, Mrs. Leonhardt asked how many vaccination marks were to be found, and was told there were two. She said her husband had been vaccinated twice.

Doubtful that her husband's hair was as white as that of the corpse, she was assured she had no idea of what he might have been through in the two months since she had last seen him and that his hair might well have turned white, Mrs. Winston said.

"Finally," Mrs. Winston continued, "Mrs. Leonhardt saw his feet and said there was an expression about them she could never mistake. She said she had taken care of her husband's feet so often that she knew them perfectly."

Yesterday morning Leonhardt, by this time in Washington, read accounts of his supposed indentification and immediately presented himself at the nearest police station. Mrs. Leonhardt's two sisters were notified and, arriving at headquarters where Leonhardt had been taken, assured police the man was their brother-in-law.

At Gallinger, he told reporters that he had used money from the sale of some property to finance his trip.

Sure Man Was Murdered

Meantime, Waldorf, Md., authorities again were faced with solving the mysterious murder of the man whose body was taken from the river near Marshall Hall. With cuts and bruises about the head, the body contained no water in the lungs. State and county coroners agreed the unidentified man was dead before he entered the water. Charles County Sheriff Robert V. Cooksey is convinced the man was murdered.

Sheriff Cooksey said yesterday that prints of the dead man's fingers had not been identified by the Federal Bureau of Investigation or in Army or Navy files. He added his only clue was a pair of eye glasses bearing the name of a Baltimore optician and a straw hat purchased in Alexandria.

Cooksey said he believed he could only wait until someone appeared to identify the body. He said the Leonhardts had no connection with the case.

"There is no doubt whatsoever that this is murder," Cooksey added.

in the lockup and like it.'

"He shut right up after that and I stuck him in the cell where we had three local boys who thought they could swear and yell around the streets. That showed him I wasn't playing favorites.

"Then I kicked his two storm troopers or whatever they were out in the street and sent the count along with them. 'Get out on the sidewalk,' was what I said, 'the air's better out there.'"

Vonsiatsky, once described by a European commentator as "the future Russian Hitler," has repeatedly denied rumors that he maintains an arsenal with great quantities of high explosives at his Thompson home, and that he has $50,000,000 of his wife's fortune at his disposal.

Revenge, however, has been admittedly his goal since he saw his father slain by the Soviet government. Most of his party's activities are carried on from the Thompson "Fortress," from which the Fascist, the party's official newspaper, is distributed.

Warrant for Calling Card

Told that a servant in Vonsiatsky's home had said, "Mr. Kuhn does not live here, and we have no idea where to reach him," Templeman said:

"Well, he'll be in court tomorrow morning or we'll know where to reach him with a warrant."

Kuhn was seized after he and the count left a cafe and got in an argument with Policeman Henry Plasse.

According to police, Kuhn and Vonsiatsky had been visiting with friends in Webster and had visited a cafe.

"I stopped them when I saw them about to get into an expensive foreign-made automobile that I thought to be the count's," Plasse said. "I didn't think that they were in condition to drive."

An argument ensued and Plasse took both Kuhn and Vonsiatsky to the police station. There, after a conference with Chief Templeman, it was decided that Kuhn should drive.

Kuhn, according to police, stepped briskly from the station and jumped behind the wheel with the count close behind. As he started the car, he allegedly shouted a volley of profanity at the police and particularly at Plasse who was standing on the sidewalk.

Jumping on the running board, Officer Plasse ordered Kuhn back to police headquarters where he formally charged the Bund leader with drunkeness and the use of profane language.

Upon their arrival at the station house, Kuhn and the count broke into a torrent of excited German, and according to Templeman, it was a difficult task to steer them back to the English language.

WPA Hours Fight Waning in House

time, of political retaliation against Congressmen who approved the new provisions. These require WPA workers to work a minimum of 130 hours a month to earn subsistence wages.

Speaking in Chicago, John L. Lewis, C. I. O. president, said Congress had "cut the vitals out of the WPA program" and that the Democratic majority must share the responsibility with "the tory Republicans." He added:

"In the coming political campaigns, we shall want to know from any party or candidate who seeks labor support just what program they will advance to give people work."

In an interview earlier, Lewis said, however, that the C. I. O. did not plan any demonstrations and that instances of participation by its members in the WPA strike were "marginal cases."

A. F. of L. building trades unions showed no signs of weakening on their stand that they had every right to strike.

James L. McDevitt, president of the Philadelphia Building Trades Council, declared Congress' "refusal" to rescind the new wage regulations "constitutes a lockout" by the Government.

He ordered the council's 3,000 members to remain away from work on 41 WPA projects today and warned that union rules require expulsion of any members who report to a "lockout" employer.

20,000 Dismissed

While most WPA offices and projects throughout the country were closed for the Sunday holiday, officials in southern Illinois said 5,500 dismissal notices had been sent to workers in 10 counties there.

In Washington, National WPA officials said they had no further reports on the situation and would open no mail until this morning.

Week-end press dispatches indicated, however, that at least 20,000 had been dismissed of the estimated 100,000 taking part in the walkouts.

The Justice Department at Washington also said it had no information on the progress of investigations in several cities into possible violation of Federal statues by strikers.

Justice Department officials said they had not received a request that Mayor George A. Leach, of Minneapolis, said he dispatched asking Federal "co-operation" in handling the situation in his city where the strike led to fatal rioting.

Soviet Planes Raid Manchu Railway Town

Dawn Attack Carried Far Over Border, 7 Casualties Reported

By the Associated Press

Hsinking, Manchukuo, July 16.—A threat of a retaliatory Japanese air raid upon Soviet Russia's Siberian air base at Blagoveschensk was made in diplomatic protests today following the bombing of Furorujis (Fularki) by Soviet fliers.

The Soviet raid came before dawn in the deepest thrust yet made into Manchukuo territory in the border warfare that has been waged spasmodically since early in May.

Furorujis is about 40 miles southwest of the important Manchukuo center of Tsitsihar and on the main railway line between Harbin and Hailar. It is almost 400 miles east of the outer Mongolian border where most of the fighting has taken place.

Aside from the fact the raid was the third within a week by Soviet planes on railroad centers deep in Manchukuo territory, significance was seen in the threat of retaliation against Blagoveschensk, Soviet base 500 miles northeast of the bombed town.

Unofficial observers believed the Russian planes had launched their raid from that point, and had demonstrated the vulnerability of the Japanese rail line by the ability of the Russians to attack from two directions.

Seven persons were wounded and two buildings destroyed by the eight bombs that were dropped. Eight bombs struck the railway station.

Strong protests were made both at Ulan Bator, Urga capital of Soviet-protected outer Mongolia, and to the Soviet consul at Harbin in Manchukuo.

The Japanese yesterday reported Soviet planes last Monday and Thursday raided Halunarshan, important Japanese military base and railhead in northwestern Manchukuo, about 125 miles from Khalka River battlefront.

The raid recalled repeated statements by Japanese military authorities in Shanghai that a Soviet-Japanese war might result if the Russians attacked important objectives in Manchukuo.

Furoruji is a shipping center for agricultural products and has a number of industrial plants.

Domei, Japanese news agency, reported that the Harbin Soviet consulate was told that the raid "differed radically from the border affairs" and that responsibility for further developments "will rest with the Soviet Union."

Poles Await Gen. Ironside

Warsaw, July 16 (AP).—Maj. Gen. William Edmund Ironside, inspector general of British overseas forces, will arrive here tomorrow for a visit viewed by Poles as an important new step in tying the British-French-Polish alliance even closer.

An official news agency said Gen. Ironside would spend four or five days in Poland and that his mission is "to co-ordinate the military strength of Britain and her allied countries on the European continent."

Gen. Ladislas Sikorski, one of Poland's outstanding generals and an internationally known expert on military strategy, wrote today in the Warsaw newspper Kurjer Warzarcki that Germany could be expected to make a new effort bout August 15 to create a "local war" with Poland.

"Germany,' he wrote," does not want a general war. She has been seeking the softest spot in the peace front. For some time the Germans believed that Danzig would be this soft spot. But today they know they have underestimated their opponents. Germany's new effort will be in some way to isolte Poland in a local war.

"This local war, according to German estimates, would last about three months and finish in a German victory. Unfortunately for Germany such calculations are wrong and would be destroyed by the invincible defense of Poland and her western allies."

Army, Navy to Ask Congress For 1.6 Billion Defense Fund

Request, to Be Made at Next Session, Virtually Ready Now as Military Units Prepare for Maintenance, Expansion Needs

By the Associated Press

The War and Navy Departments now are drafting requests to the next Congress rivaling the "emergency" national defense appropriations of the current session.

The Army and Navy together, authoritative Administration sources reported yesterday, will require $1,600,000,000 more for the 12 months opening July 1, merely to maintain the augmented land, sea and air forces Congress voted and to carry on the expansion already authorized.

The Army, in addition, has projected an increase in the number of troops and is expected to urge the construction of more warplanes. The Navy expects to continue its expansion by starting the third and fourth 45,000-ton battleships, along with a score or more lesser craft.

The War Department's actual budget estimates already have been completed, in tentative form, and the Navy's are being shaped.

At President Roosevelt's recommendation, Congress at this session voted the Army and Navy nearly $1,800,000,000, to expand the Army Air Corps to 5,500 planes, reinforce other arms and to continue the billion-dollar fleet expansion authorized in 1938.

Much of the total was authority to enter contracts, which must be paid off in cash next year.

Provided with a record $773,049,151 for the fiscal year which started this month, the Navy has served notice a $100,000,000 increase will be required to carry on the replacement of obsolescent warships and add others already approved.

The present appropriation included $63,000,000 to start 14 new air bases, which presumably will not be duplicated, but new sums will be required to modernize five battleships and for other purposes.

Unable to estimate accurately in advance the outlays on warships, the Navy has been forced year after year to ask for deficiency appropriations. Naval funds for the past fiscal year thus were increased in May $36,669,450.

By comparison with the prospective request for next session, the Navy spent $963,449,000 in 1921, when the fleet also was being expanded on the eve of the Washington Naval Limitation Conference.

Naval quarters said there was no reason to doubt funds would be asked to start work on two more 45,000-ton battleships such as the Iowa and the New Jersey, whose keels will be laid in the next few months.

Of 101 vessels of all sizes building now or contracted for, eight are battleships.

Military circles anticipate a War Department request for an appropriation exceeding $700,000,000, contrasted with the $961,293,102 made available this session to the Army for upkeep and expansion. Of this, $412,000,000 was to expand the Air Corps and meet deficiencies in war material.

Carried into next session will be $157,504,468 in unpaid bills in contract obligations due.

Change Policy, Japanese Army Chief Tells British

Shanghai, July 16 (AP).—A fresh warning to the British to alter their "pro-Chiang Kai-Shek policy" was issued in Tientsin today by Lieut. Gen. Masaharu Honma, Japanese army commander in the North China port.

He declared the negotiations in Tokyo to settle the Tientsin blockade dispute would end in prompt rupture unless the British agreed to change their policy.

British Fascist Chief Speaks to 25,000

London, July 16 (AP).—Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of British Fascists, advocated a program which he contended would "bring peace in our time and our children's time," if offered to Germany.

Guarded by police, Mosley entered "Earls Court"—London exhibition center—amid a fanfare of trumpets and spoke in a darkened hall from a spotlighted rostrum 40 feet above some 25,000 listeners.

Britain Plans Ministry for Food Fleet

Lord Runciman to Direct; All Ships Would Be Controlled

By the United Press.

London, July 16.—Britain tonight was understood to have completed plans for establishing a ministry of Marine which, in event of war, would be charged with feeding the British Isles from abroad.

The vital ministry, under Lord Runciman, would control all shipping, ship-building and marine engineering. Every British merchant ship of whatever size would be classified according to the duties it could perform best.

A large fleet of tramp steamers would be concentrated bringing grain and meats to Britain from South America, the United States and Canada.

Political Battle Threatens

London, July 16 (AP). — Prime Minister Chamberlain's refusal to reorganize his cabinet threatened today to result in a serious political controversy.

Seriousness of the situation was indicated by editorials or leading articles in nearly every London newspaper.

The Sunday Express displayed a front-page banner line saying the campaign to put Winston Churchill in the cabinet was a "move to drive the premier out of office." It added a headline that "Mr. Chamberlain must either destroy his opponents or resign."

Churchill, Conservative Party member but often a sharply-spoken critic of the Government, was First Lord of the Admiralty at the outbreak of the World War and subsequently held several other cabinet posts.

Observer Scores Chamberlain

Lord Astor's Sunday Observer, which usually supports the government, took Chamberlain to task for refusing to bring Churchill into the cabinet.

It described Churchill's exclusion as "repugnant to the average man's notions of national common sense and personal fair play."

The Sunday Times featured an article by Lord Elton on the editorial page entitled "Keep An Unbroken National Front."

The article referred to labor party leader Clement R. Attlee, Liberal Sir Archibald Sinclair and David Lloyd George as "Mischief Makers" and said "recent propaganda against the prime minister has been both inopportune and unfair."

Lord Elton continued that Churchill undoubtedly would be brought into the cabinet in war time, but that meanwhile, the nation should accept Chamberlain's judgment "if he holds that the time for it is not yet."

Graphic Backs Premier

The tabloid Sunday Graphic also took this view, saying Chamberlain "does not set his face against change, but refuses to be stampeded from outside."

The Sunday Dispatch carried an editorial page article entitled "What Winston Churchill will do if he gets back into the cabinet."

It said:

"The country as a whole is united in its resolve to retain Mr. Chamberlain and the national government. A large section of opinion would like to see Mr. Churchill in that government, too. They see these two men as pillars of the state."

Tyrol Germans Defy Expulsion

expulsion of citizens of the Reich is completed.

But whether emigration is voluntary or compulsory, this reporter was told repeatedly that the vast majority of Tyroleans will refuse to leave their land, which has been theirs as long as history recalls.

Casting future glances over his shoulder for "Italian agents," one farmer who wrests a bare existence for his family and two cows from an unfertile slope of the jagged Dolomites, said:

"I will never go of my own free will. They may come and lead me away, but I will come back to my home. I don't care what they promise me elsewhere. I belong here. I am no criminal and I have done nothing that I should leave my land."

This reporter, however, was told everywhere that t he German peasants have no organization in a strict sense. Nor was there a shred of evidence that their attitude was encouraged by Germany. In the Tyrol there is no Henlein or Forster (Nazi leaders in the Sudetenland and Danzig).

As one old German put it, to the approving nods of others present: "We 220,000 of German blood do not need uniforms, banners and mass meetings to keep our national identity alive. That would be just risking our necks. Our language is our badge and our tradition is our banner."

Prolonge efforts of the Fascit authorities in Rome to Italianize these peasants have made little impression.

This reporter was told that no prohibition by the Italian government had been able to prevent the sudden appearance of large flaming swastikas at night on almost unscalable mountain peaks.

Hitler Ignores Danzig Issue At Art Exhibit

Poland Is Warned England Can't Aid Her, in Nazi Press

By the Associated Press

Munich, Germany, July 16.—Fuehrer Hitler opened the German National Art Exhibition today with a 15-minute address notable because it contained no mention of the tense Danzig situation or any other political question.

The Fuehrer was content to review German art and to describe Nazi contributions to it, which, he said, show that "the National Socialist star of art is shining in the heavens."

The only political tinge to the festivities came in the introduction of Hitler by Nazi District Leader Adolf Wagner, who said the art celebration "grows in the same measure and tempo with which the Fuehrer augments the Reich."

"This year the exhibits of Sudetenland, Prague, Bohemia, Moravia and Memel are here," he said. "We do not need to project German culture into these lands; it has been there for centuries.

"The Fuehrer has brought it home again with land and men."

Although Hitler made no mention of politics, a political atmosphere pervaded the occasion. Almost all high Nazi officials were present except Marshal Goering, who was on a yacht trip.

The question of Danzig, which Hitler has promised to return to Germany, gathered momentum through the continued presence of Danzig Leader Albert Forster and the statement by a well-informed source that "the German Reich holds that the time has come to free German-Polish relations from this problem."

Rudolph Kircher, editor of the Frankfurter Zeitung and close to the foreign office, made that assertion in his newspaper, adding that "the less the English or others mix in it the better."

He said it was the duty of England to tell Poland: "In the long run there is nothing left for you but—even under sacrifices—to come to an understanding with Germany and through a policy of loyal co-operation with the Reich secure a guarantee for your independence and welfare which we English in the long run, even if we wanted to, could not provide."

Kircher said Danzig lies in a space whose destiny is not controlled by England, but by Germany and Russia. Germany, he declared, had "not only the right but the strength" to demand a solution.

[Unless some important alteration in international circumstances occurs beforehand, the German dictator is expected to withhold further oratorical fire on the Danzig issue until next month after the German harvest has been gathered, according to International News Service. He is due to speak at Tannenberg, East Prussia, on August 27, after journeying there aboard a warship.—Editor's note.]

The authoritative Berlin-Rome-Tokyo, published under the patronage of Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop and edited by Dr. Paul Schmidt, of the foreign office, like Kircher, underscored Germany's claim on Danzig.

"For us and our friends," the publication said, "Danzing is de facto German, and will one day be a de jure German city. Speeches, articles and diplomatic missions do not change that at all."

Japanese Apologize to U. S., Britain

Express 'Regret' for Periling American Gunboat in Air Raid

By International News Service.

Tokyo, July 16.—Japan today apologized to the United States and Great Britain for the landing of Japanese air bombs near American and British warships in the Yangtze River in a raid July 6 on the Chinese capital of Chungkiang.

The apologies were made by Japanese naval authorities in notes to the American and British embassies in Tokyo.

The note to the United States expressed "regret" over the fact that bombs landed in proximity to the American gunboat Tutuila. To Britain the Japanese apologized for the fact that bombs landed all around the British gunboat Falcon, causing some damage to the vessel for which Japan offered to compensate Britain.

This apology somewhat alleviated the tension hanging over Anglo-Japanese conferences which already have approached a deadlock on procedure, despite the fact that actual negotiations to solve the problem created by the Japanes army blockade of the Tientsin Anglo-French concessions have not yet begun.

"New Order" an Issue

According to informed Japanese circles, Foreign Minister Arita in his first talk with British Ambassador Craigie yesterday suggested that the first item on the agenda should be a general discussion seeking to bring into line the policies of Japan and Britain with respect to China. After that, Arita was said to have proposed, the specific issues surrounding the Tientsin blockade should be taken up.

Japan apparently seeks to elicit from Britain at the outset some form of recognition of Japan's "new order" in the Far East, acknowledgement of which would involve a fundamental alteration of British foreign policy.

The British Ambassador was understood to have told Arita his government had instructed him to confine the conference to the local questions pertaining to the Tientsin siege.

British Soldier Slain

Tientsin, China, July 16 (AP).—British military authorities reported today that J. W. Tomlinson, a private of the Durham Light Infantry, died yesterday from unexplained gunshot wounds received Friday.

Tomlinson, shot in the abdomen, was found Friday night by a French soldier about a mile from the Shanhaikwan barracks where a Durham infantry detachment is summering.

A Japanese-sponsored Chinese newspaper reported, meanwhile, that a Tientsin native "supreme anti-British committee" had ordered Chinese clerks, constables and police officers employed by the Japanese-blockaded British concession's municipal council to resign immediately.

Saying he can "see no reason why we should get into the war, if it comes, and I would take no step nor do any act that would draw us in," he added:

"I have no sympathy with Hitler, Mussolini or Japan. The conduct of these three nations is barbarous, indefensible and inhuman. Anything we have a moral right to do under international law that would prohibit or retard these barbarous governments from carrying on their inhuman warfare we ought to do. There are several things we have a moral and legal right to do.

"We can provide without any nation taking offense that we shall not lend any money to any of the belligerents. We can provide that any merchandise or material purchased in America, to be shipped to any of the belligerents, must be paid for in cash, and that title to such property must pass before the property leaves our shores.

Would Hamper Axis

"We can prohibit American ships from engaging in this traffic. We can prohibit American citizens from traveling on any of the ships of the belligerents.

"When the war begins, Japan will be united with Mussolini and Hitler. Her attitude in Asia toward England and France demonstrates that she wants a quarrel and wants to bring on war.

"The practical working out of such a plan as I have outlined will be injurious to Hitler, Mussolini and Japan, because they will not be in command of the seas and will not be able to come to our shores to make purchases, even if they have the money to do so.

"This will have a tendency to interfere seriously with the ability of Hitler, Mussolini and Japan to carry on their unholy and cruel warfare. It will have a tendency, I think a strong tendency, to prevent them from beginning a world war, because they will know in advance they will not be able to get any supplies in America and that their enemies will be able to do so.

"On the other hand, if it is known that the enemies of Hitler and Mussolini will not be able to buy any material from America, it will be one of the strongest inducements for Hitler and Mussolini to commence their war of conquest."

The Washington Committee to Revise the Neutrality Act, in advance of tonight's meeting, said in a statement:

"While this arms embargo remains in force, aggressor powers rejoice and prepare further attacks on world peace and on American security . . .

"The duty of all Americans is clear. We must support the President and the Secretary of State in their efforts to make America more secure by placing American policy plainly on the side of resistance to aggression.

"At the same time, we must press for immediate legislation to prevent sending war materials to Japan, whose leaders are using American supplies to make war first on the Chinese people, eventually on democracy everywhere."

The statement was signed by the Rev. Ernest A. Debordenave, D. Mortimer Graves, Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mrs. Esther Brunauer, the Rev. John Rustin, Mr. and Mrs Arthur Clarendon Smith, Julius I. Peyser, Mrs. M. O. Lorenz, Mortimer Riemer, Dudley Babcock, Mrs. Basil Manly and Mrs. J. Fred Essary.

"Grapes Of Wrath"

John Steinbeck's recently published "Grapes of Wrath," depicting the plight of the migrants, is a best seller. Many thousands of people throughout the country are reading the book and discussing the problem it illuminates. But comparatively little is being done to help the tens of thousands of families who have left their former homes and are adrift in a country that no longer has free land to offer them.

These people are not vagrants, nor beggars. They are an integral part of the enormous unemployment problem which America is facing today. Most of them were forced off the land by a combination of droughts, dust storms, mechanization of agriculture, and general economic conditions. Although the Western movement, and especially that toward California, is the most spectacular, an analysis of families receiving transient relief in 1935 showed that every State both received and contributed migrants.

Because of its interstate nature, it is generally admitted that the problem is one which the Federal Government must help solve. Federal relief was granted the transient unemployed in 1933, but was terminated two years later when it was believed that all needy employable people would be taken care of by WPA. Now, according to a report to the President by WPA Administrator Harrington, special legislation is needed to meet the crying needs of these people.

In addition to the help that existing Federal agencies could grant in the way of housing, medical aid and distribution both of food surpluses and information on employment, Col. Harrington advised legislation along three lines. They are the resettlement of migrants who can become self-supporting in their new locations; return of those migrants who are willing to resume residence in their State of origin, and assistance in establishing them there; and lastly the resettlement of others in areas where employment suited to their abilities is most likely to be found.

Instead of keeping migrants on the road, efforts should be made to incorporate them into communities. As it is, many people have been caught between the devil and the deep. They find already overcrowded labor markets at their destination. At the same time they are ineligible for relief. As transients they cannot vote, and yet most have lost their legal residence in States from which they came. Though citizens of a democracy, they are unable to bring pressure to bear on legislative assemblies. Certain groups have fought even Federal aid for homeless families on the ground that it would attract more people to various favorite areas.

But these men and women are not moving in search of relief. Apparently they are trying to avoid it. Their object is to find work in a community where they can become self-supporting. In this sense, they are belated pioneers.

On a limited scale the Farm Security Administration is easing the hardships of migratory workers, both through the maintenance of camps and the granting of direct financial aid. But Congress has given their plight altogether too little attention.

Employe Elections

A precedent of considerable significance was established by the National Labor Relations Board last week when it ordered an election among employes of the Cudahy Packing Co. of Denver. Two unions represented in the plant, one an affiliate of the C. I. O. and the other an independent, will compete for votes. In a later order the board called for an election in an Armour & Co. plant at Oklahoma City, where only one union is seeking to be designated as the collective bargaining agency for the employes.

It has been customary in cases of this sort for the board to certify employe representatives without an election. When a union has been able to show, through membership cards or other valid evidence, that it represents a majority of the employes in a collective bargaining unit, the board has considered elections to be unnecessary. It is now "persuaded by experience," however, that collective bargaining negotiations will be more satisfactorily conducted "if all disagreement between the parties regarding the wishes of the employes has been as far as possible eliminated."

Presumably this will mean more frequent resort to elections, even in cases where only one union seeks certification. That policy has much to commend it. In addition to eliminating doubt as to the employes' wishes, an election by secret ballot should discourage coercive tactics on the part of newly organized unions. There may be substantial differences between the wishes of employes as expressed in secret ballots and as reflected by union petitions or even membership cards.

These rulings may be set down, therefore, as an indication of the NLRB's struggle to be fair, despite the inadequacies of the law and the dilemma resulting from the divided ranks of labor.

They Satisfy No One

House leaders who have piloted the most important District bills through the legislative mill this year are plainly dissatisfied with the outcome. Chairman Collins of the House Sub-committee on District Appropriations has announced his intention of resigning. Representative Nichols, who led the movement in the House for revision of the District's obsolete tax system, considers the latest version of the revenue bill to be "reeking with discrimination."

No doubt the reactions of Mr. Collins and Mr. Nichols reflect a general disappointment among members of Congress over these two pieces of legislation. And that feeling is duplicated, in considerable measure, by the regrets of District citizens. While there are many constructive items in both the tax and appropriation bills, their shortcomings are so pronounced that they satisfy no one.

Many will be pleased to have an income tax law on the statute books in spite of its defects. Even though non-residents earning their livelihood here and Government employes not legally domiciled in the District are exempt from its provisions, this levy on incomes may be more equitable than either the business privilege or intangible property taxes. But that conclusion does not minimize the failure of Congress to enact a well-balanced and equitable revenue system for this voteless community.

Disappointments of no less intensity arise from the belated District appropriations act. The $1,000,000 increase in the Federal payment should not be permitted to obscure the limitation of relief funds to the inadequate total of last year and the emasculation of Senator Overton's school-replacement program.

The District would be easily reconciled to those two setbacks to its community service if there had been good reasons for the action taken. But the refusal to provide any relief for destitute families who have one member capable of working is a repudiation of the advice given Congress by its own investigator after an elaborate study ordered by Congress. The denial of funds to make an impressive start toward elimination of obsolete schools likewise means that Congress has once more closed its eyes to a pressing community need.

Both bills were botched, not because individual members of Congress familiar with the various problems failed to act, but because of the compromises made necessary by the cumbersome legislative machinery which serves the District. Both measures were caught between powerful forces that have little concern for the District and its problems. The income tax bill stands as a vague and discriminatory piece of legislation merely because its authors fear that precise language making the tax applicable to all who ought to pay it would result in defeat of the bill at the hands of Congressmen looking out for their political interests back home.

The simple fact is that Congress cannot legislate satisfactorily for a community of which it has little knowledge and in which it has comparatively little interest. This moral stands out of the present controversy at every turn. It is an unquestioned fact that most Congressmen, like Representative Collins, eschew service on a District committee as they do the itch. Through how many crises must the Nation's Capital pass before these legislators will lend their support to the creation of a real District government that will be able to act on local matters free from paralyzing compromises dictated by the interests of 435 Congressional districts?

TVA Compromise

Breaking a prolonged deadlock, the House and Senate have at last passed a compromise measure authorizing the TVA to issue bonds in payment of private utility properties located in the Tennessee Valley area. Although the express geographical limitations imposed upon TVA operations by the House bill were dropped, the compromise measure effectively prevents extension of developmental work outside a restricted area. That is accomplished by providing in detail how the proceeds of the TVA bond issue shall be expended.

Representative May, who led the fight to curb the TVA by reducing the authorized bond issue, states that a binding promise has also been made by TVA officials not to spend any of the 1940 appropriation for developmental work outside a defined area.

In Mr. May's opinion the conference report provides assurance to business as a whole, and to the electric industry in particular, that "the trend toward state socialism has been definitely stopped." "I am confident," he said, "that no future Congress will lend an ear to the pied pipers of subsidized Federal hydro-electric power." While it is impossible to share Mr. May's confidence in the absence of an unequivocal declaration of legislative policy, it is certainly encouraging to find Congress reasserting its right of control over TVA expenditures by abandoning lump-sum in favor of earmarked appropriations.

The compromise measure just passed brings to an amicable end a long-drawn-out controversy between the TVA and those private utilities threatened with ruin by the subsidized competition of public power projects. If the bill also marks the beginning of a new era of stricter Congressional control over TVA operations, as Representative May and Wendell Willkie, president of the Commonwealth and Southern, surmise, it is of exceptional significance.

It would be rash, however, to hazard guesses as to the future policy of Congress in respect to power developments. All that can safely be said at present is that Congress is awakening to the need for more effective legislative checks upon the operations of Federal power officials.

The WPA Layoffs

The WPA protest strikes against the wage-hour provisions of the new relief law have momentarily diverted attention from another important reform: the mandatory layoff of WPA workers who have been employed for 18 months or more.

In New York City alone 75,000 workers—over half the total force—will be affected. Dismissals begin there today and will continue until September 1 when the provisions of the law become effective. By that time all the chronic relief cases will have been dropped from the rolls. In their place able-bodied unemployed will be shifted from local relief to WPA jobs. But the number of openings will not be equal to the number of dismissals because the WPA is at present curtailing the scope of its operations.

These enforced dismissals will entail hardships in many individual cases. Since a large proportion of those losing WPA jobs will have to fall back on direct relief, local communities will probably not find their relief load lightened by the rotation of jobs. On the contrary, they are likely to find it heavier because of the retrenchment in Federal relief outlays. Nevertheless, Congress acted wisely in insisting upon limiting the period of continuous employment on WPA projects. For in so doing, it served notice that no group of unemployed has a prior claim or permanent right to relief jobs.

It is estimated that there are still over 10,000,000 unemployed in this country. Only a fraction of that number can obtain WPA jobs; the rest are dependent upon direct relief or other forms of charity. In the interests of fair play for this latter unfortunate group, if for no other reason, a rotation of WPA jobs is justified.

Furthermore, such shifts increase the pressure upon WPA workers to seek private employment. When there is no limit upon the length of time they may be employed on relief projects, men are apt to lose their initiative and to regard their jobs as a form of regular employment in which they have acquired vested rights. The conduct of the striking WPA employes indicates only too clearly their failure to realize that they are a favored group of unemployed for whom jobs have been created at great cost to the public treasury.

The mere fact that such a large proportion of those employed on New York City WPA projects have been working for at least a year and a half emphasizes the need for a drastic shake-up. No doubt many of these long-time employes have acquired skill which will make their loss felt. To replace trained workers by individuals who may have been demoralized by prolonged idleness will result in a loss of efficiency and will add to the expense of WPA projects. It is not surprising, therefore, that a conscientious administrator, like Col. Somervell, should be dismayed at the prospect ahead of him. These immediate disadvantages, however, weigh little in the balance against the stimulative moral effect of an enforced rotation of jobs.

The strikes that have followed the first really serious attempt of Congress to reform the WPA have focused public attention upon the political dangers as well as the economic maladjustments of the present relief system. A segregated body of workers who believe that the Government owes them jobs at prevailing wage rates is a source of weakness to any country. The disturbances of the past few days should be a warning to Congress that such an attitude of mind must not be condoned.

"Bad news travels fast"—and in ever so many cases these days it concerns persons who did the same.

We suppose our country just got started off wrong: It was discovered on borrowed money.

Washington Tea Party

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the present no-man's land, in which the voteless finds themselves, the best thing possible is happening.

To date, the apathetic 600,000 people of the D. C., are getting just what they deserve. As long as folks will continue to be kicked around like a football, taking it lying down, the conclusion must be: they don't want much different, or they would do something about it.

At Lexington a handful of militant patriots "fired the shot heard 'round the world." Along about the same time, better than a century and a half ago, in Boston Harbor there was a certain tea party, of which you may have heard.

When the denizens of the D. C. get out and put on a Tea Party of their own (tax strike and all) unfurling the ol' "taxation without representation" slogan, they'll not only bring this wicked situation to an end, but arouse America to come to their assistance.

Neutrality—What Is It?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Under the date of July 10, Vernon C. Barker wrote you urging repeal of our present neutrality act and enactment into law of Washington's Proclamation of Neutrality, dated April 22, 1793. Almost four years later than that proclamation, in his Farewell Address, the Father of our Country gave voice to his opinions upon the subject, seasoned with retrospection and matured judgment.

Nowadays the use of the phrase, "foreign entanglements" or "entangling relations" has become a fetish that paralyzes intelligent thinking. Recently that fetish has been used by the Democratic-Republican coalition in Congress for wholly reactionary purposes.

Few, it seems, have read and fewer still understand the purport of the words they quote from the Farewell Address. If they read it, they would, I believe, soon abandon the fetish, for Washington said merely that we should not "implicate ourselves" in the "ordinary vicissitudes" and "ordinary combinations" of Europe and should avoid "permanent alliances."

However, no one, who in the world's present plight favors co-operation with the democratic nations urges any permanent alliance with these nations or has advised us to become involved in the "ordinary" affairs of Europe. What we face is not an ordinary but an extraordinary crisis which concerns not only Europe, but all mankind, including ourselves. The isolationist coalition of Senate Republicans and Democrats who would deny to the members of that body the chance to pass upon the neutrality issue at this session, remind one of people accustomed to ride in street cars and who face a strike that ties up the lines. Many declare that they are "neutral," but whether they ride or walk their conduct commits them either for or against the strike. If they ride they help to break the strike; if they walk they help to win it.

There is no middle road of "neutrality" when the world is faced with a great struggle of vast importance to the welfare of humanity.

The totalitarian blackmailers recognize and practice no hypocritical "neutrality" in this matter. Why should we?

By all means repeal our present neutrality(?) act, which from its very inception has played into the hands of all of the aggressor nations, but let us also show the world that the heart of democratic America beats in unison with that of the liberty and peace-loving peoples everywhere. This we can do by the enactment of legislation along the lines of that proposed in the President's six-point program, the first three points of which, while aiding the purposes of the world democracies, bar American vessels and citizens from combat areas and thus remove one of the most potent causes of our entry into the last World War.

LEO MELTZER,
National Executive Secretary,
Social Democratic Federation.
Washington, July 14.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Comment on the disinclination of Congress to repeal what is commonly known as the neutrality law seems to me to overlook the one chief cause of that disinclination.

Congress and the Nation remember that President Roosevelt sought to pack the Supreme Court. They also remember that he tried to reorganize the Government in a manner that would make him virtual dictator. They remember, furthermore, that he afterward tried to purge the Senators and Representatives who took the lead in defeating his court and reorganization measures.

Prior to those unfortunate steps, Congress did not hesitate to invest him with unprecedented powers. But Congress now fears to commit to him large discretionary powers over issues raised by the war crisis in the Old World. The overwhelming sympathies of the American people are with Britain and France in the world crisis. With a different man in the White House, Congress would not hesitate to repeal the embargo provision of the neutrality law. That step would then be hailed as safeguard to peace.

But there are widespread misgivings as to whether the discretions which repeal would leave with the President are safe in the hands of one who sought to pack the Supreme Court and to reorganize the Government so as to make himself a dictator and then sought to punish those in Congress who defeated his designs. It is Mr. Roosevelt that is about to prevent repeal of the embargo provisions.

GILBERT O. NATIONS.
Washington, July 12.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: International relations are fluid and anything but stationary or certain. Laws are static and restrictive.

Neutrality is a reaction, or lack of it, of the people of one nation to the activities and enterprises of other nations and is not an end in itself. It is a means of avoiding troublesome war to whatever extent our welfare and freedom permit.

In our dealings with the dictators, we must remember that we are dealing with men with autocratic power who are alert for any weakness or hesitation on the part of another government that may permit them to extend their power. It is of the utmost importance that we be able to deal in advance with their impulses when excessive ambition is involved.

How are we to do this if the ability of the Government to act is tied up tight with restrictions?

Neutrality cannot be legislated into reality. A law is not a substitute for wisdom or good judgment.

Roosevelt is probably the ablest man of our times in foreign relations. Even his most violent enemies admit that he is a master of human relations—maybe that is what makes them violent—and international relations are human relations on a large scale. He has what it takes and the one thing he does not want is war. Why not trust him? I. D. FITZGERALD.

Not For Dewey

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some of us New York Republicans prefer someone else for the Presidency to our own Thomas E. Dewey, largely because of his seeming lack of knowledge regarding economic and business administration.

We have had enough of blind leadership by politicians holding false ideas about economics. Eight years of national blundering are "too much."

We voted for Mr. Dewey for Governor and would do so again. He is a good prosecutor and an able orator. He would be Governor today if the tenor of his speeches had been different. He spoke every day for several weeks, yet never once attacked America's New Deal socialism nor praised the two New York Republican candidates for the U. S. Senate.

It is probably true that Dewey would make a better President than Roosevelt, but so would a million other American citizens. It is difficult to see how any unprejudiced American could have lived through five years of governmental waste, extravagance, corruption, "goofy" experiments, hard times and mounting economic ruin by the New Deal Socialist Labor Party without becoming indignant at its perpetrators.

There must be several hundred patriotic American "right-wingers," who believe in the American system and would make able Presidents. Let us select one of them.

THOMAS H. CORWIN.
New York, July 12.

WPA Predicament

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Before Congress made the prevailing drastic change in wage and hour classification, the members should have made a more careful study and analysis of reasons why more employables did not leave the WPA pay rolls.

You cannot classify professional, technical, skilled and unskilled workers into one group any more than you can classify races of people into one group to enforce the same living conditions upon them.

A relief job naturally should underpay the same classified job in industry. However, in their eagerness to drive employables off the WPA pay rolls, Congress reduced skilled and technical workers, for whom there is a limited market, to a disgracefully low scale, at the same time increasing the unskilled wage scale in certain branches to a point that more compensation is received than in private service. The latter naturally find it much more agreeable and profitable to remain on WPA pay rolls.

Another condition preventing employables from securing private employment is the span of hours to enable one worker to relieve another. An hour or two each working day does not permit a worker to seek employment, because of the long wait to interview personnel officers. Relief workers should span days and not hours.

There should be a uniform rule that workers should work full day periods with full days off. This would permit them more time to pursue possible vacancies in private industry. Furthermore, the 130-hour span adds greatly to the handicap of seeking employment. This hour scale only permits the average of two working days in a month to seek other employment, with five months literally permitting less than two days and two months less than one day.

How possibly can this drastic change bring the WPA pay rolls down to a minimum? By driving the workers to strike en masse, then eliminating them from work relief rolls to force them on direct relief, will not only create a greater problem for each State, but will tend to arouse the ire of the 2,600,000 relief workers, their families and their friends to a point of rebellion, and instead of precipitating the desired result—it is only compelling the whole problem to become a political issue the year before a Presidential election. INTERESTED.
Washington, July 9.

Writing Uninterruptedly

SHE'S AWAY for a few days, and that chance of writing uninterruptedly—which she often wished for me and I vocally wished for myself—is here! Nobody to say a word to me or call on me for a husbandly errand to the grocery or the clothes-cleaners or to drive her to a luncheon-and-bridge party. Hot stuff!

But the copy won't come. I have discovered that the greatest interruption I had been having was her silence in the next room at her sewing or reading. I heard her, as plain as one hears thunder—thinking:

"I'm not saying a word to the big tramp now. And yet not a tap is coming from his typewriter. Tell me he would work if not interrupted!"

Or, when stuff is "running good," I would interrupt me by taking what I had written and reading it to her to "get her opinion." That part of it is a laugh. What I want—and she knows it—is her worshipful approval, and "Oh, that's great, dear!"

She did give me her opinion of my stuff once, and my reaction to her honesty was a lesson to her. For, though she doesn't write, her instinct about writing is entirely too accurate for me to dare draw out her real estimate of what I do.

So now I'm in the house all alone. "Alone at last!" I have even told the telephone operators to tell any callers to go sit on a tall and keen tack. I am uninterrupted and want to stay that way. I am about to begin writing "a opus" as is "a opus." I am going to do a than which piece. That magazine editor who has been cussing me because I write page bits instead of six-page articles so he can send bigger checks—that guy is going to get it this time. I'll make him sorry I'm not illiterate. No interruption.

What was that?—oh, it must have been somebody in the next apartment. I thought that was herself shutting a closet door. I must not forget I am uninterrupted. In fact, I find that is all I am thinking about—what a fine chance I have to write.

I can even afford to quit awhile and fool around and read a story and dig up a letter I ought to have answered a month ago. Uninterrupted, you know, and oodles of time on my hands! Nothing to do but write; to strut my stuff in lonely grandeur. What an opportunity!

I can—wonder what is going on at the club this morning, and who's there? Oh, yes; I promised a guy I'd see him there this morning after my work for the day was over. I had planned, you know, to start working at "6 a. m. in the morning," as nearly all the brainy radio announcers say.

But when I woke, my glasses were lying under the edge of the bed on a magazine that had put me to sleep with an article, and I felt I ought to finish it. So I did. That threw out my schedule—schedule, huh! Who needs a schedule when he is all alone and uninterrupted. So I say, "Well, there's no use getting into a sweat about this. I can do it tomorrow or this afternoon when I come back from the Press Club. There was something I wanted to tell Bish."

Then I remember a voice saying something——

"Now you'll have everything your way for a week. But there's just one thing I'd like to have you remember—just one thing—to keep those flower boxes watered."

I hear the wind whispering through the sere foliage of the window-ledge ferns, and my heart dies in me. Uninterrupted, me eye!

I go and give first aid to the ferns. I try to induce artificial respiration. I roll them over a barrel, figuratively speaking, and apply the oxygen tank. I chafe their fronds to restore circulation. I turn their eyelids wrongside out. I tell them a joke. If it hadn't been for the strenuous requirement that I keep these such and such things coddled and wet nursed, I'd have got a whale of a lot of work done—whaddaya mean, uninterrupted?

So I go to the Press Club because it's too late today to settle down at anything at all, with a fresh and vigorous mind. This day is shot. Might as well go to the club to finish up an argument I just got well started by spending the day there yesterday. With that chance to work uninterruptedly at home, why slavishly tie myself down to certain days and certain hours? Anyway, there are three more days of this opportunity for concentration on my opus. I'll bat the inspired stuff out like nobody's business tomorrow — tomorrow, tomorrow, what is it about tomorrow—oh, yes, I promised Cyrenus Cole at Wardman that I'd go down on Potomac links with him and play what he and I (but nobody else) call "golf." But next day will be plenty of time—plen-tee of time. It doesn't take long to do a lot of work when you've got yourself "right" and go at it vigorously and uninterruptedly——

She'll be home next week and (why kid myself?) I'll do some work.

STRICKLAND GILLILAN.

Fair Enough

Louisiana Politics

ON NOVEMBER 27, 1934, when Huey Long was at the height of his power and fighting the Standard Oil, the United Press carried a small item out of Baton Rouge which read as follows:

"The Win or Lose Oil Co., sponsored by a group of Huey Long's followers, came into being Sunday, and preparations were made to begin drilling 50 wells on State property. For its share the State will receive one-eighth of the wells' production if oil is found. The drilling, however, is in the center of the State's richest oil fields.

"Charter has been granted by the State, showing capitalization at $10,000 and naming James A. Noe, Long's legislative leader, as president. Noe owns 9 per cent of the stock. Seymour Weiss, described as unofficial treasurer of the Long organization, is vice president, and Earl Christenberry, Long's secretary, is secretary of the oil company."

The Win or Lose Oil Co. appears to have prospered. Mr. Noe and Mr. Weiss each reported an income of $92,396 from Win or Lose in 1935.

Query On Profits Gets No Answer

MR. NOE IS one of the present candidates for the office of Governor, a job which he held briefly after the death of Oscar K. Allen, who was Huey's dummy during the dictatorship. He is an enemy of the present political machine and stoutly advocates good government and the abolition of graft. Within the last year a letter to him inquiring as to current profits of the Win or Lose Co. has received no answer.

In a recent dispatch from Baton Rouge, Ray Daniell, of the New York Times, reported that Earl K. Long, the present Governor, Huey's brother, had demanded the resignation of the incumbent head of the minerals division of the State department of conservation and had appointed as his successor Davis McConnell. Mr. McConnell happens to be a brother of Mrs. Huey P. Long, and Mr. Daniell writes that Mrs. Long "is reputed to be the president of the Win or Lose Co., which holds valuable gas leases."

Huey Long's Brother Heads Department

THE CONSERVATION department, of course, has to do with the protection of such natural resources as oil and gas, and the minerals division, of course, would be the bureau directly in charge of these public treasures within the earth. The pattern of Louisiana politics and interests is unusually blurry at the moment, so the particular qualifications which commended Mrs. Huey Long's brother for the important responsibility of preventing unwise exploitation by oil companies, including the Win or Lose, have been brought to public attention.

An intimate or venal official in this job might overlook or tolerate irregularities in the industry, but the new Governor took counsel of his maker and his conscience on assuming office. Thus it may be hoped, at least, that his selection of Mr. McConnell was prompted by the highest motives—which would be a novelty in Louisiana.

About the time Win or Lose was chartered Huey Long, serving an ancient personal grudge against Standard Oil, which long ago had thwarted him of a fortune almost within his grasp, enacted a high tax on oil refined by Standard. Standard then threatened to close down and disemploy thousands of Louisiana voters who in this alarming situation turned their resentment on the Kingfish. This flurry of anger was in part responsible for a pathetic little rebellion in arms at Baton Rouge, which Huey put down with the State militia.

Protective Tariff Against Outside Oil

AMONG THE repressive measures of those few days was an order reading as follows:

"Publication, either by newspaper or handbills, pamphlets or otherwise, reflecting in any way on the State or its officers or tending to influence the public mind against the State or its officers, will not be permitted." This included the State conservation department and the officers of Win or Lose.

Nevertheless, Huey backed down. He explained that his intention was to promote the prosperity of the Louisiana oil industry, which, incidentally, includes Win or Lose, and agreed to waive 80 per cent of the tax on Louisiana oil refined by Standard.

This would raise a protective tariff against oil produced more cheaply in foreign fields and floated up the Mississippi, which Huey called "my river," to Louisiana refining plants. It would also greatly benefit Louisiana oil operators, including the owners of Win or Lose, and incidentally, preserve the jobs of the working staffs who had lately been resentful.

Thus far the public has nothing more than a very rough sketch of the oil situation in Louisiana politics and of the affairs of Win or Lose.

See Europe First Costly to U. S.

The Commerce Department estimated yesterday that Americans had spent $5,400,000,000 on overseas travel in the last 20 years and that this was five and one-half times as much as foreigners spent on visits to the United States.

The report estimated that Americans spent $500,000,000 last year on foreign travel and that foreign visitors to the United States spent $160,000,000.

Synthetic Vitamin To Save Thousands

was extracted a yellow, oily, previously unknown substance. It was named pthiocol. Recently it was discovered that this oil contained something, a chemical made by the bacteria, which had vitamin K activity.

Chemists already know the formula of the tuberculosis oil. That made it comparatively simple for them to identify the portion of the oil containing the vitamin. After working out this fractional formula, they found an easy source of the vital material existed in a class of chemical compounds known as napthaquinones.

That is to say, without knowing it chemists for years have had the essence of this vitamin in stock bottles standing on their shelves.

The simultaneous synthesis in four laboratories was announced in the Journal of the American Chemical Society. The discoverers were a group of seven chemists at Harvard University with three at Northwestern University, two from the Squibb Institute for Medical Research, New Brunswick, N. J., two at the University of California and five from the St. Louis University School of Medicine. The Merck Laboratories also did some work.

Vitamin K was discovered six years ago by Dr. H. Dam, a biological chemist working in Copenhagen, Denmark. Its life-saving values have come forward with a rush in the last two years. Only last week the proceedings of the Mayo Clinic described several troubles, usually after operations, which for years had mystified doctors and which now usually are relieved quickly by vitamin K. These troubles previously all had a high death rate.

The vitamin stops internal bleeding, helping the human body to produce prothrombin, the substance which clots blod. Experiments with the vitamin have revealed that when the body lacks this essential, it is possible for internal hemorrhages to start with but slight apparent cause.

To such hemorrhages are attributed 25 per cent of all birth injuries of babies. Blood may ooze in the skull cavity due to compression during birth. The new vitamin can be given to babies by mouth and brings up their blood-clotting quickly to normal.

Doctors had suspected bacteria manufacture this vitamin. Probably this is for the germ's own use, but the humans benefit. Further evidence of the bacteria being makers is the fact decaying fish produce vitamin K. The decay is due to germs.

Among edibles, spinach and alfalfa are the principle known sources of the vitamin.

In addition to babies thousands of adults suffer from internal hemorrhages which have been found preventable in high degree by vitamin K. Principal of these is the surgical condition known as obstructive jaundice. Tumors and other surgically removable causes obstruct the flow of bile, and jaundice is the result. Frequently sufferers lack vitamin K, with the result that surgeons do not dare operate because of the high fatality of hemorrhage in such cases. By the new synthetic process, the Squibb Laboratories already have made several pounds of vitamin K. One milligram a day is enough for an adult, and half a milligram for a baby, so that these few pounds alone are sufficient for one dose apiece for hundreds of thousands.

Though the businessman who forced his smaller competitor into such a combination may receive a fine, and the victim only a suspended sentence, such a punishment is unfair because the indictment rather than the fine is the real hardship, the report said.

"With appropriate civil remedies, a court can take into account considerations which make the criminal proceedure inequitable in the above instance and give appropriate relief at the end of the trail," the report said. "Thus the adding of suitable civil remedies to the anti-trust procedure will create an enforcement method which, in the ordinary case not involving moral turpitude, is not only fairer but more effective."

Violation of the antitrust laws under the committee suggestion, would make the offending corporation forfeit to the United States a sum equal to twice its total net income during the period of the violation, while the individual officer of the corporation would forfeit a sum twice his compensation during the same period. The report also suggested that the Clayton act be amended to fix more clearly the responsibility for any violation on the officers or directors of the company involved.

The report said that the Clayton act should also be amended to cover the acquisition of the stock of one or more corporations, instead of two or more as in the present law.

Another amendment favored would prevent the closing of what may be the only available market for assets of a corporation in bankruptcy. A competitor of a corporation in financial difficulties should not be barred from purchasing the assets of the second corporation, provided the difficulties were not produced through collusion, the report stated.

McNutt Faces Many Storms

By Ernest K. Lindley

WHAT DOES Paul McNutt know about social security? What is his record in this field?

These questions are being asked about the new Federal Security Administrator, not only in Washington but all over the country by public welfare officials, NYA directors, public health workers and others for whom McNutt has become the "boss".

Officials in Washington have dug up and mimeographed a speech which McNutt made in 1936, while still Governor of Indiana, before the American Public Welfare Association. It recounts his work in reorganizing the public welfare services in Indiana and in cooperating with the Federal Government after the social security act was passed.

When McNutt became Governor in 1933 one of his first undertakings was to reorganize the State government. Even before Roosevelt's inauguration as President, McNutt had called in, to assist in this reorganization, two groups of experts.

One group consisted of specialists in penal and correctional problems. It began with Sanford Bates, then Director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons; F. Lovell Bixby, Chief of the Federal Division of Probation and Parole; John Ellis, head of the New Jersey prison and correctional system—and included other persons recognized throughout the nation as the foremost experts in this field.

The other group of experts was concerned with other phases of public welfare. It included Frank Bane, then Director of the American Public Welfare Association, later Executive Director of the Federal Social Security Board, and Fred K. Hoehler, present Director of the American Public Welfare Association.

McNUTT SOUGHT the advice of the best people he could find—and, what is more, in the main he followed their recommendations in modernizing the public welfare system of Indiana.

After the social security act was passed, he called the Indiana Legislature into special session and in twelve days put through the three laws needed to mesh Indiana into the new Federal-State programs for unemployment compensation, public health work, and assistance to the aged, the blind, and dependent children.

In his speech before the American Public Welfare Association in December, 1936, McNutt took a strong position on several points. He advocated the merit system for public welfare workers, including those in the counties. He pointed out that there was, however, a deficiency of properly trained workers. He said that a special attention would have to be given to training personnel, "with emphasis on workers for the rural, mining and other areas of economic distress if we are to eradicate Elizabethan standards of relief giving."

"I firmly believe," he said, "that the fate of social security and the administration of public welfare should not be left to the whims of the political spoilsmen."

McNutt advocates also that the costs of assistance to the aged, the blind and dependent children be shared by the counties, as well as by the States and the Federal Government. If local autonomy in welfare matters was to be continued, the local taxpayers should bear part of the cost, he said. He pointed out, however, that some counties were bankrupt and that flexibility was therefore needed to prevent hardship.

The third point on which McNutt spoke forthrightly was aid to dependent children. He said that under the Social Security act the children were short-changed. He asked why Federal aid for dependent children was on a one-to-two ratio, while Federal aid for the aged and the blind was on a one-to-one ratio. He asked why the aid was limited to children under 16 and why the assistance was limited to $18 for one child in a family, compared to $30 for an aged person. This section of the law is liberalized in the amendments now before Congress.

FINALLY, McNUTT spoke for Federal grants-in-aid to care for the people left on direct relief. This has been advocated by many public welfare officials. The Roosevelt Administration has tried to fight shy of it since it embarked on the WPA program in 1935, partly because it has feared that Federally-aided direct relief would be used to break down the work-relief program.

McNutt's record in public welfare is good. His views are in accord with those of the leading experts in the field. His right-hand man, Wayne Coy, who now becomes Assistant Federal Security Administrator, is something of an expert in this field on his own account. After helping McNutt to reorganize and administer the Indiana system, and serving as State relief administrator, he joined Harry Hopkins' WPA organization. Hopkins made him a regional supervisor, and his esteem for Coy's ability was an indispensable link in the chain of circumstances which brought McNutt to the job of Federal Security Administrator. Hopkins seems to have been the only New Deal official who advocated McNutt's appointment.

However, public welfare, in the limited meaning of the phrase as it is used by public welfare officials, is only one section of the field covered by the Security Agency. This agency embraces public health, the Office of Education, the work and training programs for youth embodied in the CCC and the NYA, the employment offices and the social insurance system.

As Security Administrator McNutt can hardly avoid riding into the political and economic storms which rage over the whole question of old age security. He will have to come to grips with some big-scale problems of taxation and spending. In his new job he won't be able to fall back on the opinion of an accepted group of experts. The experts are at each other's throats, and the man who can see ahead clearly must be a little more than human.

A Constructive Session

Charlottesville, Va.

THE 13TH INSTITUTE of Public Affairs, which ended its two weeks' sessions at the University of Virginia on Friday, presented several changes in method, started a few constructive movements toward the improvement of future institutes. Unquestionably, in the opinions of those who attended, it has served a useful purpose.

The fundamental idea of this annual conclave being that of an open forum, the University deserves credit—and freely got it—for standing firmly on that ground despite the protest of short-sighted veterans organizations against the scheduled appearance of Earl Browder, Presidential candidate of the Communist Party and recognized as the outstanding spokesman for Communal-Socialistic doctrine. Browder came, and spoke, and if he did not conquer, at least he accomplished something by disarming violent phobias. Soft spoken, with an active sense of humor, and apparently without any rancor, he made a good case for the Soviet republic, not as a menace to democracy, but as a going concern under its own political philosophy and deserving of some respect for its actual economic accomplishment.

A corresponding sense of freedom and fairness welcomed, for the first time in these sessions, three Negro delegates and, on two occasions, began the evening sessions in the open air theater with Negro quartets singing. The singing was not good but the audience was responsive to the evident effort of good will and applauded generously. Both Nazi and Fascist ideologies had their innings and were subjected to free attack; the domestic confusion in politics was in some measure clarified in the Round Table very ably led by Ernest K. Lindley, Washington correspondent and columnist; while, in general, the demonstrated truth that proponents of contradictory schools of thought can get along harmoniously together for a summer fortnight of keenest argumentative contacts reflected both by the genuineness of the institute's purposes and the human kindness of the university's direction of its mnay sessions.

IN ITS REGISTERED attendance figures of about 1,300 this institute fell nearly 300 short of the 1938 sessions. This year the people came from 31 States of the Union and seven foreign countries. Nine hundred of them, more than half the total, came from Virginia. In former years the institute was built up by elaborate publicity which gave it an advertised importance not always quite realized in the event. This year the values appear to have been the other way—that is to say, the actual importance or significance of the sessions, in the topics discussed and in the caliber of the protagonists, exceeded the advance publicity accorded. Only two of the announced speakers, Constantine Oumansky the Russian Ambassador, and Claude Bowers, newly appointed United States Ambassador to Chile, were unable to appear, while in both cases the unavoidable defections were published well beforehand. Too often in the past large crowds, attracted by the advertised appearance of prominent speakers, have been disappointed by a last-minute correction from the platform.

Registration, however, has never been a satisfactory means of gauging the value of these meetings. People are not compelled to register; they are only politely asked to do so orally and by placards. Many of those attending, especially from Charlottesville and Albemarle County, will not take the trouble to write their names and addresses when attending only occasionally. The seating capacity of the McIntire Greek Theater is well over 2,000, and on several occasions—such as the rather meteoric appearance of Paul McNutt or the joint talking picture of the two war-like Johnsons, Col. Louis and Gen. Hugh—it was filled. Allowing for duplications, it would not be an exaggeration to say that registration figures could be safely doubled as an estimate of those who personally attended some of the sessions.

This year, also for the first time, the local radio station broadcast the round-table discussions, as well as the more formal morning and evening addresses. Probably the radio audience was fully as large as the total attendance. An excellent newspaper coverage must also be taken into consideration in estimating the numbers of listeners reached by these discussions of vital public conditions and trends.

THE INSTITUTE is less concerned with quantity than with quality, as a result of the sessions just closed emphasizing the general character of the 12 previous forums. While the score and more of scheduled speakers very evidently were capable masters of their respective topics, it is felt generally that the informational and intellectual caliber of the audiences left much to be desired.

As one responsible and conscientious delegate expressed it, "There are altogether too many nice old ladies." Certainly, as one looked over the audience morning, afternoon or night, its overwhelming color and identity were feminine. Most of the 800 students at the summer terms of the university are women school teachers and many of them drifted daily into the free entertainments provided by the institute. Also this locality has its fair share of Pearl Buck's "gunpowder women," ladies with more leisure than they know what to do with. In a free and open forum there should be room for these categories but they should be more fairly balanced by those, either masculine or feminine, who are seriously interested in the problems under discussion and capable of taking an intelligent part in them.

The Round Tables too frequently wasted time and patience over futile or absurd questions and some of the sessions thus acquired a superficial atmosphere. The bright exceptions were the Welfare Round Table on July 11, which was largely attended by those actively engaged in welfare work; the discussion of National Defense, appropriately on the program of July 4, when Commander Lovette of the Navy Department and General George B. Strong, Assistant Chief of Staff, were convincing in their specialties and aroused an unusual degree of well-informed questioning. Thanks to the courtesy of the local Paramount Theater management, the university moving-picture house was filled for the "Pictorial Symposium on Housing," with Mr. Nathan Straus, United States Administrator, in command of the topic.

It is because of this desire to raise the forum character of next year's institute to a higher level that an effort is being talked over to finance a graduate student attendance from all the chief educational institutions of the country. There is also a plan to establish in all but the evening sessions a panel of delegates competent to discuss their respective topics as scheduled on the program and thus give a direction and fiber to the general conversation.

LOOKING BACK OVER the two weeks there was something agreeably Athenian about this "institute" for the broad-minded discussion of "Public Affairs." The same desultory, relaxed attendance characteristic of the life-sized painted figures in the "School of Athens" which forms the back drop of the stage in Cabell Hall marked the comings and goings of varied hundreds of living people in the most harmonious composition of academic buildings and landscape surroundings in this land. After the copious early summer rains Jefferson's university in its shady setting was never more persuadingly lovely. For those who came from far, merely to spend a few days in such serene and dignified localities, must have enduring value. One had the impression of a blessed relief from the stridency and rush of automotivated life, inhabiting for a time an oasis of peace, getting into cadence with a slower tempo of deeper awareness.

And, as though to realize this sense of difference from standardization in thoughts and ways of life, young Professor Dillard and his aides managed to give to the proceedings a simplicity and candor that marched in tune with Jefferson's collonades. After the morning sessions each day, the various speakers and those most eagerly interested in the topics of that day were gathered together for an informal stag luncheon, man to man, in the grill of the Farmington Country Club. And then, after the day's work was concluded, corresponding groups met again around a supper table in the same place for a general assay and sharing of impressions or suggestions. Thus the whole conduct of the institute acquired a human camaraderie which made the associations more enduringly mutual. Those who took part had the pretty general impression of getting somewhere.

Perhaps something of this nature may be prophetic of the "democracy" we have lost awhile and may regain. Plato's Republic, had it ever come to life, might have lived and moved and had its being in measures corresponding to those reached for in this Virginia institute which has just come to its annual end looking forward to increased scope for usefulness in another year.

ton to seek the aid of President Roosevelt.

John L. Lewis, chief of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, pledged "the full support" of the C. I. O. to the P. W. O. C. at a mass meeting of members of C. I. O. unions in the Coliseum tonight.

"It has won union agreements with some 40 independent packers," he declared in a prepared address, "and now it is ready to bring the 'big four' into line."

He predicted the C. I. O. would make progress in the farm equipment manufacturing field and promised a renewed drive in the steel industry.

"Little Steel is sooner or later going to have to do what Big Steel has done," he stated. "It is going to have to obey the law and bargain collectively with the Steel Workers Organizing Committee. The union has been growing in strength and in the power to insist on its collective bargaining rights. Already the C. I. O. steel union has 595 contracts . . . and the time will not be long before four more are added to this imposing list—namely, the Bethlehem, Republic, Inland, and Youngstown companies."

The invocation at the mass meeting was delivered by the Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of the Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago and founder of the Catholic Youth Organization.

He pleaded for industrial peace and urged organized labor to close the breach in its ranks.

Hope to Avoid Strikes

At a press conference earlier, Lewis said the "Big Four" packers constituted the "principal opposition at the moment, but we are undertaking complete organizaztion." He asserted the P. W. O. C. organized to bargain collectively and "we prefer to avoid strikes."

Lewis said complaints of the P. W. O. C. were directed chiefly against Armour. The C. I. O. Union had been certified by the National Labor Relations Board or by "the consent of Armour's" in 14 of 16 major Armour plants, he added, but had been unable to negotiate with the concern.

He explained the P. W. O. C. wanted national contracts with the packers similar to pacts other C. I. O. units have in the steel and coal industries.

Marshalls Enjoy Rest At Quiet Fire Island

Chief of Staff Maintains Summer Home At Vacation Center, Which Bars Autos, Bikes and Now Is Coming Into Its Own

By Carolyn Bell.

While summer resorts continue to usurp the social spotlight, one fascinating place, definitely off the beaten track, is coming into its own. It is Fire Island, New York, where the newly appointed Chief of Staff of the Army and Mrs. George Marshall have a summer home.

While not what is currently referred to as "chic," Fire Island makes up for that with atmosphere galore. The island, about 8 miles long, is just off Long Island Sound. It boasts of four separate summer colonies. All the houses are privately owned and devotees of the resort have been going there for years.

There is an iron-clad rule at Fire Island which says that no cars are allowed—this ruling adds infinitely to the charm and serenity of the place. The mere thought of no auto horns rending the air is a big drawing card with persons wanting to "get away from it all." But unlike Bermuda—which also boasts of no motor vehicles—there are no bicycles, either. Walking would seem to be popular on the island—but definitely!

Beach Lacks Conveniences

The beaches at Fire Island are as excellent as the swimming. Frequenters are so enamored they go despite the fact that there are few modern conveniences—or maybe because of it. As a matter of fact, the only conveniences the islanders have admitted, are electricity and water.

The newly appointed Chief of Staff of the Army returned to his desk today after a relaxing week-end on the island indulging in his favorite sport—fishing. Gen. Marshall is particularly fond of fresh-water casting, but as this is not available on the island, salt-water fishing is the next best thing with this fisherman.

The general's sister, Mrs. John Singer, of Greensburg, Pa., returned with him to their home on Wyoming avenue. She plans to remain in Washington for a week. Miss Molly Brown, Mrs. Marshall's daughter, has remained on Fire Island with Mrs. Marshall, who hopes to be there for the season.

Holcombs Take Week's Cruise

Another service family—the Commandant of the Marine Corps and Mrs. Thomas Holcomb and their son, Frank—have hit upon a novel way to escape Washington's heat. Gen. and Mrs. Holcomb returned to their quarters at the Marine Barracks yesterday from a cruise aboard their craft, the Slowboat.

True to its name, the Slowboat cruised leisurely about the Potheir fancy dictated. The Holcomb at the helm. They drifted about the Maryland waterfront, stopping only when and where their fancy dictated. The Holcombs go off frequently on week-end jaunts aboard the Slowboat with a group of their friends. They plan many cruises before the summer ends.

Like his father, Frank Holcomb skippers his own craft. Frank has just returned from a two-week cruise aboard his sailboat. With a party of friends aboard—and Frank at the wheel—they started off for "points unknown," but they cruised the Chesapeake Bay and the Potomac pretty thoroughly before the trip was ended.

They include Domenico Baiardo, tenor; Harriet Barley, soprano, and Jean Bishop, contralto. Mrs. Arnold Gives Luncheon

Mrs. Thurman Arnold gathered a few friends for luncheon Saturday at her home at McLean, Va., and guests found to their surprise that the occasion was her birthday. The Assistant Attorney General and his wife have taken Lowell Mellett's home, Dower House, at McLean.

Mr. Arnold, who has been on a Western tour, is expected to return to his home the early part of this week.

Guests at the party Saturday afternoon included Mrs. Harry W. Blair, of Alexandria; Mrs. F. W. Pennoyer, jr., who lives "down the pike" from Mrs. Arnold; Mrs. F. D. Fromme, Mrs. Buckley Griffen, Mrs. J. Fred Essary and Miss Mary V. Johnson.

Mrs. Chase, Ellises To Visit Coast Fair

Miss Luella P. Chase, regent of the Susan Reviere Hetzel Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, is in California with her sister, Mrs. Wade H. Ellis, and Mr. Ellis, who attended the convention of the American Bar Association in San Francisco.

After visiting the San Francisco Fair, they expect to go to Los Angeles, where Miss Chase will see Mrs. Ford Sibley (Ruth Doyle), Mrs. Eugene V. Pugh and Mrs. Willis W. Bradley, members of the chapter living there. They will also spend a week at Coronado Beach Hotel in San Diego before returning to Washington.

Mrs. Hurja to Sail For Norway and Sweden on July 24

Sailing aboard the Gripsholm on July 24, Mrs. Emil Hurja will go to Norway and Sweden. Her itinerary also calls for stops at Leningrad and Danzig and she will finally wind up in Denmark for a three weeks stay.

Captain Andresen, Mrs. Hurja's father, had hoped to sail with his daughter but he may have to sail ten days or so after, meeting her in Denmark—Mrs. Hurja's birthplace. She plans to return here on September 19.

Rumors to the effect that Garner money is backing Mr. Hurja's purchase of the Pathfinder were vigorously denied by the Hurjas. It is to be continued as a nonpartisan weekly, the new owner stated. Upon Mrs. Hurja's return she will join the staff on the news weekly.

Mr. Hurja will leave soon for California on a business trip. He plans to go to San Francisco for the Bohemian Club High Jinks.

The Rev. Charles D. Gorman performed the ceremony. The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, wore her mother's wedding gown of white satin, tight basque and full skirt with inserts of French Valenciennes lace. Her finger tip veil was arranged with a coronet of Chantilly lace and a spray of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley, orchids and white larkspur.

Wearing a blue net frock and matching hat of tulle, Miss Mildred L. Cook, cousin of the bride, was the only attendant. She carried pink roses and blue delphinium. Addison Hansford was best man.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Engaged Couple Plan to See World's Fair Together, Stopping at Different Hotels; Is This Proper?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My daughter is 20 and her boy friend is 21. They are much in love, but realize that several years of work and study lie between them and marriage. They would like to spend their vacation together this summer, seeing the World's Fair in New York, making the trip in the boy's car. My daughter would stay at a very conservative residence for women and girls, and the boy at a well-known place for young men.

Of course, they would have a far better time, and see infinitely more of the Fair and of New York City in going this way, than they would if my daughter were to stay with relatives (as she could) who are already sick-to-death both of the fair and of out-of-town visitors. On the other hand, all our friends and relatives subscribe to the old school of thought governing social propriety, and I have a feeling that they might think I was letting my child "run wild," in agreeing to such a plan.

However, both young people are exceptionally well behaved. And I have been told so often that I "just don't understand," and that no one but me "has those old-fashioned ideas any more," that I am wondering if it is true. Wishing to decide this question wisely, I am turning to you for advice. Sincerely, PERPLEXED MOTHER.

Influence of Opinion

DEAR PERPLEXED MOTHER: Theoretically, perhaps, there is no unanswerable argument against the vacation trip just as these youngsters plan it. Theoretically, your daughters would be acting quite as circumspectly in staying at "a very conservative residence for women and girls," as she would be in staying with relatives during her New York visit. In addition, of course, she would (again, theoretically) be showing her relatives really commendable consideration in refusing to tax their long-suffering hospitality any further.

However, pure theory—logical as it may seem to the independent, enlightened mind—is one thing, and the realistic procedure of society something else again. The rational individual instinctively recognizes and respects public opinion as a "fact of life" exerting tremendous influence, for good or ill, on his destiny; a force as potent in molding his experience as any measurable facts in his biological history and material environment.

In my belief, public opinion—both of the well informed and the blindly conventional varieties—bulks largely against this trip as planned. The best that informed opinion could say is that it is a quixotic project (i. e., "idealistic, but impractical," human nature being what it is); while the worst that could be said would, of course, run the whole gamut of ugly innuendo and sordid speculation.

If your daughter aspires to have and to hold the shining shield of a stainless reputation—a social asset seldom appreciated at full value until it has been lost—she cannot afford to bait public opinion. She must hold herself, like Caesar's wife, not only above reproach, but above suspicion of reproach. The hornet's nest of family discussion, pro and con, concerning the advisability of present plans, affords a miniature illustration of what the larger view would be.

If the decision is in your hands, I advise you to insist on the alternatives of her staying with relatives—or staying at home. In so doing, you will be sparing her subtle embarrassment otherwise bound to arise later. For, supposing their plan was adopted, and supposing each registered at separate public hostelries as planned—still, each would feel under irresistible compulsion to make this arrangement known to friends. They would find themselves stressing that point, time and again, in later accounts of the vacation. Yet, if the girl stays with relatives, she will, automatically and almost without realizing it, have absolved herself of the imaginary necessity of anticipating possible misunderstanding.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Quick Summer Cake Recipe Given by Home Economist

Ideal Accompaniment for Ice Cream Is Suggested by Miss Alma Svenson Delicious Coconut Topping Featured

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor

Favorite recipes of leading home economists of Washington are presented daily in this column.

REFRESHING is the word for a summer time dessert of your favorite ice cream and a delicious cake. Today, Miss Alma Svenson, who is in charge of the production of ice cream and bakery products for Woodward & Lothrop, gives the Post food readers her favorite recipe.

MISS SVENSON

Miss Svenson, a native of North Dakota, attended the universities of Minnesota and Missouri, and spent two years at Georgetown University. For the last two and a half years, she has been in her present position. Approximately 390 gallons of cream are used weekly in the ice cream manufacture in Miss Svenson's department. Three hundred and sixty dozen eggs, 300 pounds of butter, 3,000 pounds of sugar, 1,500 pounds of flour, 600 pounds of shortening other than butter, and 300 gallons of milk go into the bakery products that are dispensed weekly in the tea and fountain rooms, and the employes' cafeteria.

The following is Miss Svenson's favorite cake recipe.

Last Minute Cake

Sift 1 cup flour (measured before sifting) with 1½ teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt. Beat 2 eggs until light and thick. Add 1 cup sugar gradually beating after each addition. Fold in flour mixture. Heat ½ cup milk with 3 tablespoons shortening, and to first ingredients and mix thoroughly. Pour into a pan 8 inches by 8 inches by 2 inches, and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees about 30 minutes. Top while hot with broiled coconut topping.

To make topping put 4 tablespoons butter in a saucepan, ½ cup brown sugar (firmly packed), 4 tablespoons evaporated milk, ½ cup shredded coconut, ½ cup chopped walnuts. Cook slowly until sugar is dissolved. Spread over hot cake, put under broiler and cook until topping is slightly brown. Cut in squares when cool and serve as a dessert. Also may be used as an accompaniment to light desserts or for tea.

Priscilla Tells How to Be Lovely At Beach, Camp

Hollywood, Calif. — Priscilla Lane, recently voted the typical American daughter by Gold Star Mothers, has never missed a summer at camp and has hints on how a daughter can be lovely in the wilderness.

Because hair is a problem when one goes swimming several times a day, it is Pat's idea to have it cut as short as is becoming and permanent-waved just before vacationing. If well-thinned, hair will dry faster and be easier to set.

Se believes a manicure kit is a necessity even in the wilds, for when a girl lives in a bathing suit her feet need pedicures as much as her hands need manicures.

If a girl is a "beach-bather," Pat warns her to use sun-tan oil on the last day of her vacation, just as she did on the first because although she becomes as brown as a nut her skin can still dry out.

Today's Health Talk

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Digestive Treatments

Digestion of food is carried on by two functions of the digestive tract that go hand in hand; both are necessary for the complete and proper disposition of food. One is the secretion of the digestive juices, and the other the movements of the hollow digestive tube.

I saw in a large hospital clinic the other day the latest apparatus used to study movements of the stomach, intestines, etc. It is, of course, in principle like an X-ray tube, but it is a considerable improvement on the ordinary X-ray tube because by a kind of slit grid the movements can be recorded and measured exactly. The rapid movements of the stomach are recorded as horizontal or oblique lines; the slow movements are recorded as rounded curves.

Food Movement

The movements of the esophagus, or gullet, are the most rapid of the entire canal. The esophagus is constantly in movement from transmitted impulses from the heart and great vessels. The food, especially liquid food, travels down the esophagus with lightning speed, faster than the esophagus itself can move. When spasm or disease interferes with the movements of swallowing, we have one of the most serious conditions possible on our hands.

The stomach movements vary from person to person, and in the same person at different times. The state of the health, the kind and consistency of food in the stomach, and psychological factors all come into play and influence these stomach movements.

The entrance of food into the stomach stretches the fibers and increases its tonus, and this starts movements. They move both from left to right and right to left. If the latter type predominates, nausea is present. If an ulcer of the stomach is present, no movements occur over the area filled by the ulcer. When the ulcer heals, normal movements in the ulcer area return.

Easy Diagnosis

Movements of the stomach are seldom accompanied by subjective feelings felt by the individual. Very seldom deep turbulent waves are felt as cramplike pains, but this condition is the exception rather than the rule.

The diagnosis of both ulcer and cancer of the stomach is usually quite easy with this new instrument.

The small intestine churns the food. This movement—the segregating movement of the small intestine—is different from the movement which carries the food onward. It is necessary for the small intestine to accomplish this churning because, more than anywhere, absorption of the food occurs here, and it must be churned round and round so that every surface of a bolus of food is exposed to the absorptive surface.

Alice Meets Bevy Of Movie Folk on Way to Hollywood

Aboard Santa Fe Chief, July 16.

LEAPING westward toward Hollywood on the Chief, Spouse Hall and I agreed that there should be a Federal law (what, another?) to force inmates of New York City to visit the real United States once a year. The rich fields and woods of old Missouri—the next morning the ranches of the Southwest—it's an enormous thrill.

The old gentleman noted a great change in the traffic on this famous train in the last decade. "Where are all the movie hams that used to ride the old Chiefie?" he muttered at Kansas City. "All the folks on board seem to be harmless old fiddy-diddies like us!" And so it seemed—until we pulled out of K. C. on a murky night. Then, like a snowslide, a whole troupe of actors of all ages and sexes fell upon him in the lounge car where he was nibbling a goodnight saucer of ale.

It was the company which had gone to Des Moines, Iowa, for the formal premiere of "Career," the excellent homespun story laid on the heart of the corn country, and based on a yarn by Phil Stong, the Iowa Balzac. It had been an arduous trip for them, and now they proposed to celebrate the birthday of Leon Errol, the dear old Ziegfeld comic who has a rich role in the picture. They took over the car, bless their wandering hearts, though they could buy nothing but charged water, being in the great State of Kansas. Hall, outnumbered, took to his bed, while Errol, tired and a little ill, cut his birthday cake, responded to a toast and then took to his. Stella Unger and I stayed up for some of the revels.

GIRL AMONG THE TROUPERS—It was an interesting troupe that captured the Chief for the last lap into Hollywood. Young girls abounded — pretty Anne Shirley, the leading woman (who began life as a child photographic model named "Dawn O'Day"); Barbara Reid, who was in a Deanna Durbin pic; Joy Hodges, a Des Moines girl herself; Patricia Ellis, the curvesque blonde who sported a very gay print, and a few unnamed pouting blondes who seemed to be trying to eat their way out of the movies via French fried spuds . . . Then there was young Bobby Breen, the boy barytone, and several grand character actors, including Edward Ellis, and Jean Hersholt, over 20 years in the movies and most recently the Doc Dafoe of the Dionne films. Many a pleasant chit-chat I had with the lot of them . . .

The top birthday present the boys and girls gave old Leon was a pair of leopard-skin Tarzan trunks, which he obligingly modeled—over his trousers, of course, before hitting the hay.

THE USUAL throng at the Albuquerque station, with Anne Shirley giving the most autographs on the platform. She's a darling, that kid, and a vastly improved actress in the last few years. Of course, she's a married lady now—Mrs. John Payne—but I just can't believe it. She looks like a high school junior . . . Favorite sign from the car window—at Raton, N. Mex., "The Golden Rule and New York Store." Is this a paradox, or not? I don't know.

The Psychiatrists

". . . and Marjorie Skiff was there—in ANOTHER new hat!"

"Not ANOTHER hat! You know I think there's something psychopathic in the way she's so crazy about clothes."

"She must be trying to compensate for something."

"Well . . . sometimes I just wonder about her . . . and Sam . . ."

"So do I. Oh, and I heard Mabel Carp was in the hospital! With acute appendicitis!"

"Well, I'm not at all surprised. Mabel always was an escapist. She just won't face life."

"I often wonder about that home situation. You know . . . her and Arthur."

"There's a maladyjustment there of some kind . . . or she wouldn't be sick so much. Say, was Ethel Riddle there?"

"No, she had to take Junior to the dentist."

"Of all things! You know there's a dangerous mother tie-up there. Ethel had better watch herself."

"Oh yes and I heard Grace Bigsby had been elected national president of the Fee Fi Fo's."

"No! Say, I wonder what's motivating her in all this organization work."

"She probably has a Napoleon complex.

"You know I sometimes wonder about her . . . and Norman . . ."

"So do I. You know he's terribly Freudian. By the way, Nell Beadle's gone to Reno."

"I knew that wouldn't last. Anyone could tell Tom was a schizoid."

"She should have had him psyched before she married him."

"Well as far as that's concerned Nell herself—well what I mean is I always thought there was something back of that collection of buttons. Say was Barbara Giddings there?"

"No, she was at some political meeting."

"She gets crazier about politics every day. You know I often wonder about her . . . and Horace . . ."

"Barbara should never have married. Oh, and Marcia Bopp's had a nervous breakdown."

"Over George I suppose?"

"Yes it's some night club singer."

"Well of course George just isn't a monogamist. Grace ought to realize that."

"What Marcia needs is some occupational therapy."

"Another one that needs it is Jane Mackeral. She's taking another trip."

"I wish Jane could find some good man to marry."

"It's certainly strange, isn't it, how very few people you see any more who are really—well, completely all there?"

"Yes. Now really how many women can you name who haven't some kind of psychoses?"

"Oh that reminds me! Dorothy Perky is back from New York."

"Did she have a good time at the fair?"

"Marvelous! There was some man—she thinks he was some kind of a foreigner—who followed her through a lot of buildings."

"That girl's really a psycopathic case."

"I know it. She gets the craziest hallucinations . . . like that time at the Webbs' party when she thought Col. Jiggers was watching her all evening . . . And you know as a matter of fact he was really staring at me."

"Well, look at her sister Maude—with that persecution complex. Always thinking she hasn't any clothes and doesn't get to go anywhere. And I know she has twice as many clothes as I have."

"Say, you know something else about Maude?"

"What?"

"Well, in any argument—and I read in a book this was one of the first symptoms of paranois—well, in any argument, she's always 100 per cent right."

"I know; I always give in to her just to avoid a fuss—even when she's entirely to blame."

"So do I. Now you know that day we were playing bridge and she got so mad at me?"

"Yes?"

"And said I was entirely to blame for us losing the game?"

"Yes."

"Well, as a matter of fact, it was her bid that made us lose. Yes, sir! She was entirely to blame herself!"

New High School Urged At Rockville

C. of C. Points Out Old Building Could House Montgomery County Offices

MONTGOMERY COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST, 8213 Clark Ave., Silver Spring, Md. Telephone SHepherd 4230.

Citing need for alleviation of crowded conditions in the county courthouse at Rockville, Md., the Rockville Chamber of Commerce has inaugurated a movement for construction of a modern high school at Rockville Fair Grounds.

The chamber adopted a resolution which pointed out the crowded conditions in the courthouse and suggesting that the present Richard Montgomery High School Building be used for county and semipublic agencies now housed in the courthouse if a new high school is provided.

Would Affect Ten Agencies

The resolution was introduced by Donald A. DeLashmutt, of Rockville. It lists agencies which could be moved with profit, including the county health department, the supervisor of county aid's office, the county welfare board, the county agricultural and home demonstration agents, the farm bureau, the juvenile court, the supervisors of elections, the Social Service League and the Social Service Exchange.

The resolution points out that the suburban areas have been provided with modern high school buildings and that the fair grounds are owned by the county and the purchase was announced as the start of a modern educational plant for Rockville. The elementary school has been built on the fair property.

Favor Judge Prescott

The chamber also favored selection of Judge Stedman Prescott, of the County Circuit Court, as master of ceremonies at the exercises marking completion of the new Rockville postoffice next Saturday. It was pointed out that Judge Prescott was sponsor of the resolution urging a new postoffice building.

A resolution urging that shoulders be constructed on Veirs Mill road to make the roadway even in width from Rockville to Wheaton was adopted. The road now has a 2-mile section which is 2 feet wider than the two connecting strips of concrete. The condition was branded as a serious traffic hazard.

Virginia Youth In Training for Folk Festival

Richmond, Va., July 16.—Training of groups of young Virginians in the execution of folk dances and games of early Virginia got under way this week near Konnarock, Va., under the direction of Richard Chase, of Richmond, Va., representative of the English Folk Dance and Song Society. The training will continue throughout Southwestern Virginia, where Chase will work under the direction of the White Top Folk Festival. The results of his work will be demonstrated at White Top Mountain on August 11 and 12, during the festival.

Chase will work with children in the vicinity of White Top whose parents for many generations have been familiar with the tunes, dances and songs that have been handed down for generations and which were brought to this country in earliest times by the first colonists. The object of the festival, according to John Powell, its director, is to discover and preserve the fine old traditional songs and ballads, tunes, dances and customs that have come down to Virginians through generations from their forebears.

Architects Ask $3,710,782 for Va. Hospitals

Minimum Fireproofing Estimate $688,688 For Six Institutions

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., July 16.—Architects estimate an expenditure of from $688,688 to $3,710,782 will be necessary to make Virginia's six State hospitals, which house more than 10,000 patients, safe from fire.

F. W. Gwaltney, executive secretary of the State Hospital Board, in a summary of architects' recommendations, based on surveys of the six institutions, found that their number one estimates, covering replacement of a large number of buildings and the complete fireproofing of all others not replaced, would entail an outlay of $3,710,782, and two alternate proposals, providing less comprehensive programs, would involve outlays of $2,483,292 or a minimum of $688,688.

The number one, or ultimate plan, would include replacements totaling $1,825,218. This figure would include $211,050 at Central State Hospital, Petersburg; $801,900 at Eastern State, Williamsburg; $150,000 at Southwestern State, Marion; $536,471 at Western State, Staunton; $122,297 at the colony for epileptics and feeble-minded at Lynchburg, and $3,500 at the colored colony at Petersburg.

George Mason School Completed at Alexandria

The new George Mason Elementary School at Alexandria has been completed and accepted by both the city government and Public Works Administration officials. The new school will serve the Jefferson Park, Beverley Hills and Colonial Hills areas

A new unit, honoring a noted Virginian, has been added to the facilities of the Alexandria public school system. It is the George Mason Elementary School, on Cameron Mills road, which has just been completed and accepted by city and PWA officials.

Preliminary work incident to the construction of this school, which will serve the area, including Jefferson Park, Beverley Hills, Colonial Hills and other nearby communities, was started October 6, 1938.

The new school has had rather a stormy history. Under consideration by the city council for many months before a decision was reached, its construction was authorized finally at an estimated cost of $150,000. Plans were prepared by the State school architect and bids invited. The bids were far in excess of the estimated cost, and were rejected. It was decided to dispense with some features considered more ornamental than practical, and to call for new bids.

On September 29, 1938, the contract was awarded to the Goode Construction Co., of Charlotte, N. C., for $135,371, although the acceptance of this bid was opposed at the time by State School Architect Raymond V. Long.

The accepted bid was for a one-story building. It was to be erected on a 9-acre tract on Cameron Mills road, to contain 12 classrooms, offices, auditorium and cafetera. The cost of the land was $10,200. The equipment cost an additional $7,260, making the total $152,831. The equipment is to be installed not later than August 23, or two weeks before schools open, September 7.

The city received a PWA grant of 45 per cent of the estimated cost of $150,000, or $67,500. When the estimate of $150,000 was found to be too low, an additional grant of $4,500 was obtained.

The school will accommodate 600 pupils, and is expected to relieve the congested Maury School on Russell Road.

Area Grows Rapidly

The section to be served by the new school has enjoyed a remarkable growth in the last few years. The need for an elementary school in this community has been pressing. The North Ridge Citizens Association has been extremely active in efforts to have such a school, as it has been necessary to transport children as far as 3 miles to the Maury School.

The establishment of the George Mason School has given a decided impetus to building activities in this section. A number of houses are under construction in the vicinity.

When Potomac and a portion of Arlington and Fairfax counties were annexed by Alexandria in 1928, the George Mason High School, located in Potomac, became a part of the Alexandria school system. Later, the George Mason was merged with the Alexandria High School, to form the George Washington High School, and the old George Mason building became a part of the Mount Vernon Elementary School, the name George Mason being discarded. This name was adopted for the new school by the city school board at its last meeting.

Tons of Japanese Beetles—All Dead—Will Tour Maryland

Traveling Exhibit Aids Fight on Other Tons of the Pests Which Aren't Dead; First Stop on Itinerary Will Be Elkton

By the Associated Press

College Park, Md., July 16.—Tons of Japanese beetles, trapped in the State's war on the voracious crop pests, will be displayed July 21 on the annual Japanese beetle control tour to illustrate graphically the extent of the beetle menace in Maryland.

Dr. Ernest N. Cory, State entomologist, and Dr. George S. Langford, in charge of insect control, will be in charge of the tour, which will start at Elkton, center of the worst infestation on the shore.

Last year 42 tons of beetles were trapped and tabulated. Dr. Langford estimated another 40 tons were trapped but not reported.

This year the Maryland University authorities estimate 200 tons of beetles will be trapped in the 100,000 traps now in place in the State.

The beetle control tour program calls for demonstrations of trap, spray and parasite control measures. Two species of wasps which prey on the beetle larvae have been imported into the State to aid the control measures.

The wasps lay their eggs in the bodies of the beetle larvae, and the wasp larvae eat their hosts.

Dr. Langford said the Japanese beetle attacks more than 200 kinds of Maryland plants. Shade trees, ornamental shrubs and important truck crops are on the beetle menu.

The tour is open to the public. Eastern Shore horticulturists, farmers and truck gardeners numbering several hundred have accepted invitations to attend the tour-demonstration.

Summer Theater Lures Star Back to Footlights

Richard Bennett to Revive Pulitzer Prize Role; A Word of Appreciation of Long Service; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

SINCE WE ARE in the habit of reaching out for news of the summer theater wherever it manifests itself importantly, it seems worthy of note that one of the dramatic highlights of the "straw hat" season will be offered a week from tonight at the Bucks County Playhouse, New Hope, Pa., when Richard Bennett will again don grease paint and step behind the footlights as Tony, the role he created in Sidney Howard's powerful play of "They Knew What They Wanted." Haila Stoddard will be featured in the cast opposite Mr. Bennett in the role originated by Pauline Lord.

BELL

This is the bill that originally was planned to open the new de luxe theater at New Hope, but Mr. Bennett invited Edward Everett Horton, famous screen comedian and stage actor, to take his spot for the inaugural, as it was the only week the busy Mr. Horton had open over the entire summer.

It is worth recalling that "They Knew What They Wanted" was awarded the Pulitzer Prize as the best play of its year in 1925, the season of its initial production by the Theater Guild. Richard Bennett's performance had no little to do with that.

One of America's top-flight stars, Bennett has been on the stage for 45 years. He always has been one of the unpredictable forces in American drama, being an outspoken gentleman who says what he thinks in vehement fashion, whether in private conversation or across the footlights in impromptu curtain addresses. There is never any mistaking which side he is on. Usually, it must be said, events have proven him to have been on the right side.

This season Mr. Bennett is acting in the capacity of general adviser to the Bucks County Playhouse organization as well as head of the dramatic school conducted this summer in conjunction with the theater. He has the further distinction, of course, of being the father of three brilliant daughters —Constance, now, I believe, en route to Europe; Joan, who appeared in the stellar role of "Stage Door" at the National not so long ago, and Barbara, former professional dancer and motion picture actress, who is by the way of being Mrs. Morton Downey as a chief means of occupation these latter years.

It would be a happy circumstance if his week's appearance at New Hope in one of his former hit roles might inspire the Bennett, pere, to return to Broadway next fall.

It should be borne in mind by those in whose breasts rage the fires of Thespic ambition that tonight is the night of the first auditions for the seventh edition of the "Going Native" revue, to be staged at Loew's Capitol Theater next month. It is still not too late to make application at the Loew theaters, the drama desks, the dancing schools or the radio stations. All manner of talent is wanted—provided it is talent—singers, dancers, specialists, comedians, mimics, acrobats and whatnot. The only ironclad stipulation is that the applicant must be 18 years of age or older. Tonight's auditions will be held in the air-cooled Willard Room of the Willard Hotel and will begin promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

Speaking of Loew's Capitol, it is a little hard to realize that Phil Lampkin waved his farewell baton over the orchestra there Thursday night after seven and a half years of valiant and valuable service on the podium. Phil has taken occasional vacations before, to be sure, but this time he will not be back—at least not right away.

During his long term of service, the fork-handed Mr. Lampkin did much for music in the Capital. By force of a dynamic personality, emphasized now and then by a dash of gymnastics on the conductor's stand, he whipped his orchestra into an alert and unified ensemble that turned old-time "flops" into resounding hits. I am referring now, needless to say, to the overture numbers that have been played at the Capitol since 1932. Having seen many of the standard overtures die awful deaths in preceding years, this desk was startled, at first, by the skill with which Master Lampkin galvanized these old chestnuts into "three-bow" hits. Many of his own special arrangements fared even better. In the accompaniment of the stage shows, Lampkin has played for practically everybody who is anybody in vaudeville these days and has many mementos of the stars' appreciation of the caliber of his work.

What may not be so generally known is that Phil also, from time to time, has conducted orchestras for White House functions with such success that among his most valued possessions are two silver-framed, autographed photographs of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, presented him in appreciation of his contributions to more than one White House evening.

It is in no derogation of those who will follow him that it is said that Phil Lampkin will be missed by a vast number of Washington's music-loving theatergoers. He still will continue to be a resident of Friendship Heights, just over the District line in Maryland, along with his charming wife, "Kay," and their two mischievous sons.

It seems I left one out when I wrote a recent piece about Christine Stewart and Howard Whitfield's being with the Charles Coburn Mohawk Drama Festival at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., this summer. James Rawls, another well-known resident Thespian, also is laboring in the Coburn vineyard for his third successive season. Having completed his studies in the dramatic arts, he now is a member of the acting company, giving Washington a fine representation in one of the country's foremost summer theater enterprises.

It is reported that the Warner Brothers have 19 important story properties in preparation for four of their outstanding stars. While some of these will not be ready before midwinter, or later, the Burbank Studios believe in taking time by the fetlock, or something. Stories pending for the four screen personalities follow:

For Bette Davis, "All This and Heaven, Too," "Devotion," "The Miracle," "We Shall Meet Again," and "West of Frisco;" for Errol Flynn, "The Sea Hawk," "The White Rajah," "Captain Horatio Hornblower" and "The City of Angels;" for Edward G. Robinson, "The Life of Dr. Ehrlich," "Gusher," "Prince of Imposters," "Footsteps in the Dark," "The Moon and Sixpence," "One Thousand Windows" and "The Sea Wolf;" for James Cagney, "The City of Iron Men" and "John Paul Jones."

Well, they asked for work when they went there!

The New Yorker

New York, July 16.

WAR DEPARTMENT: The American Federation of Actors, whose officials walked out of the hearing before its parent organization, the 4 A's—the hearing concerning charges against the A. F. A. practices—has taken the initiative in these proceedings . . . The organization filed 14 charges against the 4 A's this week before William F. Green, asking that he cancel the A. F. of L. charter.

ILLUSTRATED DEPARTMENT: Gypsy Rose Lee, who is making her first appearance in the legitimate theater in "I Must Love Someone," was asked to pose for a series of photos for PIC magazine . . . Gypsy obliged and emerged from the photographer's studio somewhat depressed . . . "I kept telling 'em I'm in legit now," she lamented, "but still the cameraman yelled 'Drop it a little lower—lift it a little higher.'"

SPORTS DEPARTMENT: Tony Canzoneri, who lost his lightweight championship to Barney Ross, will emulate his conqueror by donning grease paint and speaking lines behind the footlights . . . Canzoneri will portray the role of the prize fighter in Clifford Odets' "Golden Boy" in Long Beach next month.

DRAMA DEPARTMENT: Orson Welles met Ethel Barrymore recently and asked her whether it was true that she visited Ed Wynn and congratulated him and Wynn acknowledged: "That's very nice praise—coming from the First Lady of the Theater" . . . "But haven't you heard?" Ethel is alleged to have replied. "I am no lnoger the First Lady of the Theater." "Then who is?" asked Wynn, and Ethel replied: "Orson Welles" . . . "Tell me, Miss Barrymore," Welles asked her, "is that really true?" . . . "No," Ethel assured. "It wasn't Wynn."

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT: Norman Bel Geddes, who designed the General Motors Futurama at the World's Fair, is invading the night club field . . . He will streamline El Morocco, the cafe which will close for the rest of the summer . . . Bel Geddes will convert it into "The Night Club of Tomorrow."

FASHIONS DEPARTMENT: Henny Youngman, who will appear at Loew's State celebrated this event by purchasing a wrist watch studded with precious jewels . . . What time is it?" Youngman was asked the other night . . . He studied the face of the watch, exhibited it for proof and answered: "It's exactly 2 rubies after 12."

LOCAL NEWS—Forty-three shakedown suspects now are lodged in the Tombs in connection with the Dist. Atty.'s investigation into the extortion racket . . . Orson Welles will leave for Hollywood to produce, direct, write and star in a movie for RKO. The contract is a 60-page document . . . Ina Rae Hutton, who has been conducting an all-girl orchestra, has organized an all-male band called "The Playboys" . . . The sight of Sidney Kingsley and George Jean Nathan walking arm-in-arm was the oddest oddity at the premiere of Ripley's Odditorium. They'd been feuding for years . . . Moss Hart asked Alec Woollcott to autograph his copy of "While Rome Burns." Woollcott reached for a pen and inscribed: "To Moss Hart—for reasons which escape me."

THEATER DEPT.: A theatrical agent, interested in placing his client with The Group Theater, described his talents to Harold Clurman, The Group's director . . . "You should sign him right away," the agent suggested. "He's a handsome guy, with an honest face" . . . "I'm sorry," Clurman informed. "We don't present that type of play."

DANCE DEPT.: One of Bugs Baer's gray-haired friends made a feeble attempt at doing a rhumba at the Stork Club the other night. "I'm a very young man," the oldster insisted . . . "Yes, you're young," Baer agreed, "but you'll have a tough time explaining why mosquitoes stopped biting you 30 years ago."

UTILITIES DEPT.: Katherine Brush, the novelist, has an unusual addition to her collection of rare books . . . She has a real collector's item—a 1939 Manhattan telephone directory with the entire "H" section missing.

Good 'Bad Boy' Will Continue To Be 'Toughie'

George Raft Repents His Recent Rebellion And Explains Why

By George Raft.

(Written for the United Press)

Universal City, July 16.—For the past five years I have rebelled against the policy of making me a "bad boy" in all my pictures. In fact, I once "gambled a million" by tearing up a fat studio contract attempting to prove my point, and clinch my protests.

At long last I have capitulated to the producers. I will continue to argue for better roles, but as long as they are willing to pay me big money, I will not turn down a part merely because it is an unsympathetic one. The producers are closer to the boxoffice than I am, and if the public prefers me in certain types of roles, that's what they will continue to get.

Sought Improved "Boxoffice"

In my own defense, it is only fair to state that my rebellious attitude, at times, was solely in the interests of enhancing my value as a boxoffice personality, and improving the quality of my pictures. And I am sure that was the same motive behind the actions of other so-called movie rebels, such as Jimmy Cagney, Bette Davis, Bob Montgomery and others who have done their share of independent thinking and fighting in connection with their casting.

So, here I am, in the middle of a new picture for Universal, "I Stole a Million," in which I again portray one of those chaps who travel the wrong route when society slaps him in the face for what it considers a misstep.

And while my pictures emphasize the axiom that crime doesn't pay in real life, it most certainly does for me on the screen.

Society Not Blameless

Until recently, I made repeated attempts to get away from the "bad-boy" parts. I figured I could do something else equally well, and couldn't see why I shouldn't be given the opportunity. I was tired of fanning a gun in nearly every scene, and it did become monotonous getting bumped off at the end of nearly every picture.

But when I became gun shy, the producers grew Raft shy it came to handing out the other brand of parts. But they knew what they were doing, apparently, because the balloting at the boxoffice indicates tha the public still believes I am a good bad-boy.

In one respect, I have won my argument. They have softened enough to let me motivate a character substantially along the lines of my own designs. Which means I am not wholly bad. Part of the blame for my accumulative misconduct rests on society, and not the individual. And that, I believe, is an advancement in moviemaking because to get at the fundamental roots of crime, our social system, more than our individuals, needs overhauling.

Quints to Sea

John Qualen, the screen "father" of the Dionne quintuples, will go to sea for his new role as a tugboat pilot in "Thunder Afloat," which stars Wallace Beery.

On Vacation

Jeanette MacDonald and Gene Raymond, vacationing in the Pacific Northwest after completion of her recent concert tour, will return to Hollywood late in June.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, July 16 (1939).—Merle Oberon and her bridegroom, Alexander Korda, telephoned bright and early to send greetings. I heard them in London as plainly as if they were in the next room and while they were having tea I was drinking my morning coffee. Alex says that he and his bride will probably be here this fall and that he has no intention of leaving the United Artists Company. He finishes "The Thief of Bagdad" in three weeks and starts immediately on "The Sinner," based on "Manon Lescaut," with Merle as the star.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Just a few hours previous he had closed for the rights to "The Constant Nymph," Margaret Kennedy's best seller of a few years ago and he makes that one in Hollywood. There is a possibility that the exteriors for "The Sinner" will be filmed in New Orleans, but in any event we will welcome the Kordas back among us in a few hours. Alex said he was eager to get Hollywood's opinion of his "Four Feathers," to be previewed here next Thursday.

You'll have to pardon me if I take a bow on the discovery of William Anthony Poulsen, the bored baby who will play Nick Charles, jr., in "The Thin Man Returns." His mother, a University of Southern California graduate, who looks little more than a youngster herself, tells me she had no intention of entering Bill, jr., in the movies until she read in the column that M-G-M was on the hunt for a blase infant. Just at that moment her 8-month-old son was looking plenty bored with his spinach so she decided to brave the crowd of 836 other juveniles to take Bill to M-G-M. Much more important than this one picture, Bill, jr.'s got himself a job for as long as the "Thin Man" series is produced, with him growing up as the bouncing offspring of Myrna Loy and Bill Powell.

The summer heat went up a notch Saturday when Rosalind Russell started battling for more do-re-mi on her new M-G-M contract. Her time is up at that studio after five years and just at a time when "the women," according to a privileged insider, puts her right on top. Roz, according to reports, wasn't very happy about the billing on the picture for Norma Shearer and Joan Crawford, per their contracts, were allotted top spots. At that, L. B. Mayer and his lion tamers were in a spot for, with about ten femme headliners, it was pretty difficult to distribute honors evenly and keep everybody happy. But the funny thing is that out in Podunk they don't care if a star has top or bottom billing just so the picture is good.

For a long time Constance Bennett was considered the very smartest woman in Hollywood but she has a rival. Binnie Barnes is no amateur when it comes to making money aside from her regular movie jobs. She recently made a real estate turnover on a Beverly Hills apartment house which netted her a profit of $60,000. Before that she had four dress shops in London at one time and was interested in one here. What's more, all of them were on a paying basis. Binnie, like Connie, needn't worry about the howling wolf if movie parts should get scarce.

Chatter in Hollywood: Praise from Caesar, indeed, is the compliment Orson Welles paid John Barrymore when he saw him in "My Dear Children" in Chicago. Said the Mars terror, "If I had a son who wanted to be an actor I would make him sit at the feet of Barrymore." Jawn, they tell me, is doing so well that it looks as if "My Dear Children" will run all through the summer in the Windy City. He has taken hold of himself and at the moment is reported as being extremely attentive to a Chicago society girl. You can always depend upon this Barrymore to do the unexpected—even the spectacular.

Evidently the charm of Richard Lyon, Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon's 4-year-old, has been whispered around Hollywood for, believe it or not, the young man has been offered a movie job. They want him for Carole Lombard's picture, "Vigil in the Night" and if he steals hearts on the screen the way he has captured everyone in our household, he'll be a young sensation. He is the most unspoiled, lovable youngster with a smile for everyone and the manners of a Sir Walter Raleigh. All that remains is for Dickie, or Richard the lion-hearted as he calls himself, to win his daddy's permission to become a movie star.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random; Janet Gaynor and Adrian have finally named the day but won't announce it until Janet's mother is completely well. She was operated on by the famous Dr. Walker for a detached retina and I'm glad to say her eyesight has been saved; you'll be surprised to hear of a movie wedding in Paris ere long; Bert Wheeler has been night clubbing with a beauty he won't introduce even to his best men friends, he's that afraid someone will steal her; William Powell's boy, Bill, jr., has graduated from military school and enters Hollywood High in September. Meanwhile he's spending summer vacation with his dad who is mighty proud of him; Dorothy Lamour has such a deep coat of tan she needs no makeup for the final scenes of "Disputed Passage;" Prof. Theodore Flynn is the only one in the world I know who could bring his wandering boy in from his boat. Yep, when the professor arrived on Friday Errol was there to greet him. The elder Flynn is dean of science at Queens University, Belfast.

Sid Rogell hosted a party for Hope Hampton and Jules Brulatour at the Victor Hugo. They came on for the Warner wedding and have been at the races every day; didn't know that the popular Pansy Schenck (Mrs. Nick) was in town until she telephoned to say hello; a card from Bea and Charlie Murray, veteran actor, from the Orient says they met Gloria Stuart twice on their trip and celebrated their thirty-fourth anniversary in faraway Japan; the Arthur Stebbins chose today to greet their friends at home; Nancy Kelly denies that she is engaged to Edmund O'Brien but says when she does get married it will be in a church and not in Yuma; Mike Romanoff crashed the Warner wedding last week, kissed the bride's hand and said, "His Royal Highness salutes you" and then made straight for the bar.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

By Dr. Herman Lissauer

(Batting for Hedda Hopper)

"I'd like to know——"

I've heard those words 50 times a day, over a number of years. They're fired at me by set designers, scenarists, publicity men, dress designers, property men, associate producers, make-up men, hairdressers—practically every one around our big studio. Everyone, that is, except actors and actresses. Which adds to my conviction that they lead an easy life. Someone tells them the answers in advance.

You might think I'd be tired answering questions. On the contrary. I, and my ten assistants, believe our work offers more mental stimulus, affords more pleasure, and accrues more lasting benefit than most of the multifarious duties around the lot.

You may not want to know potato chips were first introduced in 1865. Perhaps you don't like potato chips, particularly the kind they use to serve with drug store sandwiches. Our records revealed that potato chips were served the guests at a party scene in "The Old Maid." And in the year 1865.

For the same picture we learned that butter sold for $1 a pound in 1878, that was a bit of satisfaction for when I went home that night my wife handed me the grocery bill for the month.

As a columnist you, my dear Hedda, may be interested to know that while there was no such thing as a gossip column in 1861—they dished out plenty under the general heading "Personals."

"Mr. G. W. Brown, editor of the Kansas Herald of Freedom, has, it appears (the item read) got himself into trouble, according to our Lawrence correspondent, who reports: 'We have a little scandal in our goodly city. Mrs. G. W. Brown has applied for a divorce, charging her liege lord with inhuman treatment and associating with other women.'"

Suppose you went into a "beer hall" with a gentleman back in 1861, and he kept his hat on. Would you be offended? You shouldn't be, for our files showing a beer hall of that period showed all men seated at tables wearing their hats, many small babies being served from huge mugs of beer, and a sign on the wall proclaiming "Audience is requested not to stand on chairs or tables."

Here are a few little items gleaned from the mandates of the Emily Post of the period (1886):

"Never ask a lady a question about anything whatsoever." No reason was given.

And on dress for men: "Avoid what is called the 'ruffianly style of dress,' or the 'nonchalant' and 'slouching' look of a half-buttoned vest and suspenderless pantaloons. That sort of affectation is more disgusting than the painfully elaborate frippery of the dandy." (Ed. note: They should have seen Jack Oakie wearing a red turtleneck sweater at a formal party.) Thus we were able to warn Goerge Brent and his tailor before he started to work in a Bette Davis picture.

George was only slightly amused.

Table manners were considered by the same social dictator. She, or he, wrote: "You will sip your soup as quietly as possible from side of spoon and, of ourse, will not commit the vulgarity of blowing in it, or trying to cool it after it is in your mouth by drawing in a quantity of air, for by so doing you'd surely annoy, perchane turn the stomach of the lady next to you."

And don't think Social Security is anything new. Elizabeth started such a plan in her navy about 1569. Every man and boy in the service regularly forfeited a small portion of his salary which was placed in "a strong chest with five locks especially provided." From this chest funds were taken when some seaman fell in need. And the original chest is still preserved in the Museum of the Royal Hospital at Greenwich.

We can show you a picture of it.

Views Behind the News:

PICARD WINS P. G. A. CROWN—Which makes him the best golfer in the world, as American golf pros reckon it. Popular belief may be that the American Open championship is the top title of golf and that the winner is the No. 1 golfer of the world, but that does not happen to be true as the best golfers regard it. The toughest tournament to win is the affair that Picard won last week at Pomonok—the P. G. A.

POVICH

Nobody who wasn't a super golfer ever won the P. G. A. title. That is something that cannot be said for the National Open, which could be and was won by such as Sam Parks, an obscure Pittsburgh pro who developed a hot hand, Tony Manero, 9, like Case and others.

Henry Picard's triumph in the P. G. A. elevates him to a higher notch among his fellow pros than is occupied by Byron Nelson, the United States Open champion. Picard won at match play, while Nelson won the open title at medal play. Match play means looking your opponent in the eye and battling it out with him, which places a premium on moral courage as contrasted with the isolation of medal play wherein the winner combats unseen forces and never knows when he is confronted with a crisis.

And the American sports show, too often too grim and serious, could stand more of the human stuff that the P. G. A. finals between Picard and Nelson produced last week-end. The little tableau on the decisive thirty-seventh green was a terrific life to the profession of pro golf.

When Nelson, winner of the National Open, faced the 10-foot putt that might win him the P. G. A. crown or cost him that title, and then smilingly inquired: "Would somebody like to make this putt for me?" It was a pleasing commentary on the type of fellow that he is. With that one crack at a time when thousands of dollars in honorariums hung in the balance, Nelson endeared himself to any golfer whose knees ever trembled as he started to stroke a 3-foot putt that would decide a 10-cent bet. There are millions of that kind, including yours truly.

JURGES AND UMPIRE FINED AND SUSPENDED—It's high time that a major league president summoned enough wisdom and courage to lay it on an umpire. When Ford Frick, of the National League, announced that he was fining not only Bill Jurges $150 and suspending him for t[illegible] days for his part of the Giants-Reds squabble, but also announced that the same fine and suspension would apply to Umpire George Magerkurth it was extremely refreshing.

What's sacred about umpires anyway? For years they have been getting away with the equivalent of judicial murder, despite the fact that among their number are some of the most arrogant bullies in the land. League presidents heretofore have always been guided by the umpire's reports of all squabbles on the field and never yet has an umpire given himself the worst of it in those reports.

But apparently Frick has discovered that an umpire could be in the wrong. Certainly Magerkurth contributed nothing to the dignity and orderliness of the game if, as charged he spat in Jurges' face. There is evidence that Jurges was guilty of the same sort of act, but the umpire is supposed to be above such things, and spitting in a guy's face can hardly be construed as an act of self defense.

As we were saying, too many umpires act as if they were the little tin kings of the game. Unless they happen to be umpiring in the city where league headquarters are situated and a league official is attending the game, they can get away with most anything. At least half the battles between umpires and players are provoked by the umpires, whose language, on occasion, would make a longshoreman blush with envy.

Bill Jurges will pay the $150 fine and like it, but not very much, because ball players are always deeply wounded when banged in the pocketbook. But he can consider himself lucky at that. One of the things that can cause a ball player to be expelled from the big leagues for life is striking an umpire, even with cause.

RED SOX WIN TWELVE STRAIGHT—Not since Washington won the pennant in 1933 has the American League witnessed as obvious a case of sheer inspiration as the second-place Boston Red Sox are now demonstrating. Joe Cronin has won his dozen straight games and is now challenging the Yankees with a club that apparently has no business doing it.

Somehow, Cronin has been making fellows like Dennis Galehouse, Emerson Dickman, Elden Auker and Freddy Ostermueller win games for him with a consistency they never knew. Certainly, two weeks ago, Cronin's pitching was the joke outfit of the league. Now it is red hot, has caught the pennant fever and is turning in jobs that are remarkable.

On paper, the Red Sox always figured to be a hard-socking club with such as Jimmy Foxx, Joe Cronin, Roger Cramer, Joe Vosmik and Ted Williams providing the power, but even that sort of a crew was not supposed to offset what appeared to be a woeful pitching weakness. But look at what has been happening. It is Boston pitching, as much as anything else that has pulled the club within hailing distance of the Yanks.

And if you want other reasons, they can be found easily enough, too. Ted Williams, in his freshman year in the big leagues, is driving in more runs with his long wallops than any player in the league. Bobby Doerr is giving the Red Sox a second-base job second only to Joe Gordon's for the Yankees. Jim Tabor is a rousing success as a rookie third baseman, Jimmy Foxx is one of the league's leading hitters.

The Red Sox may not win the pennant. They don't figure to beat out the Yankees. But Cronin's mid-season drive with his club will not be in vain. It will at least save him his job, which was to expire at the end of his five-year contract in October.

Grove Goes Route In Opener; 128,448 See Detroit Play Four Home Games

By the Associated Press

Detroit, July 16.—The thundering Boston Red Sox won their eleventh and twelfth straight victories to stick six games behind the leading New York Yankees as they swept both ends of a double header with the Detroit Tigers today. The scores were 9 to 2, and 3 to 0, the Bengals contributing eight misplays in the first game and four in the second.

Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove went the route for Boston in the first game and held Detroit to six hits. He got a lift from Jimmy Foxx, who belted his fifteenth homer of the year in the eighth. Rudy York, of the Tigers, hit for the circuit in the fifth.

In the second game Denny Galehouse held Detroit to four hits, one less than Boston obtained. The Red Sox combined their hits nicely, scoring in the fourth on Bobby Doerr's double, an infield out and a sacrifice fly. In the eighth the Tigers committed four errors and Boston got two singles to produce the remaining runs.

A crowd of 48,152 witnessed the two games, the attendance bringing Detroit's total for the first four days of its present home stand to 128,448.

Chicago Boy Wins Western Net Title

Chicago, July 16 (AP).—William Murphy, of Chicago, completed his giant-killing sweep today with a 6-8, 6-1, 9-7 victory over Jack Tidball, of Los Angeles, in the finals of the men's singles of the Western Tennis tournament.

Fourth-seeded and better known as a doubles player, Murphy displayed the same steady brand of tennis in defeating second-seeded Tidball as he did in eliminating top-ranked Wilbur Coen, jr., of Kansas City, in the semifinals.

Murphy and his brother, Chet, who lost to Tidball in the semifinals, are the doubles champions of the Big Ten and Chet also is the singles titleholder of the conference.

Escape Wins Gibson Island Yacht Race

Grosvenor's Craft Retires Trophy With Star Boat Victory

Annapolis, July 16.—The Escape, owned and skippered by Melville Grosvenor, of Washington, this afternoon retired the Gibson Island Yacht Club trophy by winning the event for the third time. Today's race was the fourth of a series of five won by Escape.

Although the victory qualified Grosvenor and his wife, who acts as his crew, for the international races at Kiel, Germany, late in August, he said he didn't believe he would compete.

However, the Escape, with other fast Gibson Island boats, will meet some of the best Star boats and most skillful skippers in the East at Gibson Island next Friday when a three-day regatta is scheduled to open.

Superiority in general sailing was the deciding factor of Grosevenor's winning performance today which was over a six-mile course and in an average wind, sometimes brisk. The Escape's time was 1:53.3. The Escape won all of the five races of the series except the first, which was taken by Wave, owned and handled by Dave Dunnington, also of Washington.

Four six-meter craft raced over a "dog-leg" course, north of Gibson Island as a supporting feature of the main race and the event was won by Miller Sherwood's Indian Scout over his brother John's Silroc by about thre and one-half minutes.

The order of finish:
Escape, M. B. Grosvenor, 1:53:30; Wave, David Dunigan, 1:53:56; White Wake, Wolfe, 1:59:08; Phantom, Melvin, 2:00:46; Swordfish, Mangus, 2:01:11; Pisa, Strong, 2:07:11; Polly, Craycroft, 2:14:07; Onward, Graham, dnf.

Bill Klem Leaves Hospital Wednesday

Dell and Wills Headline Ring Card Tonight

8-Round Welterweight Fight Feature of 38-Round Program

By Al Hailey

A gathering of hard-punching youngsters hungry for a taste of the fight game's fame and fortune will square off tonight at Griffith Stadium in a 38-round boxing show that for sheer action promises to please even Washington's most urbane boxing fans.

While two heavyweight fights and one middleweight bout are included on the card, the eight-round welterweight clash between Frankie Wills, of Washington, and Carl Dell, of New York, appears as the top attraction.

Wills and Dell will be fighting for a shot at Lou Gevinson here next week and a future shot at the National Boxing Association's No. 5 rating now held by Steve Mamakos. Wills has won 13 of his 15 pro fights and on several occasions has shown a knockout punch, while Dell, handled by Al Weill, is also con-

Frankie Parker Wins Spring Lake Crown; Crowd Disappointed

Spring Lake, N. J., July 16 (AP).—"Come immediately—your brother-in-law has been killed"—the telegram said.

But Gardnar Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla., stuck it in his pocket, picked up his racquet and plunged into the final of the annual Spring Lake tennis tournament.

Mulloy lost to Frank A. Parker, of California in the singles today and then speeded to New London, Conn., for the funeral of Lieut. William Clemer, United States Coast Guard pilot, who was killed yesterday in a seaplane crash 150 miles southeast of New York City.

Mulloy, disclosing he had received the telegram a half-hour before he took to the court, said: "I decided to stay here and play the match because I think he (Lieut. Clemer) would want it that way.

Lieut. Brooks' Great Shot Decides Overtime Battle

It took an extra chukker to decide the hot polo battle between Sixteenth Field Artillery and 110th Field Artillery yesterday afternoon at Potomac Field, the lads of the 110th finally winning, 8 to 7. The losers started a determined goal-ward march at the start of the extra session, but lost the ball in a scramble and saw Lieut. Brooks make a difficult under-the-neck shot for the winning margin.

The day's polo activity on the riverside field began with an engagement between a pair of teams with even handicaps, Third Artillery and War Department. Cavalry, with Capt. Donaldson scoring half the team's points, took a 10-6 decision, Maj. Cheeves led the scoring of the losers with three goals.

Frederick Beats Indian Head

Frederick, Md., July 16. — A double by Hildebrand and a single by Elwood Hummer gave the Frederick Hustlers one run in the ninth inning and a hard-earned 10-9 victory over Indian Head here today. The visitors, after taking an early lead, lost it in the third when Hildebrand put Frederick in front with a home run with two on bases. Indian Head tied the count in the seventh to drive LeGore to the showers.

The fielding of Dudley in right was sensational.

Myer's Error Halps Ted Lyons Win Opener; Lewis Chased by Umpire Kolls for Tossing Dirt Into Air; West Gets Homer in 1st Game

Chicago, July 16.—The Nats today continued their dizzy pace in the West, losing two ball games in the rapid time of 3 hours and 16 minutes. Their conquerors were the White Sox, who required only an hour and 29 minutes to slap down the Nats in the first game, 3 to 2. The Sox won the second, 6 to 3.

Seventeen thousand Chicago customers watched Dutch Leonard and Buddy Myer toss away a 2-to-0 lead in the first game. In the second game the Nats outhit the White Sox, but Pete Appleton was, nevertheless, outpitched by left-handed Thornon Lee.

The Nats were no help to themselves in the ninth inning of the first game, when a quaint piece of base running by Buddy Lewis wiped out a glowing chance to tie the score at a time when old Ted Lyons was reeling.

Lewis got a break when his grounder took a freak hop over Eric McNair's head to lead off the ninth inning, and here was another break for the Nats when McNair, after fielding Taft Wright's grounder, dropped the ball as he tagged Lewis on the base lines. Both runners were safe, none were out, and the Nats needed only a run to tie the score.

Lewis Picked Off

But their hopes of getting it sagged badly a moment later, when Lewis managed to get himself picked off second base by Lyons. Travis grounded to Appling for the second out, and Myer followed with a single to center that was rendered useless when Vernon lined to Walker for the final out.

Lewis saw his last action of the afternoon in that fatal ninth, his protest of the picking off decision causing his banishment by Umpire Lou Kolls. Buddy didn't think Lyons' throw was in time. He tossed a handful of dirt into the air angrily, and was promptly waved to the bench. Charley Gilbert held down third from then on.

Both Leonard and Lyons pitched nine-hit ball. Angelo Giuliani inspired a run for the Nats in the third inning when he doubled to left center. Leonard followed with a safe bunt and the Nats appeared in for a big inning until Case hit into a double play, which scored Giuliani.

In the sixth inning they made it 2-0 when Sammy West, with one out, banged a home run into the lower deck of rightfield, his second homer of the year, and the second time he has hit a ball to that sector.

Allowing only six hits during the first six innings, Leonard had the White Sox blanked, until the seventh. Then Walker tripled to the top of the centerfield wall and, after

Dean's Arm Cut; No One Knows How

Chicub Hurler Sent Home After Hartnett Finds Hi mInjured

By International News Service.

New York, July 16.—Dizzy Dean, Chicago Cubs pitcher, suffered a bad cut on his left arm under highly mysterious circumstances early today and tonight was sent back to Chicago by Manager Gabby Hartnett.

Reports differed as to how the erstwhile "great one" had been hurt and Hartnett refused to amplify his terse announcement that Dean was being sent home "to recuperate."

Gabby, it was learned, had been first informed of Dean's injury when a bellboy summoned him to the pitcher's room at the Cubs' Hotel.

Dizzy was lying on the bed, moaning a little, as his wife attempted to stanch the flow of blood.

Dizzy and his wife told conflicting stories, according to reports.

One version was that Dean had slipped and his arm crashed through the plate glass of a cigar counter in the hotel lobby.

A doctor was summoned and took two stitches in Dean's arm. It was said the injury was less serious than the consequence which might develop from it.

The usually genial Hartnett was grim and unsmiling when he made the announcement to correspondents after the Cubs had split even with Brooklyn in a doubleheader.

By that time Dean and his wife were aboard a Chicago bound train and safe from questioners.

Whether any infraction of training rules was involved in the accident, Hartnett refused to say, but his manner indicated that such was the case.

Dean had been scheduled to take the mound for the Cubs in one of today's games and the unexpected switch created a stir among the correspondents with the team who cornered Hartnett over Dean's whereabouts. He broke down after the game and told the reason.

Umpire, Jurges Fined $150 Each, Suspended for Brawl

Danning and Terry Fined $50 by N. L. Prexy, Ford Frick

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 16.—President Ford Frick of the National League plastered fines and suspensions today on four participants in yesterday's disorderly demonstration at the Polo Grounds, when the Giants went amok because a blow by Harry Craft, of the Cincinnati Reds, into the leftfield stands was called fair by Umpire Lee Ballanfant.

Outraged at the rowdyism in his circuit, Frick cracked down with the following penalties:

Lefty Gomez Gives 7 Hits in Opener; Russo Wins Second; Henrich Gets 4 Hits

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, July 16.—The pace-setting New York Yankees scalped the Cleveland Indins, 5 to 2, and 8 to 3, in a double-header here today counting three runs in the first inning of each contest.

As a crowd of 63,064 fans looked on, the veteran Lefty Gomez limited the Clevelanders to seven safe blows in the opener, fanning five basemen, while his teammates were bunching a like number of hits off three Indians hurlers, southpaws Harry Eisenstate, and Al Milnr and Joe Dobson.

Marius Russo, Rookie Yankee southpaw, gave the tribe only six hits in the nightcap as Eisenstat and Dobson again saw service along with Mel Harder, who started and was routed by a three-run attack in the fourth. Tommy Henrich led the Yankee stick wielders with four hits in the two contests, collecting three of them including a home run, in the nightcap.

The twin victory failed to increase the Yankee's six-game hold on first place in the American League as the second-place Boston Red Sox also captured two from Detroit.

Bees Turn Back Reds Twice; Shortstop Miller Breaks Ankle

16th Victory in 21 Starts for Boston; Cincinnati Holds Six-Game Lead

By the Associated Press.

Boston, July 16.—The Boston Bees, who have been traveling at as fast a clip as any National League club in the past month, swept a double-header today from the first-place Cincinnati Reds before their biggest home crowd ofthe season—but lost their star shortstop perhaps for the rest of the season.

Nearly 30,000 persons saw the second-division Bees smack the Reds, 3 to 0, in the opener and then come from behind twice to capture the nightcap, 4 to 3, for their sixteenth victory in 21 starts.

The Reds' hold on first place, however, was cut only a half game, as the New York Giants dropped a single game to St. Louis. Cincinnati is out front by six games.

The joy of the Bees' fans was dampened somewhat by the injury of Shortstop Eddie Miller, who collided with Al Simmons in the seventh inning of the second game when they both ran after Bill Werber's short fly into leftfield. Miller broke a small bone abbove the ankle of his left leg.

Bill Posedel's command of the situation in the first game was challenged only once as he registered his ninth triumph. Cincinnati filled the bases in the sixth when Myers walked and Werber and Bongiovanni singled, but Heavy Hitter Frank McCormick went down swinging to end the therat.

Cincinnati got off to a good start in the second game with two runs in the third, doubles by Werber and McCormick being the big guns in the attack, but the Bees came back in the fourth to tie it up.

With the 1938 finalists—Bobby Riggs and Frankie Kovacs, of Los Angeles—absent, nearly a half-hundred racquet wielders will seek a leg on the historic bowl in one of the first major American grass court tournaments of the season.

Two foreign entrants, Adrian Quist and Jack Crawford, of Australia, are expected to offer keen competition.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, July 16.—Portrait of a couple of famous young men, relaxing after their tough P. G. A. finals:

Henry Picard—There isn't a bone in me doesn't ache.

Byron Nelson—Let me sit down here, or I'll fall.

CONSIDINE

Reporter—That was a great match. It's tough both of you couldn't win.

Picard—Hagen once said that all you have to do is win 1-up, and you're champ. You don't need much edge. And I sure didn't have any. You were tough out there, By.

Nelson—Tough as I could be. I never played better golf than that. But you licked me.

Picard—I never played better either. You know what? I bet you and I can play more golf, with fewer bogies, than any two players in the world.

Reporter—This is a hell of a game. If two fighters were out for a title, as you two were today, they'd be snarling and biting each other. You two guys looked like you were going to kiss, a couple times there.

Picard—Don't worry, both of us were out there to win.

Nelson—Gosh, yes. I wanted to win this one. They don't win the Open and P. G. A. every year.

Reporter—Sarazen's the only guy ever did it the same year.

Picard—We talked out there, sure. Couple times By commented on the way a shot of his acted, and I said I would have hit it the same way he did.

Discussed Their Shots Duuring Match

Nelson—We'd talk about a shot when there was something familiar about it. For instance on the eighteenth this afternoon Pic had the exact same putt that I had, and sunk, this morning on the same green.

Picard—Yeah, and I was tempted to come over and ask you how you played it. I mean how the green broke, and so on. But I figured that would be asking too much.

Reporter—By, how does it feel to miss a putt when all that dough is riding on the line? Does it make your stomach flop over?

Nelson—I didn't think much about that putt (the 6-footer he missed on the 37 green to lose the title). I was sure it was going in. I knew the green sloped and I saw that the grass was cut in such a way that it sloped the same way. But the ball never bent an inch. It just kept going straight, when it should've come around and gone in. By gosh, I'd go out there right now and hit that putt the exact same way—and it would go in.

Reporter—Somebody said that a Japanese beetle kept it from curving. The greens were full of them.

Nelson—A beetle's a hell of a thing to lose a title over, if that's true.

Reporter—Pic at what point did you think you were going to win.

Knew He'd Won When He Was Handed Cup

Picard—When they handed me the cup. No, seriously, you never know when you're going to win a match like that. I was pretty pooped out after I went into the lead on the fourteenth, when he chipped over the stymie I laid him. But on the eighteenth I gave my drive everything I had. I wouldn't have cared if it had gone into the clubhouse, the way I felt. But it went right down the middle and gave me the chance to tie the match. Gave me a lift, that one did.

Reporter—By, are you in favor of the stymie?

Nelson—(Who has had trouble with them) I'm a bad guy to ask about that.

Picard—I can't say I'm opposed to it. It's the only real defining points between match play and medal play. If they throw out the stymie they might as well throw out match play, and that would be bad because I think that about 60 per cent of all the golf rules are designed for match play. I think match play's the best test of golf.

Nelson—takes a lot more out of you. I know that much. I can't move, but I've got to drive to Reading for an exhibition Sunday. Well . . . they won't get their money's worth.

Reporter (to Cork O'Keefe, who backed the tournament for $15,000 and then saw it torn by threatened strikes and the early defeat of Sam Snead, the best box office attraction in the game)—How did you make out, Cork?

O'Keefe—I still don't know . . . how much I lost.

Reporter—What's the next tournament you're going to back?

Golfer, With Club, Attacks Robber With Gun—Wins

Granville, Ohio, July 16 (AP).—A golf club driver in the hands of a golfer proved more effective than a pistol in the hands of a burglar who attempted to rob the Granville Inn golf course clubhouse today.

Dayton Haynes, asleep in the clubhouse, heard the burglar break the front window. He seized a golf club and swung at the intruder. After firing two shots without hitting Haynes, the burglar fled.

Dallas Golfer Wins Western Amateur

Oklahoma City, July 16 (AP).—Harry Todd, of Dallas, Tex., defeated Larry Moller, of Quincy, Ill., 2 and 1, today to win the championship of the fortieth annual Western Amateur golf tournament.

The title match ended at the thirty-fifth hole when Moller could do no better than stay even with the Texan, who protected his 2-up lead through the last three holes.

Todd, city champion of Dallas, led throughout the last 18-hole round after finishing a see-saw morning round, 1-up.

Maple Leafs Win

Syracuse, N. Y., July 16, (INS).—A five-run splurge at the expense of Jack Tising in the fourth inning this afternoon gave the Toronto Maple Leafs a 6-4 victory over the Syracuse Chiefs in the International League.

Bromwich, Quist Complete Sweep Over Filipinos

Although the tennis matches today virtually were exhibitions because the Australians already had won the first two singles and the doubles matches, Sanchez and Ampon fought stubbornly. Bromwich defeated Sanchez, 6—1, 6—1, 6—3, and Quist defeated Ampon in a harder match, 7—5, 6—4, 6—3.

Four tied in the ladies inside nine event, Mrs. L. G. Pray, 41-3, 38, Mrs. W. J. Nails, 63-25, 38, Mrs. C. E. McGowan, 51-13, 68, and W. A. Hill, 50-12, 68.

INDIAN SPRING

A. C. Joorfetz and Charles Allan won the two-man trophy at Indian Spring, the former scoring 85, Allan, 96, and with handicap allowance they had a best ball of 30-32, 62.

L. F. Farmer and Baxter Davis had 31-32, 63, Farmer scoring 79 and Davis, 83.

Unusually Fast Field Enters Swim Tonight

D. C., Philadelphia, Baltimore, Reading Will Seek Titles

A first-class field in quality and numbers is entered in tonight's swimming and diving meet at the Airport Pool, promising one of the District's best water racing competitions in the opinion of Earle Weeks, president of the District A. A. U.

"This is the best field we have ever had in an outdoor meet here," Weeks said last night. "Each event is jammed with first-class performers and we may see a number of records smashed."

The list of entrants has now reached the startling total of 122. The District has an extremely large representation, but the ranking splashers from Philadelphia, Baltimore and Reading, Pa., also are entered.

The 60-yard free style events in both men and women's divisions have attracted 27 entrants each and some furious competition is predicted. This is believed to be a record entry in these events.

Ann Bono, the smooth-stroking lassie from the Shoreham Club, will face the finest free-style field she has ever competed against here. Miss Bono has a habit of taking the honors in this class.

But tonight Ann Arnson, of the East Potomac Club, Mary Helen Taylor, of the Penn A. C., Philadelphia, and Dorothy Steinbraker, also of East Potomac, are likely to push Miss Bono to the limit, possibly a new mark.

The men's free style race is expected to find Eric Steingass, of the Penn A. C., Brent Farber, of the Baltimore Knights of Columbus Club and Don Kayhoe, of the Shoreham, near the top.

In the men's driving, local attention, of course, will be focused on Bill Tarbett, the Shoreham ace. Bill seldom is defeated here, although Fred Steiber, of Baltimore, is reported in top form.

Tarbett and Steiber have waged a number of keen battles the past year.

The first event tonight starts at 8 o'clock. Bleachers have been erected to accommodate spectators. Admission charge is 15 cents.

Washington Canoe Club Wins Middle States A. C. A. Regatta

Philadelphia One-Blade Tandem Combination Equals Record in Annual Canoe Event

By Jack Munhall.

Even an American record-tying performance by Stanley Cimokowski and Frank Krick, Philadelphia's great single-blade tandem combination, failed to prevent the Washington Canoe Club from pulling away from all rivals yesterday in the Middle States division of the A. C. A. Regatta held on a half-mile course above Key Bridge.

Cimokowski and Krick, a pair of bronzed huskies from the Philadelphia Canoe Club and the United States' chief hope in the next Olympics in which it will enter a single-blade tandem for only the second time, hung up the time of 3:46 to equal the 5-year-old mark made by I. Taboy and A. Kopoff, of the Samoset Canoe Club, Roxbury, Mass.

This record was totally unexpected after the first hundred yards of the race for Edward Trilling and Billy Havens, jr., of the host club, who had been deemed able to give the Philadelphians a close battle, were left far in the wake. Cimokowski and Krick, appearing to coast the last few yards, finishe da full ten seconds ahead of the second-place team.

D. C. Wins 6 Events

Washington Canoe Club, showing fine strength in both junior and senior divisions, won 6 of the 12 events which figured in the final result and also the exhibition tilting contest to amass 57 points for the team championship. Far to the rear with 23 came Yonkers Canoe Club, N. Y. Cacawa Canoe Club, Philadelphia, was third with 17 and was followed by Philadelphia Canoe Club, 10, and Tuscarora Canoe Club, N. J., 1.

All winners and runners-up of the 12 racing events qualified automatically for the national championships at the New York World's Fair early in July. There they will compete with qualifiers from sectional meets staged in New England, and the Western and Dixie States.

Cimokowski and Krick are regarded as sure-fire bets to win the national single blade tandem title. Cimokowski, born in Poland, was ineligible for the last Olympics because his United States citizenship papers were not in order.

25th Year of Competition

Harry (Pop) Knight, sr., the venerable old Washington Canoe Club star who was among the first American paddle winners in Olympic, celebrated his twenty-fifth year of competitive racing yesterday by helping the hosts win two races. Now professing to be 52 years old and fat and baldish, the senior Knight stroked the four-boat single crew to an easy victory and paddled fourth on the four-boat double team which beat Cacawa in the most thrilling race of the day.

The Washington and Canoe Club and Cacawa units came down the home stretch paddling as one. About 200 yards from the finish line the locals opened up with a tremendous spirt which carried it to the wire fully a length ahead. Their time of 3:16 was very fast, being only 4½ seconds under the world record.

The Washington Canoe Club junior four-boat double made an unexpectedly strong showing only to be beaten in a driving finish by Yonkers' national champions. The finish of this race was practically the same as that of the senior four-boat double, except that Washington matched two last-minute "kicks" by Yonkers before dropping back half a length as they crossed the line.

Billy Havens, jr., Washington's national tilting champion, was unable to resume his bitter rivalry with Adolph Springle, Middle Atlantic titleholder from Viking Canoe Club, New Jersey, because Springle failed to appear, but nevertheless received stiff competition before defending his honors. Ed Bauer, of Philadelphia C. C., who acted as official announcer for all of the races, gave Havens and his father, who paddled their canoe, a keen tussle for fully ten minutes before being spilled in the final round of an elimination. H. Woodward assisted Bauer.

Hal Surface Wins Md. Net Title in 4 Sets

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, July 16.—Hal Surface, Veteran Kansas City, Mo., star, outsteadied Edward Alloo unranked unknown from San Francisco, to take the Maryland men's singles tennis title today by a 6—4, 5—7, 6—2, 6—1 margin.

Surface, seeded No. 3, disposed of Wayne Sabin, Portland, Oreg., Davis Cup hope, in the semi-finals.

Welby Van Horn and Jack Kramer raced through three straight sets to defeat their fellow Californians to grab the men's doubles title. Scores were 6—4, 6—2, 6—4.

Mulloy, Shocked by Telegram, Loses

Calif., crushed Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., 610, 6-4, 6-2, today to win the Spring Lake invitation singles tennis tournment for the sixth time in seven years.

The national clay court champion scored one of the most decisive victories in the history of the tournament and reasserted himself as a leading candidate for the United States Davis Cup team.

Parker then teamed with C. Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, Calif., to trounce John Hope Doeg of Rumson and Francis X. Shields fo Hollywood, Calif., in the doubles final, 6-0, 6-4, 6-3.

Never behind throughout his match with Mulloy, Parker handed the 23-year-old Floridian one of the worst setbacks of his career. Mulloy's game was below standard, greatly because more experienced Parker never gave him an opportunity to get started.

It took Parker less than 15 minutes to win the first set at love. Playing as calmly as if the match were merely a preliminary round engagement, he stroked the ball smoothly and accurately. Mulloy, trying vainly to match Parker's unfaltering forehand and backhand drives to the baseline, drove into the net repeatedly. On other occasions, his ball landed several feet outside the sidelines.

The match required but 45 minutes to complete and obviously disappointed a gallery of 1,500 spectators, who expected to see Mulloy give Parker the stiffest battle he has had in the six years he has competed here. As it was, Parker completely outclassed his rival, preserved his remarkable record of never having lost a set at Spring Lake and retired the Clifford Hemphill challenge for the second time.

Mulloy, runner-up to Parker in the finals of the National Clay Court tournament last month, gave only one good account of himself today. That was in the second set when, trailing at 5—1 he staged a rally to win three games in a row.

Read's Pharmacy Continues Comeback, Defeats Klein, 5-4

Erstwhile 'Doormat' Tops Champs

Small Motors Wins Upset Over D. G. S. In National City League Baseball

The Read's Pharmacy nine, doormat for National City "A" League teams in the first-half schedule, displayed its marked improvement again yesterday when it staved off a last-inning rally of Klein Tavern, first-half winner, and won its second straight game of the abbeviated second half, 5 to 4. Jud Kingman was touched for nine hits, but they were well scattered.

Another surprising result in the same section was the 5-to-4 victory Small Motors took over D. G. S. The Grocerymen took an early lead, but saw the score tied as the clubs went into the eighth inning. Bob Elliot, Small second baseman, broke the deadlock and won the game when he hit a clean homer into the East Ellipse outfield.

Service Battery and Deoudes, Inc., remained in the leads of "B" and Junior sections, the first trouncing Wade's Auto, 9 to 3, for its tenth consecutive victory, and Deoudes coming within a single run of shutting out the Cardinals, 7 to 1.

Manger's Blue Glide Does 64.33 M.P.H. in Hydroplane Event

By the Associated Press

North East, Mr., July 16.—Julius Manger's Blue Glide IV smashed the worl drecord in the 225-cubic-inch hydroplane class when the Pelham aMnor (N. Y.) speedboater pushed his craft to 64.33 m.p.h. to win in his class today.

Manger's record, made under perfect conditions over a closed five-mile course, bettered the mark of 63. 39 m.p.h. held by Jack Cooper, veteran Kansas City pilot, who did not compete today.

Wilmington and Pennsylvania drivers dominated the speedboat races today. Walter Sidwell in Red-Ed duplicated his triumphs of yesterday at the Harve de Grace regatta when he took the Class BCDE race for inboard runabouts.

Tommp Tyson, Pennsylvania outboard ace, won amateur honors in Class A.

The field in today's races were largely entrants who competed in the national championships at Harve de Grace Friday and Saturday.

Baering Down

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Our good-will ambassadors from Europe say, we must get into the next war to protect our vital interests. They are ready to give us the same old generous terms.

To wit: One hundred per cent of the grief and none of the gravy.

That was the recipe for our participation in the last war. Bottles may be broken, drugstores come under new management and doctors resign—but the prescription remains the same.

Nation's Fastest Harness Horses Compete Today

Old Orchard Beach, Me., July 16 (AP).—Six of the Nation's fleetest light harness horses were ready tonight to match strides tomorrow in the grand circuit's speedy free-for-all pace.

Open to sidewheelers of all ages and time brackets, the event has drawn the entry of Little Pat, 1.58¾, world champion pacing gelding. Others are Chief Counsel, 1.57¾; Lone Ace, 1.59½; The Widower and Lee Hanover, each 1.59½, and Orpha, 2.00.

Tomorrow's program will include 11 other races besides the free-for-all pace, making it the longest day of racing in the "roarin' grand's" current meetin gat the beach kite-shaped track. The 2.03 pace, the 2.06 trot, and the 2.06 pace are on the schedule.

Because of postponements last week due to rain, six days of racing are scheduled this week.

Tidball, Sutter Out of Tourney

4th, 10th Seeded Aces Default in Clay Play

New York, July 16 (U.P.)—Unseeded players claimed the spotlight today in the Eastern clay court men's championships at the Jackson Heights Tennis Club. Two seeded performers defaulted and the other ranked netmen were idle. Jack Tidball, of Los Angeles, and Cliff Sutter, of New Orleans, seeded fourth and tenth, respectively, defaulted.

Dick McKee, of Miami, Fla., and Billy McGehee, of New Orleans, commanded most attention. McKee, who started today in the tourney, reached the fourth round. He gained the second round when Jack Curtis, of New York, defaulted. He eliminated Farris Campbell, of New York, 6—1, 7—5, and beat Randall Rose, of Kingston, N. Y., 6—2, 10—8.

McGehee was a principal in the day's most thrilling match when he won, 6—2, 8—6, over Bob Curtis, of Houston, Tex., to reach the third round.

Rally by 7-Up Beats Fort Hunt

Fort Hunt, Va., July 16.—Aftre rallying to tie the score in the seventh inning, Fort Hunt A. C. fell under a five-run spree of 7-Up A. C. baseball team here today, losing a well-pitched decision, 8 to 3. Rinaldi's 7-hit pitching was shaded by the mound work of Deavers, of 7-Up, who allowed but 5 singles.

The only extra base hit of the game was by G. Coakley, a double. F. Coakley's two hits in 5 times was the outstanding batting achievement of the winners.

Two of Crew Go Overboard In Sloop Race

Baltimoreans Blown Into Bay by Storm, But Escape Unhurt

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, July 16.—Four tiny sloops, all under 31 feet, outrode a 25-mile northwester to complete today the first overnight race in the Chesapeake Bay for such small boats after two men were blown overboard in the night.

T. Marshall Duer, jr., of Baltimore, commodore of the Potapskut Sailing Association, the race sponsors, was blown from his 25-foot sloop, Marcarle, as he wrestled with a parachute spinnaker after twighlight yesterday. With him went A. Colin Gillis, jr. While he and Gillis removed their clothing in the cold water off Love Point, Henry W. Keating, at the helm of the Marcarle, tried to turn back. Both climbed aboard after about 20 minutes during which the sloop went aground.

The race was won by Bay Bird, a 28-foot chine boat owned by J. Ramsey Speer, jr., of Oxford, Md. His elapsed time of 8 hours 50.55 was corrected to 8.28.10 for the 36-mile course. He also received the prize for chine boats.

The Marcarle finished second with elapsed time of 10.15.43. Third was the Bob White owned by Bill White, of Baltimore, with elapsed corrected time of 10.9.14. Lagoon came in fourth with elapsed corrected time of 11.58.15.

Steelmaking Up in Week to 50.5 Per Cent

Demand for Finished Improves and Some Districts Add Output

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Ohio, July 16.—Finished steel demand and ingot production have recovered further from the early July slump, but divergent trends in consumption will temper the additional improvement indicated for the next several weeks, the magazine Steel said today.

Higher schedules are forecast for several districts this week and prospects are favorable for recovery of all the holiday drop before the end of July. Steeel making last week rose 8½ points to 50½ per cent of capacity, which was four points below the preholiday average, but well above the 32 per cent rate of a year ago.

The last ten days steel buying has materially improved and in some instances exceeded the June weekly average. Miscellaneous buying predominates such gains.

Strike Slows Demand

Lag in automotive buying due to the strike of tool and die workers has cut down demand from this source. Early settlement of the strike is expected to see heavy buying by mid-August.

Pig iron shipments are back to the June daily average. New business in some districts is heavier than a month ago. Quickening of scrap markets and stronger prices lend support to expectations of further gains in steel production. Higher scrap quotations are forecast shortly in some districts. The composite advanced 21 cents last week to $14.74 on an upturn at Chicago and Pittsburgh.

Except for a drop of 21 per cent at Cincinnati all steel making areas reported higher production schedules. Gains were 8 points to 44 per cent at Pittsburgh; 5½ to 50 at Chicago; 8 to 40 in Eastern Pennsylvania; 15 to 53 at Youngstown; 17 to 73 at Wheeling; 15½ to 43 at Cleveland; 4½ to 37 at Buffalo; 15 to 80 at Birmingham; 8 to 40 in New England; 14 to 45 at St. Louis and 8 to 64 at Detroit.

Bank, Insurance Stocks Advance In Past Week

New York City bank stocks continued upward during the past week, registering fair gains at the close, according to figures compiled by Hoit, Rose & Troster, specialists in bank and insurance stocks. The aggregate market value of 16 leading issues on July 14 was $1,465,009,000 compared with $1,438,745,000 at the close of the previous week, an increase of $26,265,000, or 1.83 per cent.

The current average yield of the 16 issues of 4.41 per cent compares with a yield of 4.49 per cent on July 7. The current market value is now equal to 104 per cent of the known book value against 102 per cent a week ago. Based upon current figures the 16 issues are now quoted at an average of 17.2 times their known earnings compared with 16.7 times on July 7.

Insurance stocks in the New York City market again registered gains during the past week. The aggregate market value of 20 leading fire and casualty insurance issues on July 14 was $808,143,000 compared with $593,646,000 at the close of the previous week, an increase of $14,497,000, or 2.44 per cent.

Stone & Webster Start Work on Pepco Extension

Construction of the 50,000 kilowatt extension to the Buzzard Point plant of the Potomac Electric Power Company in Washington has just been started by Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation, who designed, and constructed the original installation at this plant and were recently retained by the power company to design and construct the new facilities.

The work will include an extension to the present power station building to house the new turbine generating unit with its auxiliaries, the electrical switching apparatus and a boiler installation having a capacity of 525,000 pounds of steam per hour. A new intake screen well at the river with a condensing water tunnel to the station and an extension coal handling plant are also to be provided.

Upon the completion of the work in the fall of 1940 the Buzzard plant will have an installed capacity of 120,000 kilowatts.

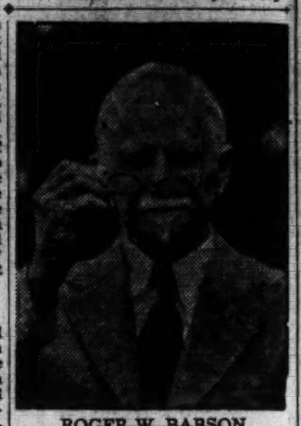
Odd Depression Finds Banks Choked With Cash, Babson Says

Circulation Largest on Record
Interest Rates at All-Time Low
How Should Money Be Invested?

By Roger W. Babson

Gloucester, Mass., July 16.—This is the queerest depression the United States and Canada have ever experienced. One of the ordinary symptoms of hard times is tight money. In our previous depressions, no one had any cash. Banks always had one eye peeled on the currency drawer. The sheriffs office was busy slapping attachments on shops and business offices. Interest rates were high. No one wanted to lend money. Everyone wanted to borrow.



ROGER W. BABSON

But here we are well along in the second instalment of the "Great Depression" with banks choked with cash, with more money in circulation than ever before, with interest rates at a new all-time low, with thrifty people unable to find suitable ways to invest their savings. Let's take the practical problem of a young family today. Brought up in the tradition of thrift, they are paying their bills and have a little something left over at the end of the month. What should they do with it? Put it in the bank? Buy or build a home? Bury it in the backyard? Purchase life insurance? Invest it in stocks?

Program First Step

Well, the first thing they should do is to lay out a program. The twin keynotes of this program should be cash reserves and the cheapest form of good life insurance. Banks all over the Nation are now again slashing interest rates on savings accounts. Discouraging as this trend is, I think every young family must forget interest and use bank accounts just as young people always have. Banks are the simplest places in which to store your money. If we have inflation, you will get the same number of dollars out of the bank that you put into it. If we have inflation, the dollars you dig up in the backyard will buy no more than the phony ones that you draw out of the bank.

However, there is no need to put all your cash in a savings bank. There are four other possibilities where the interest rate is better and safety should be as good. First are the Federal savings and loan associations. They are paying 3 per cent in many instances. A second possibility is a Postal Savings account, which pays 2 per cent. Then there are the "Baby Bonds" issued by the United States Treasury. They can be purchased in any amount from $25 up, but no one can buy more than $10,000 par value in any one year. You pay $75 for a $100 bond. You get no "interest" each year; but collect it all at once at the end of ten years. It figures 2.9 per cent annually. These bonds can be "cashed in" at any time on 60 days' notice.

Diversify Savings

Depositors' money is as safe in the above-mentioned places as it can be under present circumstances. Inflation or repudiation may come. If so, my guess is that it will wipe out 25 per cent to 75 per cent of the purchasing value of your cash or savings account. No one, of course, knows just how much repudiation or inflation we will have or how it will come about. Savings accounts, "Baby Bonds," and even life insurance would suffer; but nevertheless, young people should take this risk.

When buying life insurance, my advice to young husbands and fathers is to buy straight life insurance with no "frills". It is the cheapest form of protection and, after all, you buy insurance for protection, not for an investment. Massachusetts and New York have savings bank policies which are considerably cheaper than private company policies. The competition of this savings bank insurance is not entirely fair to the private companies for the tax status is not comparable. Yet, it shows the savings possible when high sales commissions, plush offices, unnecessary overhead, and wasteful distribution costs are eliminated.

New Houses No Bargain

After a good start on several small savings accounts or baby bonds, and plenty of life insurance, the next step for our young family is a home. No one building a house with union labor is getting any bargain today. Certain material prices are almost as high as wage rates. However, interest rates are low and offset the other factors to some extent. While the wages of building labor are as high, or higher, than in 1929, the wages of building money (interest) are only half as high. So I am still in favor of a young couple getting their home started as soon as possible.

Pick out a good centrally located neighborhood in or near a college town if possible. Build a simple, compact, well-insulated home that will stand up through the years. Avoid the type of home that is "in style" at the moment. It is only a fad and will depreciate much faster than homes that have remained in good taste in New England and Virginia for 300 years. Take a FHA installment loan mortgage. Bargain for the lowest interest rate possible. Be sure to get enough land with your house so you can have a kitchen garden if you are out of work.

Pick Only the Best

Now our young family has its cash reserve, life insurance, and mortgaged home. The latter is as good protection against inflation as the other two items are vulnerable to it. From now on you can buy other forms of investment—preferably good stocks. Pick a broad group of conservative issues listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Get issues that have a good dividend record, no debt, and own natural resources. Diversify as much as you can—diversification is the best investment insurance you can buy.

Meanwhile, remember that current crazy conditions cannot last forever. Unless "pressure groups" are prohibited at Washington, the nation is going into inflation and chaos. Such a program as I have outlined is sound. It protects you as much as possible, whichever way the cat jumps. Furthermore, it puts your dollars to work. Remember, our billions of idle dollars must be put to work before our millions of unemployed can go back to work!

Lumber Orders Run 25 Per Cent Above Year Ago

The lumber industry during the holiday week ended July 8, stood at 90 per cent of the seasonal weekly average of production in 1929; 64 per cent of the seasonal weekly average of shipments in 1929, and 78 per cent of the seasonal weekly average of new business in 1929, according to reports to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association from regional associations covering the operations of important softwood and hardwood mills.

Armament Race Boosts European Steel Production

Cleveland, July 16.—"Armament for defense" is the universal explanation of industrial Europe to the question of "why such activity at this time," according to Vincent Delport, Steel magazine's European observer today.

The general feeling of impending danger has brought about in certain countries a new unity between parties and social strata which has been sadly lacking in recent years. It also has caused a revival in many industries that had been unable to operate economically owing to restricted output.

Thus the production of steel across Europe from Great Britain to Rumania has surged upward, and according to present indications 1939 may be a year of record production in many countries. Russia is the only major power whose output seems to be lagging behind 1938.

The following table giving the output of steel during the first five months of this year in the principal producing countries, Russia excluded, shows the trend compared with the corresponding period in 1938. The countries selected produce about 70 per cent of all European output. Russian returns so far as reported are given separately.

Rukeyser Says: Cut Earning Power of Money Faces Banks

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser,
International News Service Economic Commentator.

New York, July 16.—A by-product of the controversy as to where and through whom the Southern Bell Telephone Co. should borrow capital funds is the airing of the implications of political efforts to batter down interest rates.

In a letter to the SEC, the Tennessee Railroad and Public Utilities Commission, with an emotional zeal to safeguard the welfare of the dear public, writes: "At this time the commission is vitally interested in this application to the end that the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co. secures its money at the lowest cost possible in order that savings resulting from this new financing might insure to the public in the form of lower rates or improved service."

This clamor for cheap funds should be related to the Treasury's boast that it has been financing the Federal deficit cheaply in view of subnormal interest rates prevailing.

When will some one arise in public life to debate such claims? If the public is benefiting, it is merely taking money out of one pocket to put it into another. Nothing more.

Savings and Earnings

If low interest rates spell reduced public utility rates, and lower taxes than would otherwise be necessary to service the colossal national debt, then these savings are being accomplished by confiscating much of the earning power of the fruits of thrift.

Specifically, the great co-operative financial institutions, the savings banks and life insurance companies, which are the principal custodians of the savings of the American people, are faced with a radically reduced earning power of investable funds.

Thus the 44,000,000 savings depositors are getting no more than half the interest return of the pre-depression period. And by the same token the interest earnings on the great invested reserves of the life insurance companies, with 26,000 millions of assets and 64,000,000 policyholders, are threatened with a steadily diminished rate of earnings on invested funds.

This new starvation wage for capital is put at the doorstep of the small policyholder, whose net cost of life insurance has consequently been rising at a spectacular rate in the last few years. The expectations of the thrifty are being frustrated by the continued decline in interest rates.

Policyholders Hit

As interest earnings decline, the so-called dividend, or rebate, paid back out of premiums by insurance companies to the policyholders has been falling. In the case of one New York company, excess interest earnings this year made a zero contribution to the dividend. Thus, policyholders are out of pocket a greater number of dollars to get a given amount of life insurance.

This writer holds no brief for high interest rates nor for low interest rates. He merely wishes to make it clear that savings in interest charges by business corporations, in which their customers and stockholders participate, represent only in effect a transfer of funds back from the thrifty. Most typical Americans are in both camps. In their role of savers and policyholders, they are creditors, who suffer from a declining rate of interest. These very same people simultaneously play the role of debtors, either as common stockholders of borrowing corporations or as taxpayers responsible for the debts of government, or indirectly as consumers of goods and services who benefit from a decline in interest and other costs of businesses with which they deal.

Demagogy

The purpose of this discussion is simply to divest the subject of the demagogy with which it has been surrounded.

The approach to a zero rate of interest is a crackpot quest, overlooking the vast social benefits of providing incentives for savings. The great financial institutions flourish best under conditions providing something akin to the long-term average interest rate.

The political assault on the interest rate is not directed merely at the Morgan and other banking interests, who are the mere middlemen in the transaction. Incidentally, as a related effort, public officials at Washington seem eager to break up the big investment banking firms into little ones. It may not have occurred to the nimble-witted boys that, as business corporations reached giant size, banking institutions had to grow proportionately in order to be in position to service them economically.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

W. C. B. is the contributor of the unusual deal which brought nothing but sorrow and misfortune to him. He does not ask for sympathy, however, assuming full blame for the loss.

Today's Hand

North, South vulnerable.
WEST DEALER.

	♠ A J 10 8 5 ♡ A 9 ◇ K Q J 8 5 ♣ 10
♠ Q 9 7 4 2 ♡ 10 4 ◇ 10 7 4 ♣ 9 6 4	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ 6 3 ♡ K 6 3 ◇ 9 6 3 2 ♣ Q J 7 2
	♠ K ♡ Q J 8 7 5 2 ◇ A ♣ A K 8 5 3

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	6 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: 4 ♠.

He says: "Imagine eight singletons in one deal! Who would ever guess anything quite so bizarre? The swing was 2,290 points. Had we played the hand at five spades, doubled, we would have won 800 points, but actually our opponents made 1,490 points on six diamonds doubled.

"I was sitting South. Perhaps I should have said three spades instead of four clubs, but I wanted to show the length as well as strength in clubs; in addition, my partner might have bid somewhat psychically. However, when he rebid spades (not wanting to go to the six department in clubs), I knew that suit was all right.

"When West doubled I figured that we couldn't lose more than two tricks, so I made the first mistake by redoubling. West evidently realized the situation so he sacrificed (so he thought). I doubled and thereby got myself into a peck of trouble, for I had to lead!

"My partner had to have an ace, but which one? I felt reasonably sure it wasn't the ace of diamonds, for if so he would have doubled six. So it could be clubs or hearts.

"I didn't want to lay down the ace of spades because I thought that there being 10 or 11 spades between my partner and me I would probably find a void in either East or West. If that was so the best chance was to find the ace in my partner's hand. If it was clubs that might be the only trick we'd get, but if it was hearts he could return another heart, which I would trump, and then possibly we could get a spade trick for a set of two. So I led my singleton heart. The rest is obvious. (Ah, woe is me!)"

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

To the secretaries of the three men with a "passion for anonymity" . . . who necessarily must have more of a passion for that certain characteristic than the three men themselves . . . this column is forthwith inscribed.

The three men, of course, are the new Roosevelt aides—James Henry Rowe, jr., William H. McReynolds and Lauchlin Currie.

They are, in the same order, Miss Katherine Gilligan, Miss Gladys Callaway and Mrs. Eleanor Myer.

Miss Gilligan, who has been in the White House offices for two years, comes from Lawrence, Mass. Mrs. Myer, who has been with Mr. Currie since 1934, is a born and bred Washingtonian. And Miss Callaway, Mr. McReynolds' secretary, is from Lincoln, Nebr.

Statement: There's nothing in that rumor that Paul McNutt will use the Radio Division of the Office of Education for political propaganda. In fact, according to Miss Verna Phillips, of the audience preparation staff, no rumor could be sillier. What the office broadcasts throughout the country is strictly Government stuff without a single bias in it. And furthermore, its programs are under the direct supervision of the commissioner of education.

Also (we add) it must be good. It drew letters from 800,000 fans during the past year.

You'll be able to reel the hours away down by the old Chesapeake & Ohio Canal once the Bureau of Fisheries and the National Park Service get into action. They're planning to make it fishermen's seventh heaven, when the recreational area west of Georgetown is finally opened for pleasure. Right now the wildlife technicians of the Park Service, in consultation with the Fisheries Bureau, are selecting what species will nibble your bait.

And particular attention will be given to working out a proper diet for the fish in question . . . just so they'll grow large enough to make a tale that's worth repeating.

The technicians are approaching this matter of fish selection from several angles. First they are examining fish already caught to find out just what kind of food they are eating now. Then they will keep a record of catches being made at present. In the meantime microscopes are busy in the Zoology Department of George Washington University examining the amount and types of underwater plant and animal life.

The National Park Service is paying most attention to the portion of the canal between Great Falls and Seneca, Md., known among the Izaak Waltons of the area as the stretch between Locks 20 and 23.

And, say the technicians, the study when completed will give a picture of the private life of a fish for the period of one year through the four seasons.

Patent Office employes will be taking their first outing en masse on Saturday, August 5. The idea grew from a series of "excursion ballots" in which votes were a landslide in favor of the party. Max Klivitsky, who is chairman for the event, says the Recreation Association will charter the play field and dance floor at Marshall Hall. The championship Patent Office softball team is ready to do or die with any and all comers; and in addition to that a game between clerks and examiners is promised.

Klivitsky is planning for ticket sales up to 1,000. And even more.

A swarm of southern bees has just taken off for the north. For the most part they traveled by fast express and motor truck. A few took a de luxe route by air mail.

Under a marketing program set up by the division of marketing and marketing agreements of the Department of Agriculture, they'll replace winter colonies of other bees from Maine to Montana.

Their Pullmans were wire cages supplied with toothy mixtures of sugar and water. Packages of them weighed from 3 to 5 pounds . . . and that means 5,000 bees per pound.

Drawing room compartments were furnished for the queen bees who made their royal progress in cages attended by a dozen or more nurse bees.

St. Mary's Crops Hit

Leonardtown, Md., July 16.—The long drought in May and June followed by a scarcity of rain, has caused serious damage to garden and truck in St. Mary's County. The potato crop is almost a failure.

PULITZER PRIZE NOVEL

THE YEARLING

By Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings

CHAPTER XI.

PENNY AND JODY turned back to the campfire. It glowed comfortingly in the darkness. The midnight was still. The stars were so bright that when they looked away from the fire, they could see the water shining in the ponds. The air was cool. Judy wished that he could camp always like this, with his father. All that he lacked was Flag beside him.

M. K. Rawlings

Penny moved the torch across the Forresters. Buck threw his arm across his face, but slept on. His black beard lifted and fell with his heavy breathing.

"He blows near about as deep as a 'gator," Penny said.

THEY PILED more wood on the fire and returned to their pallets. They did not seem as comfortable as when they had first lain down on them. They shook up the moss and tried to flatten the pine boughs. Jody made a nest for himself in the middle and curled up kitten-wise. He lay a few luxurious moments watching the fresh blaze, then fell into a sleep as deep as the first.

The dogs were the first to awaken at daybreak. A fox had crossed under their noses, leaving its rank taint fresh on the air. Penny jumped up and caught them and tied them.

"We got bigger business today than fox," he told them.

From where he lay, Jody could look straight across into the sunrise. It was strange to see it on a level with his face. At home the thick scrub growth beyond the cleared fields obscured it. Now there was only a morning fog between. The sun did not seem to rise, but to sweep forward through a gray curtain. The curtain began to part its folds for the passing. The light was the thin pale gold of his mother's wedding ring. It grew brighter until he found himself blinking into the very face of the sun. The light September fog clung tenaciously a little while to the tops of the trees, as though resisting the tearing and destructive fingers of the sun. Then it, too, was gone and the whole east was the color of ripe guavas.

Penny called, "I need somebody to help find the panther oil, so I kin cook breakfast."

Buck and Mill-wheel sat up. They were stiff from their heavy sleep.

Penny said, "The 'gators and the foxes has been runnin' right across you fellers."

He told of the night's encounter.

Buck said, "You shore 'twsan't one o' them swamp skeeters you seed, after Doc Wilson's liquor?"

"A foot less, and I'd say mebbe. But not scarcely 6 feet."

"Oh, yes. Why, I went to sleep on a camp like this oncet, and I dreamed I heerd a skeeter buzzing, and when I waked up here was me and my bed both, hangin' up on a snag in a cypress swamp."

PENNY CALLED JODY to wash his face and hands at the pond's edge. When they reached the water, the stench turned them back.

Penny said comfortably, "Well, our dirt is nothin' but woodsmoke. Even your Ma wouldn't make you wash in that kind o' water."

Breakfast was the same as supper, except that there was no more swamp cabbage with panther oil. Again the Forresters substituted a draught of whisky for the missing coffee. Penny refused it. The pond water was not fit to drink, and Jody was thirsty. In a world so full of water it had occurred to no one to carry it.

Penny said, "You watch for a holler log is well off the ground, and has rain water in it. Rain water's allus fitten."

The fried and roasted venison and the hush-puppies did not taste as good as the night before. Penny cleaned up after breakfast. Grazing for the horses had been poor because the grasses were beaten flat. Jody gathered armfuls of moss for them and they ate it with relish. Breaking camp, mounting, turning the heads of the horses south, was the beginning of a fresh journey. Jody looked over his shoulder. The camp site was desolate. The charred logs, the gray ashes, were forlorn. The magic had died out with the flames of the camp-fire. The morning had been cool but the climbing sun began to heat the day. The earth steamed. The stench of the polluted waters was often overpowering.

Penny, in the lead, called back, "I wonder, kin the creeturs' bellies stand this rotten water?"

Buck and Mill-wheel shook their heads. The flood was unprecedented in the scrub. No man could tell what would come of it. The cavalcade continued steadily south.

Penny called to Jody, "Remember where we seed the whoopin' cranes dancin' so purty?"

Jody would not have recognized the prairie. It was a flat body of water, where even a crane might hesitate to wade and wander. Farther south was scrub again, then galliberry flats and bay-heads. But where marsh should be was a lake. They reined in the horses. It was as though they had camped overnight on some strange borderland and had now come into another country. Fish were leaping in the air from water that a week ago had been land. And here, after all the miles, were the bears—They were fishin with an abandon that made them unaware of, or indifferent to, the approach of horses and riders. Two or three dozen black forms moved through the waters, belly-deep. Fish jumped ahead of them.

Penny called, "Hit's mullet!"

BUT MULLETT, Jody thought, lived in the ocean. They lived in Lake George, with its touch of salt, its faint surge of tide. They lived in the tidal rivers, and in a few fresh-water rivers where flowing springs and swift currents pleased them as well as the ocean, and from which they might leap, as they were doing now, in tensile silver arcs.

Penny said, "Hit's plain as day. Lake George backed up Juniper Creek, and the creek backed up, and the spring overflowed onto the prairie. And here's mullet."

Buck said, "We got a new prairie then. Mullet Prairie. And look at them bears——"

Mill-wheel said, "Hit's bear heaven. Well, men, how many do we want?"

He sighted his rifle experimentally. Jody blinked his eyes. He had never seen so many bears at once in his life, except in dreams.

Penny said, "Don't let's be hogs about it, even if 'tis bears."

Buck said, "Four'll do us for a while."

"One'll do the Baxters. Jody, you want to kill a bear?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well—Now men, if it's agreeable, we'll pick our shots here and spread out a leetle. Somebody'll be obliged to git a second shot. Mebbe three, do Jody miss."

He assigned Jody the closest shot. It was a large fellow, probably a male.

Penny said, "Now Jody, you ride to the left a mite, 'til you git a bead on his cheek. When I give the word, ever'body'll fire. If he's moved by that time, take the best head shot you kin git. And if his head's down, and hid from you, aim for his middle and one of us'll finish him after."

Buck and Mill-wheel indicated their choices and the group spread cautiously in both directions. Penny lifted his hand. They halted. Jody was trembling so violently that when he lifted his gun he could see nothing in front of him but a blur of water. He forced himself to steady his aim. His bear was quartering from him, but he was able to draw a bead on the left cheek from the rear. Penny dropped his hand. Guns barked. There was a second bombardment from Buck and Mill-wheel. The horses reared a little. Jody could not remember having pulled the trigger. But 50 yards in front of him a black body that had been upright, lay half-sunk in the water.

Penny shouted, "Nice shootin', boy!" and rode forward.

THE REMAINING BEARS were scrambling across the swamp like paddle boats, churning the water behind them. It would take a long shot now to bring one down. Again Jody was amazed at the speed of the bulky bodies. The first shot of each man had been accurate and deadly. Buck and Mill-wheel had only wounded on their second shots. The dogs, kept at heel, broke into bedlam. They barked in a frenzy and dashed into water. It was too deep for wading and too thick with growth for swimming. They were forced to retreat, shrill with frustration. The men rode in close on the two wounded animals. They fired again and the game lay still. The unharmed bears were vanishing before their eyes. No game was quicker or cleverer.

Buck said, "Now we never figgered on gittin' these scapers outen the water."

Jody had eyes only for his own kill. He could not believe that he had done it. Here lay food for the Baxter table for a fortnight, and it was of his providing.

Mill-wheel said, "We best go back home and git a yoke o' oxen."

Penny said, "Tell you. You got five to haul and we ain't got but the one. Now I'm satisfied with the hunt, and I'm satisfied we all know for a while where to look for the game. Do it suit you, you he'p me and Jody with this un o' his, and leave me keep this horse a day-two, and we'll jest go on our way and you go yours."

"Suits us."

Penny said, "You'd think men our age would of thought to of throwed in a rope."

"Who'd of guessed the hull blasted scrub was under water?"

Buck called, "Our legs is longer'n you Baxters. You stay in the saddle."

Penny was already on his feet. The water was over his knees. Jody was ashamed to stay on his horse as though he were a child. He, too, slid off into the water. The bottom was firm. He helped drag his bear to high ground. The Forresters seemed unaware that it was important that he had shot it, for it was his first. Penny touched his shoulder, and that was praise enough. The bear would weigh better than 300 pounds. They agreed that it was best to halve it lengthwise so that the portions might easily be thrown over the rumps of the two horses. They skinned it and were surprised at its fatness, when deer and panther were so lean. The bears must have fed here through the latter days of the storm.

Old Caesar jumped and shied when the half of the long frame was thrown across him. The taint of the hide was not to his liking. He had smelled the rank odor too often through alarmed nights at the clearing. Once a bear had climbed into the lot and was in the stall with him before Penny, awakened by his whinnying, had come to him. The Forrester horse was better able to carry the extra load in any case and the bear hide was added to Penny's portion. Buck and Mill-wheel turned their horses' heads toward home.

Penny called, "Turn your hames backward and the oxen kin haul all the load to oncet. Come see us."

"You come."

Rogge Holds Parley With All U. S. Agents Investigating Scandal

By the Associated Press

Baton Rouge, July 16.—Assistant United States Attorney General O. John Rogge conferred here today with Federal agents who have entered the State in the wake of scandal that erupted when Dr. James Monroe Smith resigned as president of the State University and disappeared.

"I came here at the request of Attorney General Frank Murphy to aid in investigations of alleged violations of Federal income tax laws, alleged WPA fraud and other alleged violations of Federal criminal statutes," Rogge said.

Among conferees was District Attorney Rene A. Viosca, who has been aiding a Federal grand jury investigation at New Orleans. Six assistant district attorneys and investigators for the WPA, the PWA and the Department of Justice, Interior and Treasury sat in on the conference, which some observers believed preliminary to wholesale Federal grand jury indictments.

Meanwhile, dismissal of Mark W. Monget, WPA construction superintendent at L. S. U., led to a charge of intimidation of WPA employes and protection of "higher-ups."

Referring to his dismissal by State WPA Administrator J. H. Crutcher, Monget said:

"I was discharged immediately after it became known that I had given a full and complete statement of everything I knew to Federal investigators. My summary dismissal is intended as a warning to other employes and possible witnesses before the Federal grand jury, and to let them see what will happen to them if they tell the truth."

Leche Testifies Today

WPA officials refused comment. Crutcher said when he discharged Monget yesterday that WPA Investigator Paul Hansen has advised him that Monget "had knowledge of misuse of materials and WPA labor on L. S. U. projects."

Federal authorities already have arrested some former university construction officials and a WPA foreman there on charges of diversion of WPA materials and labor to private use.

Former Gov. Richard W. Leche has been summoned to testify before the Parish grand jury here tomorrow on university affairs. Also summoned were Associate Justice John Fournet and Superintendent of State Police Louis F. Guerre.

Gov. Dickinson Hopes Attack On High Life May Bring Reform

Tells His Sunday School Class He Would Make Stronger Statement Second Time; Urges Mothers to Set Examples of Morality

By the Associated Press.

Charlotte, Mich., July 16.—Gov. Luren D. Dickson, in the role of Sunday school teacher, told his adult class today he hoped his stories of gay drinking parties at the recent National Conference of Governors at Albany might result in a Nation-wide reform movement.

The 80-year-old chief executive, who is retiring president of the Anti-Saloon League of Michigan, spoke in the little white frame Eaton Center Methodist Church near here, addressing men and women, some of whom have been his Sunday school pupils for more than two decades.

"I Made Strong Statement"

"I made a strong statement that went across the continent," he declared. "It gives me the greatest satisfaction I have ever had in my life because I made a start. It is men and women in important positions who must make the start."

Discussing with newspapermen his charges of "high life" at the governors' conference, Dickinson said:

"If I had it to do over again, I would make it stronger." He added sharp retorts and denials from governors and other guests at the conference were "just what I expected —I won't reply to them."

To his Sunday school class Dickinson said:

"I saw young girls drinking. It was such a common affair no one seemed to have any thought of its effect. Mothers set the example for their daughters, but they didn't tell their girls of their danger.

Saw Wholesale Danger

"We had one of the finest gatherings (at the governor's conference), but you can't gather in any such proportions but you have devils there. There was wholesale danger. I have studied the vice investigating commission's report in Chicago."

Women members of the class nodded in assent as the Governor told them: "We'll never put the liquor traffic out of commission and get it away from our young people until the mothers set the example."

Groups of Sunday school members gathered early at the church, awaiting the governor-teacher's arrival. Across the road sheep bawled in a corral and a little girl in overalls tugged at the halter of a balky calf.

Carmelite Pays Jubilee Tribute To Catholic U.

Dr. Bradley, of N. Y., Lauds 'Unrivaled Greatness' of University

Massed at the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception after a picturesque procession marking the feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, more than 500 students and members of various orders yesterday morning heard the Rev. Dr. Stanislaus Bradley, O. Carm., of New York City, felicitate Catholic University on its golden jubilee.

Preacher at the solemn mass of Thanksgiving, conducted according to the ancient Carmelite rite of the Holy Sepulcher at Jerusalem, he declared that "we hail your glorious achievements of half a century and your unrivaled greatness which has shed so much luster on the Catholic Church in America."

Reviews Procession

Earlier, the cleric stood on the steps of the shrine with the Most Rev. Hilary Doswald, prior general of the Carmelite order, here from Rome on a tour of the order's houses, and celebrant of the mass; the Very Rev. Monsignor Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of Catholic University; the Rev. Celestine Fitzpatrick, O. Carm., prior of St. Elias' House of Studies, arch-priest, and Father Timothy Donoghue, S. A., and reviewed the procession, in which a statue of Our Lady of Mount Carmel was borne on a rose-trimmed base by members of the Carmelite, Augustinian, Franciscan and Dominican orders.

Describing the Carmelite significance of the day, Dr. Bradley pointed out that since 1609, the order had celebrated the "solemn commemoration of the Blessed Virgin Mary of Mount Carmel," an occasion "intimately connected with the badge of the Carmelite Order—the Brown Scapular of Our Lady."

On the 16th of July, 1251, Our Lady appeared to Saint Simon Stock in the university town of Cambridge, holding in her hands the Scapular of the Order, the preacher said. Handing him the Scapular, she had assured Saint Simon that "they who shall die clothed with this habit will not suffer eternal fire. It is a sign of salvation, a safeguard in perils, and the pledge of my special protection to the end of time."

Province's Diamond Jubilee

Dr. Bradley also emphasized that the celebration marked the fiftieth anniversary of the Irish Carmelites coming to the United States, and the diamond jubilee of the Chicago province, and that Mgr. James McMahon, whose name was long associated with Catholic University, was instrumental in bringing the Irish Carmelites to New York City.

Climaxing the rites of mass, Father Doswald invoked the Papal Blessing. The Very Rev. George Klasinski, O. Carm., was deacon, and Father Edgar Newman, O. Carm., served as sub-deacon.

FDIC Warns Higher Levy To Be Needed

Easing of Liquidation Compulsion, Avoiding Capital Drain, Urged

By the Associated Press

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation warned Congress yesterday that unless it gets new powers to prevent dissipation of bank capital, it will have to increase eventually the present one-twelfth of 1 per cent assessment on deposits of insured banks.

The corporation, which guarantees deposits up to $5,000 per depositor in 13,661 banks, said in its annual report:

Avoid Sacrifice Sales

"The corporation believes that provision will have to be made for assumption of losses in excess of the present rate of assessment, unless deposit insurance is accompanied by supervisory action to prevent the dissipation of bank capital through excessive dividends without provision for losses, and by provision for relieving the banks of the necessity, to which they have been subjected in the past because of heavy withdrawals and inadequate rediscount facilities, of liquidating assets at sacrifice values during periods of crisis.

"If the cost of deposit insurance is to be kept low, bank supervision cannot be weakened or deflected from its primary objective—the maintenance of sound banks."

The corporation made plain, however, its warning was strictly precautionary and did not reflect any probability of heavy bank losses.

Low Loss Rate Indicated

In fact, it made public a tabulation estimating that on the last date the banks were examined their assets were valued at 98.5 per cent of "book value." In other words, the banks faced probable losses on poor securities or uncollectible loans amounting to only 1.5 per cent total assets.

Last year, the corporation said, 74 insured banks failed or were merged with sound banks to prevent failures, and 99.95 per cent of the 201,437 deposits of the closed banks were paid off in full. Total payments amounted to $30,465,000, for which the FDIC was reimbursed, in part, from the assets of the closed banks, the FDIC loss being 14.5 per cent of the total payments.

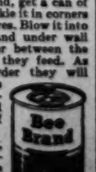
Pantry Shelves Full of Ants?

Here's how to get rid of them. First, keep shelves and cupboards free of food particles, sugar, etc. That's what attracts ants. Second, get a can of Bee Brand Insect Powder. Sprinkle it in corners and along the back edges of shelves. Blow it into cracks and crevices, back of and under wall boards. Build a powder barrier between the ants' nests and places where they feed. As they crawl through this powder they will pick up enough killing particles to kill them. Repeat these directions at regular intervals, and your pantry will soon be free of ants.



Bee Brand really kills ants, roaches and other crawling insects quick—yet it's entirely safe to use around the home. Insist on the genuine Bee Brand Insect Powder—in the red and yellow can. It's sold with a guarantee of satisfaction or your money back. Three sizes: 10¢, 25¢, 50¢.

NOTE: You can also kill ants and roaches, as well as flies and mosquitoes, with Bee Brand Insect Spray. Read directions on can.

100 Tenderfeet Boys Off to Camp At Mt. Victoria

One hundred sun browned veterans of two weeks at camp will exchange places today with five-score tenderfeet at Camp Reeder, Mount Victoria, Md., camp of the Boys Club of Washington.

Officials from the Rotary, Optimist and Lido Clubs, who are unofficially adding financial support to the Community Chest-supported organization, will supervise the shift at the Southeast Branch headquarters of the Boys Club. Some will drive the new campers to Camp Reeder, and bring home the youngsters who formed the season's first batch of two-week campers.

Cost of supporting each boy for the two-week term is $8. Some of the boys can pay only part, some none. The three clubs make up the difference and hope to enable at least 400 Washington youngsters to enjoy the camp before the season ends.

'Ickes Village' Urged as Name of Spaniards' Haven

Paris, July 16 (AP).—Officials of the International Conference for Aid to Spanish Refugees proposed today that one of France's southern "deserted villages" be renamed Ickes and peopled with refugees from Spain.

Paul Perrin, French chairman of the resettlement committee of the conference, asked that such a project be financed by the American branch as a tribute to Secretary of Interior Ickes.

The conference adopted a four-point program calling for "material and moral" aid to improve the condition of refugees in French concentration camps, eventual evacuation of all camps, resettlement of refugees in other lands and resettlement of International Brigade volunteers.

Hull Is Urged To Demand Nazi Propaganda End

New York, July 16. (AP).—L. M. Birkhead, national director of the Friends of Democracy, Inc., today urged Secretary Hull to demand of the German ambassador an immediate cessation of alleged Nazi propaganda in the United States.

Citing numerous examples of what he described as "official Nazi propaganda . . . sponsored by and emanating from official sources" Birkhead declared it was being shipped into the United States "via German vessels."

Birkhead declared the propaganda assailed American traditions of liberty, undermined the country's institutions and insulted public officials.

D. C. Bartenders Give Union Aide Farewell Party

Washington bartenders took a day off yesterday and spent it on the other side of the counter.

Occasion for the festival, conducted in a satisfying atmosphere of malt and yeast, was a farewell party for Charles E. Sands, resigning executive secretary of the Bartenders' Union, "Old" Local 75. Festivities began at noon in the basement of the Pythian Temple and lasted through several Dutch lunches, quantities of amateur and professional entertainment and several hours of dancing, until the iced tea gave out.

Sands resigned to accept a position with the international union. His successor is Claude S. Martin.

Alaska's Mining Output Tops All But War Years

Output of Alaska's mines in 1938 was estimated by the Interior Department yesterday at $28,607,000, the greatest of any year excepting 1915-17 wartime production.

Last year's output swelled to $777,818,000 the total of mineral wealth the Territory has produced since its purchase by the United States from Russia in 1867 for $7,200,000, the department said.

In comparison with 1937, there was an increase in both quantity and value of gold and platinum; an increase in quantity and decrease in value of lead and a decrease of both quantity and value of silver, copper, tin and miscellaneous metals.
